13 Jap Admirals Die

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The deaths of 13 Japanese admirals were announced today by Japanese headquarters at Yokosuka, largest Japanese home naval base. Vice Adm. Hideo Yano, who on last Oct. 4 himself announced the deaths of seven other admirals, was in the list. The Tokyo broadcast said the men "met gallant and heroic deaths while fighting dauntlessly and gallantly at the front lines in the southern region."

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Dec. 9 [Saturday]—(AP).—Three years from the day the Japanese first struck at the Philippines, United States 77th division troops slashed thru the Nipponese defenders of Ormoc to reach the outskirts of that enemy stronghold, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

The advance by the veterans of Guam in the first 24 hours after their surprise landing in the rear of the Yamashita line exceeded two miles.

At the same time the 7th division to the south pushed up the coast to narrow the gap between it and the 77th to five miles, and MacArthur reported "substantial enemy forces" caught in the squeeze play were facing annihilation.

Americans Push Ahead.

All along the wide front, over the mountains, in the valleys and along the coast the Americans observed the third anniversary of the war in the Philippines—it was Dec. 8 when the Japanese struck—by moving forward. Most eyes, however, were on the 77th division.

Reports from this force were fragmentary because while it cut off the Japanese to the south it was at the same time faced on the north and south by strong Japanese forces. There was no report on the intensity of its opposition, but it had pushed to the former United States army base of Camp Downs on Ormoc's outskirts.

The ground situation substantially was this:

From the north, where the fighting had been intense for weeks, the United States 32d division was advancing slowly southward along the road to Ormoc.

Push Toward Coast.

To the southeast of Ormoc other troops were pushing over the mountains toward the Japanese stronghold and had reached a point only six miles from the coast.

Farther to the south of Ormoc the United States 7th division was pushing northward and had seized Balogo, where earlier in the week a daring surprise landing by Amtracs [amphibious tractors] had punished the Japanese.

All these American forces were pointing toward the 77th division.

In the background of all this activity six small enemy ships were

A lone Super Fortress dropped bombs on Tokyo today, the Tokyo radio reported. The broadcast said that other planes had raided the Setonaika area.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tokyo last night acknowledged that factories in Osaka and other war industry sections of the main Japanese island were damaged by the Thursday earthquake, so severe it caused a tidal wave.

A Domei agency dispatch said factories and homes in the Osaka, Hamamatsu, and Shimizu areas were damaged, but asserted that "on the whole" the destruction was light.

The announcement said a number of persons suffered "light or severe injuries."

Osaka, 240 miles southwest of Tokyo, has a population of 3,252,000. It is an important rail and shipping hub and manufactures textiles, machines, metals, and chemicals.

No Mention of Tokyo.

There was no indication Tokyo itself had been affected. The Domei dispatch, together with earlier Japanese reports, listed the damaged areas as Osaka, Hamamatsu, Shizuoka, Shimizu, Nagoya, and Nagano.

Nagoya, population 1,328,000, is 160 miles southwest of Tokyo. Before the war, at least, it was the center of Japan's aviation industry.

Tidal waves and landslides added to the damage in the Shizuoka area, some 80 miles southwest of Tokyo, earlier broadcasts said.

Quake Laid to Bombs.

Hamilton, N. Y., Dec. 8 (AP).—A Colgate university geologist said today B-29 bombings of the Tokyo area may have caused Thursday's earthquake and tidal wave in Japan.

Dr. Harold O. Whitnall said that giant bombs dropped in or near Japanese volcanoes "should produce not only cataclysmic eruptions, but also earthquakes and tidal waves."

"Let's look at happenings that seem to support my theory," he said. "Soon after Doolittle raided Tokyo in April, 1942, Mount Asama erupted. In March, 1943, after our flyers had given the surrounding Italian area a terrific pounding, Mount Vesuvius erupted. Now an earthquake and tidal waves of the type I said could be produced by bombing have occurred after repeated attacks on Japan.

Greatest Quake Center.

Saying that Japan was the greatest earthquake center in the world, the geologist expressed the opinion the earth structure around Tokyo was so badly fractured that almost any bombing might cause dislocations leading to 'quakes.

In New York, the Rev. Joseph J. Lynch, S.J., Fordham university seismologist, said it was impossible that bombs could have caused Japan's earthquake.

"The effect of a bomb compared with the effect of an earthquake is as a flea to an elephant," he said.

3d Fleet Gets Christmas Mail

BY AL BINDER.

[Correspondent of the New York News and The Chicago Tribune.]

WITH AMERICAN 3D FLEET, Dec. 8—Miles from civilization at a fleet anchorage in a forward area, Adm. Halsey has established a fleet postoffice area.

With the use of an LST [landing ship, tanks] and a large invasion barge, three officers and 67 enlisted men, former postal employes and graduates of the naval postal school at Sampson, N. Y., are handling the massive problem.

1,200 Bags a Day.

On an average 1,000 bags of parcel post and 200 bags of air mail arrive daily. This means more than 200,000 letters and 15,000 parcels a day. But this is the Christmas season and yesterday 11,000 bags of mail and 1,000,000 pounds of parcel post Christmas packages came in.

Thirty thousand bags more of parcel post were reported en route.

Don't Send Smokes.

Halsey's system of forwarding mail from the fleet postoffice to ships while at sea, via destroyers and supply vessels twice weekly, has proved most effective in keeping spirits high.

Lt. John E. McSweeney suggested, however, that unless the men make specific requests, certain items should not be sent to them. These include tobacco, cigarets, toilet articles, candy, and food, with which ships' stores are well stocked.

SANTA'S HELPER

First Official British Report Lifts V-2 Veil

LONDON, Dec. 8 (AP).—German long range rocket operators, despite about three months of target practice on the British Isles, have not achieved "very great accuracy" with their vengeance weapon, the British air ministry announced tonight.

Air intelligence experts, in the first official, comprehensive statement on Germany's V-2, admitted that "the design and the construction are undoubtedly a considerable technical achievement," but added:

"The military value of the weapon at present is extremely doubtful. Accuracy at present is not very great."

Use of the cautious phrase "at present" was coupled with the statement that "there is evidence that the Germans were forced to use the V-2 before it was fully developed."

Range About 200 Miles.

"The noise of its approach is frequently heard after the explosion as a rumbling sound like that of thunder," the official statement said.

"Rockets being fired against this country have a range of about 200 miles. The time of flight from launching to impact on the ground in this country is about five minutes."

Here's how a V-2 is launched:

"The rocket stands in a vertical position on a concrete platform or hard surface. The turbine, which is driven by super-heated steam produced by mixing very concentrated hydrogen peroxide with calcium permanganate solution, is started up and drives the pumps which force the liquid oxygen and the alcohol into the combustion chamber.

"The mixture is then ignited electrically from some distance away and the rocket takes off. The energy so liberated creates a thrust of about 26 tons.

Slowed by Air Resistance.

"The mechanism is so arranged that the rocket is pointing upward at an angle of about 45 degrees about one minute after launching. At this time the fuel supply is cut off, either by remote radio control from the ground or by pre-set automatic instruments in the rocket.

"The point at which the fuel is cut off determines the range.

"As it descends thru the atmosphere from a height of 60 miles, the V-2 is slowed considerably by the resistance of the air and becomes heated by friction to such an extent that it has actually been observed glowing dull red."

The rocket was standardized after 20 years of research by German scientists. It weighs 13½ tons.

BLONDE JAILED FOR RAIDING TILL TO RAISE WAGES

New York, Dec. 8 [Special].—Mrs. Madeline Dunnigan, 22, of Brooklyn, a blonde bookkeeper, was jailed on a charge of grand larceny today for giving pay raises and cash gifts to co-workers without telling the boss.

The raises and gifts dispensed by Mrs. Dunnigan cost him between $30,000 and $40,000 over three years, said the boss, Oscar H. Gropper, owner of a 5th av. luggage shop.

The raises, the complaint charged, included boosts from $30 to $55 a week for a clerk, from $3 to $15 a day for a temporary helper, and from $15 to $25 a week for an errand boy.

Gropper also complained that Mrs. Dunnigan pensioned off a friend at $25 a week.

House Votes Super-Rank for 8 Officers

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8 (AP).—The house today passed a bill to create eight war time five star army and navy commanders.

The legislation is a possible forerunner to a move to give the navy a permanent admiral with a rank high enough to match Gen. Pershing's "general of the armies of the United States"—highest military title in the nation.

"Every other major power has these ranks," said Chairman Vinson [D., Ga.] of the naval committee in the brief debate which preceded today's voice vote. "It is very essential on the basis of the size of our army and navy."

If the bill becomes law it would make the American officers equal in rank to British field marshals.

Goes to Senate.

A hint that today's vote was the first advance showing of a move to make the higher rank permanent came from Vinson's remark:

"The strength and pride of the United States justify making this the high rank when the army and navy are reorganized" after the war. There has been talk of creating an "admiral of the navies" to correspond with Pershing's army rank.

Today's bill, which now goes to the senate, provides four appointments each of "general of the army" and "admiral of the fleet" for the war's duration. Guessing for the house, Vinson predicted the jobs would go to these men:

For the army: Gen. Marshall, chief of staff; Gen. Arnold, head of the air forces; Gen. Eisenhower, and Gen. MacArthur. All are now four star generals.

The Navy Possibilities.

For the navy: Adm. Leahy, the President's chief of staff; Adm. King, commander in chief of the navy; Adm. Nimitz and Adm. Halsey.

"But I'm merely guessing," Vinson told the house.

The five star bill retains the present basic pay of top commanders—$8,000—but increases the personal money allowance from $2,200 to $5,000 a year.

British Women to Keep Their Home Guard Rifles

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 8.—Women in the home defense movement will be permitted to retain their rifles when the organization goes off duty tomorrow, it was announced today, altho men in the home guards have given up theirs. The women plan to form a rifle association and shoot as a sport.

BRITAIN VOICES PROTEST ON U.S. ITALIAN POLICY

Objects to Public Airing of Row.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—Developments today failed to clear up the mystery of the rift between the United States and Great Britain over British activities in Italy and Greece.

That the new secretary of state, 44 year old Edward R. Stettinius, should have inaugurated his tenure with a public charge of bad faith leveled at the British government is universally regarded as deeply significant of the play of political forces at home and abroad hidden from the public eye.

There is a vast amount of speculation on the circumstances and influences that caused the young American foreign minister to touch off the train of diplomatic gunpowder which exploded in a ministerial crisis in London with comparable repercussions in Washington.

Britain Registers Protest.

Astounded by the first note of criticism of their government emanating from Washington since the Roosevelt administration came into power, the British lost no time in registering strong verbal objections with Stettinius about the manner in which the American position for a hands off policy in Italy was publicly stated last Tuesday.

It was learned that a British embassy spokesman who called on Stettinius today admitted that the United States should have been consulted before the British spoke up against the inclusion of Count Carlo Sforza in any Italian government. But he said it also was true that the British government should have been consulted before the state department issued its declaration favoring freedom of political action for Italy.

He was told that the United States probably would not have made any public declaration at all except for the fact that British Foreign Secretary Eden's initial statement on Sforza in commons had been published widely and had brought heavy demands for a declaration of Washington's position.

Halifax Talks to Stettinius.

Later in the day British Ambassador Halifax had a talk with the young American secretary of state. Halifax, a veteran diplomat and about the smoothest envoy who ever has appeared in Washington, spent 40 minutes with Stettinius at noon today.

He came out of the conference smiling, evidently in an unworried mood. He laughed and jested with newsmen as he usually does.

"I don't think we need be unduly excited about what has happened,"

Rebels March on Athens as Battles Go On

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 8 (AP).—Gunfire resounded anew in the battle of Athens today. British troops and tanks dug out snipers and moved to intercept a new force of militant leftists of the ELAS group who were reported to be advancing on the city. The leftists were massing at Hassia, 15 miles northwest of Piraeus, which is Athens' port.

Clear weather this afternoon brought a renewal of the general conflict after a night of comparative quiet in which a drizzling rain dampened the ELAS ardor.

British patrols went outside the city on the northeast to intercept the new force of 700 leftist militia men who were approaching Athens with an armored car.

Take Up Strong Positions.

British riflemen were busy in the wooded park east of the royal palace. They were digging out ELAS forces that had infiltrated during the night and taken up strong positions.

Parachute troopers gave the British patrols protective fire with heavy machine guns mounted on the roofs of the palace and the former communist headquarters building in Constitution square. Bullets fired by sharpshooters still sung across the square.

Other parachutists were holding the Acropolis heights and were making a house-to-house cleanup of ELAS sharpshooters.

British Beaufighter and Spitfire planes, which wounded ELAS men said had caused a number of casualties, stood by for further strafing use.

It was announced that a Greek court martial would try those charged with being authors of the revolt as soon as possible.

Carry In Wounded.

The British and Greek government forces now have taken prisoner nearly 1,000 of the ELAS fighters, it was reported. British ambulances are bringing in the wounded from both sides. Some drivers said they had been fired on by the ELAS and had been stopped at some ELAS roadblocks only to be asked for cigarets and then sent on.

Hospitals, handicapped by lack of supplies and blankets, were caring impartially for the wounded, but even they were not safe refuges. The director of one was wounded.

The Greek police thus far have lost in killed, wounded and missing 600 out of their 3,000 members. British casualties have not yet been announced officially.

[The Cairo radio broadcast a dispatch from Athens saying that a leftist leader had met a government representative to discuss cessation of fighting.]

FIND DESERTERS.

In Rome Gen. Henry Maitland Wilson, outgoing commander of the Mediterranean theater, said deserters from the German and Bulgarian armies have been found among the "irresponsible extremists" who brought on the fighting in Athens. He said some possibly were "planted there for the purpose of causing trouble." He said such "plants" had been encountered before. "A lot of people have forgotten that there are Germans within 100 miles of Athens, on Crete and in the Aegean Islands," he added. "We are using the air and naval bases of Greece to carry on a war."

The allied aim in Greece is to carry on the war against the Germans and bring relief to the Greek people, he said.

3d Army Used Its Gas—then Walked

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—A "desperate effort" by Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army to supply fuel for a final punch on the western front was described tonight by an American business man just returned from Europe.

Fighter planes flew to the front to supply gas for tanks while trucks made the 600 mile run from the beaches, Frederick C. Crawford, Cleveland industrialist, declared in a report prepared for the 49th annual convention of the national association of manufacturers.

Walked Thru Metz.

"Finally," he said, "it became humanly impossible to keep this great army of mechanized equipment supplied. Gen. Patton ordered the gas from the trucks put into his tanks and told his men to 'go until the tanks stop—then get out and walk!' And they did—they walked right thru Metz."

Crawford, president of Thompson Products, Inc., of Cleveland, who with five other industrialists spent five weeks inspecting fighting fronts to get first hand knowledge of shortages, declared that with more gasoline, Patton's army "would have gone straight thru to Berlin.

More Buzz Bombs.

"Mobile warfare is over for the time being," Crawford asserted.

"The V-1 buzz bomb is coming over in greater numbers and interfering with supply systems," he added. "They are coming in increased numbers and with greater accuracy. And the V-2 rocket is appearing in great numbers."

U.S. 3D AND 7TH ARMIES POUND SIEGFRIED LINE

Patton Halfway in Saar Basin.

False Impression

PARIS, Dec. 8 (AP).—The American people have gotten a false impression of the western front situation which is far tougher than it is realized at home, Rep. J. Parnell Thomas [R., N. J.], one of the 17 touring members of the house military affairs committee, said today after a week's visit to the front.

"We were given to understand at home that the war would be over by Christmas at the latest," he said. "Up there, it looks as tho it would be a great deal longer."

A universal gripe of soldiers, he said, was against the low legal rate of exchange of one franc for 2 cents—compared with an actual value nearer one franc for half a cent.

"Inflation is running rampant and is hurting our boys and the French people," Thomas said. "I ran into a bunch of Yanks ready to break into a store. They were mad because they couldn't afford to buy things. The French are sore because the boys aren't buying."

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Dec. 8 (AP).—The United States 3d and 7th armies in a concerted push along a 60 mile front from shell torn Saarbrucken to the Rhine hammered today at the Siegfried line guarding Germany's Saar basin and at the outlying defenses of the neighboring Palatinate province.

The 3d army's 35th infantry division forced two new crossings of the Saar river near Sarreguemines, at the threshold of the rich industrial basin eight miles southeast of Saarbrucken, and established bridgeheads a half mile deep at both points.

Lt. Gen. Patton's armor closed steadily on Saarbrucken, the political and industrial capital of the Saar, whose big furnaces turning out a tenth of the steel for the enemy's armies already were considered lost to the reich.

Seventh Gains Three Miles.

Lt. Gen. Patch's 7th army, on the 3d's right flank to the east, surged forward as much as three miles along a 35 mile front and field dispatches said units entered a town four and a half miles from the German frontier. At this point the 7th turned its heavy artillery on a mountainous sector of the Siegfried line.

[Field censorship would not permit disclosure of the location of this closest advance to Germany yet made by the 7th army.]

The advance, steadily driving the Germans from both the Saar basin and northern Lorraine, was paced by hundreds of fighter-bombers blistering enemy strongpoints in their path. So close was aerial support that towns bombed in the forenoon were entered by American troops in the afternoon.

Deepen Siegfried Line Wedge.

Fires blazed in eight Saar valley towns between Saarbrucken and Merzig from the rain of aerial blows.

The 3d army's 90th division, which had driven nearly halfway across the northwest corner of the basin, was deepening its mile and a half wedge in the Siegfried line in the face of persistent counter-assaults by apparently strong forces of tanks and infantry.

Fighter bombers ripped into the German tanks trying to check this American thrust in the Dillengen area, three miles north of Saarlautern. The Saarlautern bridgehead also was expanded despite bitter resistance.

Patton's Long Toms and heavy howitzers were wrecking Saarbrucken, where two of the greatest steel plants in the entire Saar valley are located in the suburbs of Brebach and Burbach. It was the ninth consecutive day of bombardment.

Nazis Shell Saarlautern.

The basin's second city of Saarlautern was falling into ruin under the fire of the Germans themselves, who were trying to check the Americans streaming across the Saar river bridge from where the first attacks on the west wall were launched.

The big blast furnaces of Dillingen, three miles northwest of Saarlautern, had been knocked out by the 90th infantry division, which speared on past the town a mile and a half into the Siegfried line in the 3d army's deepest penetration of the reich.

The Germans struck back with tanks and infantry in an attack that began at 7:30 a. m. and still was in progress late today.

Mechanized cavalry fought deeper into Forbach, three and a half miles southwest of Saarbrucken. [Paris radio said Forbach had fallen.]

Seize Metz Fortress.

Far back of the front at Metz, the 11th regiment of the 5th division, which began an attack on Fort Driant two months ago, finally seized that redoubtable fortification and took 670 prisoners.

In the battle for the richest industrial region of all—the Ruhr and Rhineland—the ease with which the United States 1st army captured two heights near the Roer river indicated the Germans are withdrawing.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' forces took a height near Pier, less than a mile from the river north of Duren, and other forces advanced onto a ridge commanding Schlich, three miles west of Duren.

Other forces broadened their hold on the Roer to 800 yards near Bergstein, eight miles south of Duren, captured a sizable height overlooking the stream and beat off two counter-attacks launched from the south.

Nazis Withdraw Artillery.

A front dispatch said that in recent days the enemy had withdrawn the bulk of his artillery to the Roer's east bank, and it was considered likely that only a thin covering force might be left behind.

The United States 9th army of Lt. Gen. Simpson, already on the Roer around Julich, nine miles northwest of Duren, came under the heaviest fire from "screaming meemies"—multiple barreled mortars—since the Normandy campaign. The Germans were sending over reconnaissance planes and considerable enemy movements were spotted across the river.

Two enemy pockets still held out in the Julich area on the west bank of the stream.

The greatest pressure on the enemy still was being exerted by Patton's 3d army tanks and infantry in the Saar, a rich valley of a million population which the Germans appeared to be relinquishing to purchase increased resistance before Cologne.

French Clear Pocket.

The French 1st army in the upper Vosges mountains cleared a pocket 15 miles square and advanced closer to the Alsatian plain with a drive thru Le Bonhomme pass to near Keyserberg, five miles northwest of Colmar, last Alsatian city in German hands.

The British-Canadian front in eastern Holland was quiet. Flood waters from the German breached Rhine spread over an area of more than 30 square miles between the lower Rhine and the Waal river.

Miserable weather of yesterday improved only slightly, but tactical air forces made about 250 sorties.

3 FRENCH PORTS TOP PEACE TIME UNLOADING JOB

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Dec. 8.—It takes a ton a month of supplies, food, clothing, and ordnance to support every American soldier on the European continent. To see that he gets it, 55,000 transportation corps soldiers work 24 hour shifts unloading ships and another 150,000 move the supplies at the various ports.

Maj. Gen. Frank S. Ross, chief of transportation for the European theater of operations, said today that since D-day continental ports have handled more than 4,000,000 dead weight tons of army supplies and have debarked more than 1,000,000 soldiers. Millions of gallons of gasoline and other petroleum products and more than 300,000 vehicles have been routed to the fighting front.

Ports' Tonnage Quadrupled.

Ross said the United States army and navy have stepped up the capacity of Cherbourg and other continental ports as much as four times over peace time unloading. At Cherbourg alone, many thousands of tons are coming in daily above peace time capacity. To handle this flow, two railway yards were built, each with room for thousands of railroad cars.

Despite enemy demolition and mines in the harbor of Le Havre and Rouen, these ports, too, are unloading supplies at a rate far in excess of peace time.

To expedite unloading, Ross and his staff worked out a plan for "pre-stowed" cargo, so that stores needed most would be unloaded first. Fifty-three vessels were prestowed in the United States and joined the invasion fleet in the channel on D-day.

The ground forces, immediately upon landing, needed food most, then small arms, and artillery ammunition and signal corps supplies and under the "pre-stowed" system supplies were unloaded in that order. This contributed much to the early successes of the 1st army, especially during a two day storm which prevented unloadings on the beaches shortly after D-day.

Reduce Re-Handling.

With the use of new ports, the average number of times a cargo is handled has been cut from six to three. With full use being made of Antwerp, this may be reduced even further, so that trucks may operate directly from docks to troop units.

Already the allied supply line has been shortened three to four hundred miles, which means a saving of 600 miles or more each round trip by truck.

Ross said the invention of "ducks" was the most important of all having to do with amphibious operations. These 2½ ton floating trucks carry supplies off ships in all kinds of weather. Capt. Robert C. Schenk, who commands a duck company, said they have taken 18 foot waves without swamping.

"Couldn't Have Done Job."

"Without these ducks we never could have done this job," said Ross. "I regard them as even more important than landing craft."

Among cargoes the American army unloaded in France was one of more than 1,000 locomotives and 20,000 railroad trucks.

"God knows how we would have gotten supplies to the front without them," Ross said.

R. A. F. HAMMERS DUISBURG RAIL YARDS, OIL PLANT

LONDON, Dec. 8 (AP).—Upwards of 500 R. A. F. Lancasters spread 3,000 tons of bombs on the jammed freight yards of Duisburg in the Ruhr today and several hours later another force of British bombers attacked a synthetic oil refinery there.

More than 150 fighter-bombers of the United States 9th air force based on the continent ripped Nazi pillboxes and trenches near Saarbrucken and hammered canal and Erft river bridges east of Julich.

KEROSENE FIRE BURNS FATAL.

Henry Beckstrom, 58, died yesterday of burns received Wednesday when he tried to kindle a fire with kerosene in his home, at 183d st. and Springfield av., Rich township.

FAENZA'S FALL BELIEVED NEAR AS ALLIES GAIN

ROME, Italy, Dec. 8 (AP).—British and Polish troops, fighting thru rain, fog, and mud, widened their bridgehead across the Lamone river southwest of Faenza to almost five miles, virtually outflanking that highway town between Bologna and the Adriatic sea.

The allied forces pushed their line thru the town of Pideura, four and a half miles west of Faenza, after capturing Castel Raniero and Olmatello. The early fall of Faenza appeared certain. German troops already were reported pulling west of the town toward Imola, eight miles from Faenza. Pursuing Indian forces seized Monte Bitella.

North of Ravenna patrols found the Germans attempting to establish a defense line in marshland near the lagoon Valli di Comacchio. It was disclosed that the Canadian 1st corps, commanded by Lt. Gen. Charles Foulkes, scored the breakthru that resulted in the fall of Ravenna.

COMMITTED TO STATE HOSPITAL.

Charles Patch, 27, of 871 N. La Salle, who kicked Policeman Harold Berglund and tore off his badge, has been committed to the Elgin State hospital, Dr. D. B. Rotman, Municipal court psychiatrist, told Judge N. J. Bonelli in the Chicago Avenue court yesterday.

9TH ARMY YANKS BATTLE FOR NAZI SPORTS STADIUM

Advance on Julich Swimming Pool.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY, Dec. 8.—American troops were fighting within the area of the Julich sports stadium today following a dawn attack against deep dug enemy positions inside and around the concrete arena where the Nazi garrison is holding the only remaining pocket in this vicinity west of the Roer river. Smoke swirled over the area while American and German artillery carried on a thundering duel across the stream thruout the day.

The assault began shortly after 5 a. m. following a pre-dawn artillery bombardment of the area, including the adjoining swimming pool, which has been fortified with machine guns and earth entrenchments. The infantry units, which drove into a heavy cross-fire, were commanded by Lt. Col. Glover S. Johns Jr. of Corpus Christi, Tex. Altho pushed back at a few points, the Nazis still were resisting fiercely late this afternoon.

Nazis Keep Supply Line Open.

The Germans holding this strong point still have contact with the main part of the town of Julich across the river. Thus they can be reënforced and supplied, a factor which is largely responsible for the difficulties of the 9th army forces in reducing the pocket.

However, when it is taken, Lt. Gen. Simpson's troops will have a continuous position on the west bank of the Roer from Julich to Linnich, at which point the line angles northwestward toward Wurm. Originally the 9th's line ran north from Wurselen to Alsdorf and Geilenkirchen. Since Nov. 16, when the present offensive began, the army has advanced about six miles. During that period 8,321 German prisoners have been taken. Other Nazi losses are estimated at 2,200 killed and 8,800 wounded.

9th Army Losses Low.

American casualties are a secret, but high ranking officers declare that 9th army losses are favorably low, compared with those inflicted on the enemy. In addition, 131 German tanks are known to have been knocked out in the first three weeks of the winter drive. A staff officer today described the quality of the German troops facing the 9th as of the highest order.

Their discipline is excellent, he said, and their physical condition fair to good. As far as morale is concerned, they accept capture and the present war trend philosophically but in no sense act hopelessly beaten. Many are veteran soldiers and only a few are past the 30 to 40 year bracket or under 17.

HEART VICTIM UNIDENTIFIED.

An unidentified man, about 60, died, apparently of a heart attack, while pulling a wagon full of wood in front of 2449 S. Halsted st. yesterday. The body was taken to the undertaking rooms at 2819 Archer av.

BAG OF GERMAN PRISONERS NOW TOTALS 752,641

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

German prisoners in the current offensive on the western front reached 70,375 yesterday, swelling the total since D-day to 752,641. The figure may be several thousand higher since several armies have not reported totals for a week or more. The latest official reports:

STALIN BLAMED BY CHICAGOANS FOR GREEK WAR

Charge He Seeks to Set Up Red Dictatorship.

Russia was blamed by Greek-American leaders in Chicago yesterday for the civil war in Greece and the attempt to establish by force a minority communistic dictatorship on the Greek people.

Peter S. Lambros, editor of the Greek Star, 130 N. Wells st., said information he received from a confidential source in Europe has convinced him Russia and Stalin are backing the communistic uprising for selfish motives.

"I believe it is a movement on the part of Russia," said Lambros, "to force a communistic government in Greece, both from a political and a religious viewpoint, by encouraging the communistic elements."

Prefers King to Bolshevism.

Lambros said the people in Greece as a whole are against communism and won't stand for it. He contended that sentiment in Greece is virtually 100 per cent Anglo-Saxon and not with Russia.

Greece, Lambros said, ostensibly must choose between the lesser of two evils. The return of King George, "who has stayed away like a gentleman," Lambros believes, would be far better than bolshevism for Greece.

Lambros charged further that an invitation issued last week by the Russian Orthodox church to the four Greek church patriarchs to attend an ecclesiastical congress in Russia was nothing more than a scheme to prepare Greek sentiment in behalf of bolshevism.

He claimed that an outlet to the sea thru Greece is one of Russia's highly coveted objectives.

Expect Order to Be Restored.

Greek nationals in Chicago, who declined to be quoted, expressed confidence that order will be restored in Greece within a few days. They said the rank and file of the serious minded people of Greece want peace, food, and shelter and—after that—a chance to choose their own government at the election polls a few months after order has been restored.

They added that some parts of Greece still are occupied by the enemy and declared that the EAM [National Liberation Front], or communistic minority, is taking advantage of disorganization of the Greek army and police forces.

British Also Assailed.

Paul Demos, 160 N. La Salle st., an American of Greek descent, lashed both the Stalin and the British influences in the Greek upheaval.

"Churchill," he said, "has no right to impose a king upon the Greek people if they don't want one. I thought we were fighting to make the world safe for democracy. Instead of that, it looks as if we are fighting to make another Hitler.

"Communism with the Greek people is the bunk. The Greeks are not Communists. They own their own properties, their farms, and their vineyards, and they want to be able to keep that property and protect it. They should be allowed to choose their own government."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—President Roosevelt's war powers were extended for another year by the senate today when it adopted the war time powers act by a unanimous voice vote. The measure, approved by the house last week, now goes to the White House.

The senate adopted an amendment inserted by the house which authorizes District courts to review "suspension" orders issued by federal agencies. Such orders are now exempt from court review. They usually forbid a business guilty of misusing critical materials from using such materials for a stated period of time.

The President's authority to invoke priorities and rationing is included in the war powers act.

6 IN DEPARTMENT OF STATE POSTS FACE PUBLIC QUIZ

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—Bowing before an unprecedented rebuke by the senate, Chairman Connally [D., Tex.] and his senate foreign relations committee agreed today to hold public hearings on the qualifications of four of President Roosevelt's nominees for top state department posts.

President Roosevelt added two more names for the committee's consideration soon afterward, nominating James C. Dunn and Brig. Gen. Julius C. Homes as assistant secretaries of state to fill the jobs just created when congress authorized two more assistant secretaries. They also will be questioned at the hearings.

Dunn now is director of the state department's office of European affairs. Homes has been deputy chief of staff for civilian affairs to Gen. Eisenhower.

Fire of Democrats.

Connally's committee came under the fire of senate Democrats on Wednesday when Connally proposed the immediate confirmation of the four Roosevelt nominees without having them appear before the committee.

The four are Joseph C. Grew for undersecretary of state and William L. Clayton, Archibald MacLeish, and Nelson Rockefeller for assistant secretaries.

Senate Democrats charged that the nominations were dictated by Harry Hopkins. The Democrats then joined with Republicans in sending the nominations back to the committee with instructions to interview all four, that the senate might know the nominees' views and qualifications. Connally said at the time that he was not sure public hearings would be held, but promised testily to print the committee's proceedings "in English."

Stettinius to Testify.

The committee met in a closed session for two hours and a half today. Connally then announced that public hearings would begin next Tuesday, with Secretary of State Stettinius as the first witness. The nominees will follow Stettinius.

Connally said interested senators who are not members of the committee may attend and submit questions, but he didn't say yes and he didn't say no as to whether their questions would have to be submitted in writing or fired at the nominees.

It was reported that the committee discussed among other things the poetry of MacLeish, who is both a poet and the librarian of congress. Members declined to comment.

GEN. IKE PROMISES JUST TRIAL TO ALL ACCUSED GERMANS

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Gen. Eisenhower told the German people yesterday "the rule of justice and equality before the law" will be established in Germany by the allied military government and that every person accused of crime will be given an opportunity to defend himself in open court.

A proclamation issued in Eisenhower's name and broadcast by allied transmitters said special military government courts would be established in occupied Germany to punish offenses against the interests of the allied forces and the united nations.

No death sentence will be carried out, said the proclamation, without written confirmation by the supreme commander or a representative nominated by him.

INDICT 2 IN NAHAS GUARD SLAYING IN MICHIGAN CITY

The La Porte county, Ind., grand jury at Michigan City yesterday indicted Robert Brown, 34, of Niles, Mich., and John Hanrahan, 27, of Indianapolis, Ind., for the fatal shooting last Sept. 24 of Harry S. Akchevoun, reputed bodyguard for George Nahas, Michigan City gambler. The shooting took place in Nahas' Michigan City home. The two men also were named in first degree burglary indictments. The jury recommended that a manslaughter charge stand against Lloyd Mantell, 32, of South Bend, who confessed he and the other two men went to Nahas' home to commit burglary and that the shooting occurred when Nahas, his wife, and Akchevoun returned home unexpectedly.

TELLS UNUSUAL EXPERIENCES OF MIDWEST YANKS

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY, Dec. 8.—Some midwestern members of the Red Diamond [5th] division have undergone unusual experiences in recent days.

Lt. Harry C. Beaumont, Palatine, Ill., took over when his company commander was wounded near Metz. Beaumont advanced far ahead of his lines, his helmet was struck by a German machine gun bullet and he twice was pinned down by machine gun fire, but he completed the reconnaissance, ordered smoke laid down, and led his unit into assault position.

Pvt. James Tru, Benton, Ill., of the 10th regiment, was among 15 Americans who captured 235 Germans without a struggle, including SS [elite guard] men and staff officers.

Knocks Out Gun Nest.

Sgt. John W. Grayson, Crawfordsville, Ind., crept up on a machine gun nest, knocking it out and diverting the fire of a German 20 mm. gun from his squad, which occupied a desired position. He killed three Germans and captured six.

Pvt. Harry Nichols, Mount Clemens, Mich., a former bus driver, saw a German pedaling a bicycle at top speed thru the streets of a Metz suburb. He halted the enemy and found he was carrying a suitcase loaded with pictures of Hitler and considerable French loot. The Nazi said he was on "peace reconnaissance," which Nichols might have believed had he not also found an English pistol in the German's pocket.

Pvt. Ken Bryan, Scotia, Ill., and Pvt. John Ravert, Hazleton, Pa., spotted 30 Germans standing reveille, managed to filter thru the still sleepy Nazi sentries, and captured the entire group.

Chaplain Rededicates Church.

Assistant Divisional Chaplain Harold O. Prudell, Milwaukee, Wis., officiated at the rededication ceremonies for Saint Etienne cathedral in Metz.

Corp. Thomas E. Davies, Detroit, Mich., attached to the American Red Cross field director with headquarters in a schoolhouse near Thiacourt, was asked by the school teacher if she could hang up the photo of her World War I sweetheart, then a member of the Red Diamond division. Davies said yes after she told him she was just waiting for the Germans to leave before putting the picture up again.

BRITISH PROTEST U. S. STATEMENT ON ITALIAN ISSUE

Object to Way Stettinius Made It Public.

he said. He contended that the "basic unity of the allies" had not been affected—"not a bit."

He said that the American and British governments had achieved an understanding on the Italian and Greek political issues. He thought that there never had been a serious misunderstanding between London and Washington and was quite sure there was no misunderstanding as to policy between him and Stettinius.

Draws a Moral.

In Greece, said the ambassador, the British government was faced by the choice between orderly elections and anarchy with the possibility of a minority coup d'etat. The moral to be drawn from the incident, he added, is that in the future there must be complete consultation between London and Washington on all matters affecting them jointly.

That the British government had failed to consult Washington about its veto of the selection of the liberal republican, Count Carlo Sforza, for premier or foreign minister in the new Italian cabinet was the burden of the Stettinius charge of bad faith against the Churchill ministry. Stettinius said that the Italian people, like the peoples of countries liberated from the Nazis, should be permitted to form their governments without outside interference.

No Protest to Stalin.

The curiosity as to the genesis of the Stettinius pronouncement was heightened by the fact that the Roosevelt administration hitherto had not raised its voice against outside interference with the self determination of the countries of eastern Europe in which Russian Dictator Stalin is setting up Communist governments and carving up their territories in the wake of his conquering armies.

Mr. Roosevelt has been widely criticized for giving tacit approval at the Teheran conference to the Stalin program for annexing eastern Poland, Bessarabia, and the Baltic states and bringing Finland and the Balkans into a soviet hegemony.

Suspect Red Pressure.

It is widely surmised in official circles that the American Communists and other left wingers who so successfully led the drive to a fourth term for Mr. Roosevelt had a good deal to do with the Stettinius move. For several weeks the left wing contingent had been manifesting intense dissatisfaction with the British for interfering with the effort of the Italian Communists to get control of the Italian government.

It was to promote this purpose that the American left wingers got permission from Washington for Sforza, who was in exile in this country, to go to Italy soon after the allies accepted the Badoglio government.

For the Communists Sforza was a Trojan horse. He was to get into the Italian government and open the way for them to attain control. This maneuvering to get the Communists into power in Italy had been aided and abetted by Stalin ever since the early days following the surrender of Italy when he stole a march on Britain and America by recognizing the Badoglio government unequivocally.

From the first indication that the British government was opposed to Sforza, the American left wingers in public and private utterances and in their periodicals denounced the British and demanded that the United States do something effective in behalf of Sforza and his following. They accused the British of opposing Sforza because he is a republican and opposed to the Italian monarchy.

Yesterday Stettinius came back with a statement on the situation in Greece. His statement was so phrased that it neither condoned nor condemned this intervention but it did reiterate the point that the Greek people should have the right to work out their problems of government for themselves.

Differing views on British policy in Greece were voiced in the house today.

Rep. Celler [D., N. Y.] said, "It is a horrible spectacle to have Greeks being machine gunned by British forces. . . . It is contrariwise to all principles of the Atlantic Charter."

Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.] responded, "This is the worst time possible to be waving the Red flag in the face of Great Britain. . . . We are rendering a disservice not only to her but to all the allies."

Churchill Wins Confidence Vote in Row Over Greece

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 8.—Prime Minister Churchill won another vote of confidence in the house of commons today on a foreign policy of intervention in Greece and other liberated countries after challenging the house to "back him or sack him."

By 281 votes to 32, commons rejected a motion submitted by a group of Laborites and Independents regretting the absence in the king's recent speech outlining the government's program of any assurance that British troops would not be used to disarm "friends of democracy" in Greece and other parts of Europe. Tho mildly phrased, the motion would have involved the government's resignation had it been approved.

Called "Public Menace."

In an 80 minute speech, Churchill was bombarded with interruptions and criticisms. He was called a "public menace" with "king in his make-up" by John McGovern, Independent Laborite. He and Stalin were accused of engaging in power politics. The British people "are being taken for a ride in this war," McGovern said.

Tom Driberg, Independent, denounced Churchill's challenge for a vote of confidence as "blackmail," since the prime minister knew he "would not be dismissed by this largely servile house."

Churchill, himself in top form, justified McGovern's assertion that the prime minister was "happy only when fighting." He told Willie Gallacher, a Communist and his No. 1 critic, to "shut his mouth."

Taunts His Opponents.

Churchill confounded his opponents by announcing he would willingly allow himself to be fired if he had done wrong. He taunted them with the advance warning that they would "get much the worst of the argument" when the confidence vote was taken.

He assumed personal responsibility for his policy in Greece and elsewhere, which he claimed was "absolutely right."

He climaxed his speech with these words: "I directed Gen. Scoble [Lt. Gen. R. M. Scoble, British commander of allied forces in Greece] to assume complete control of Athens and the district around it, and to use whatever force was necessary to drive out the ELAS bands [leftist militia] by which the city became infested. If I am to blame for this action I will gladly accept the dismissal of the house. If I am not, make no mistake about it, we shall persist in this policy of clearing Athens and the Athens region of all who are rebels to the constituted authority of Greece.

Calls Greeks Mutineers.

"They are mutineers to the orders of the supreme commander in the Mediterranean, under whom all guerrillas have undertaken to serve."

Churchill disclosed that he had warned President Roosevelt at Quebec of the likelihood that EAM forces [national liberation front party], Communists, and extremists would attempt to seize control in Athens and crush all forces but their own.

He denounced what he called "swindle democracy" and mob law by bands of gangsters endeavoring to impose a totalitarian regime, and made it clear Britain would continue to back George Papandreou as Greek premier.

"Democracy is not a harlot to be picked up in the street by a man with a tommy gun," he cried, and added:

"My idea of it is that the plain, humble common man—just the ordinary man who keeps a wife and family, who goes off to fight for his country when it is in trouble and goes to the poll at the appropriate time and puts his cross on the ballot paper showing the candidate he wishes to be elected to parliament—that is the foundation of democracy.

Refers to Belgium.

"We stand upon a foundation of fair, free elections, based upon universal service and suffrage."

Referring to Belgium, Churchill said it was on Gen. Eisenhower's orders that British troops last month took action to stop disorder and tumult along the allies' lines of communication when a threat developed against the Pierlot government.

He insisted that the British had not vetoed Count Carlo Sforza as prime minister or foreign minister.

"All we have to say is that we don't trust the man, nor would we put the slightest confidence in any government of which he was the dominant member," he commented.

Again referring to Greece, Churchill reiterated the British government's determination to restore order in Greece so the Greek people could express their own will "thru the ballot box and not by bomb."

Urges Eden Visit Greece.

Arthur Greenwood, chief Labor party spokesman, urged the government do its utmost to get the various Greek parties together. He supported a suggestion that a British minister, preferably Foreign Minister Eden, should fly to Greece to attempt to achieve this.

There were indications Churchill's success does not mean the end of the government's troubles over its policy in liberated areas. The vote against the government was the largest cast in any of the six confidence votes since he became prime minister.

In parliamentary lobbies nearly a dozen deputations from aircraft and engineering factories in London sought to buttonhole members of commons to protest the use of British aircraft, tanks and warships against the Greeks. Angry arguments developed between members and the demonstrators, who were mostly young men and women.

Takes a Lubricant

LONDON, Dec. 8 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill, one of history's greatest orators, obviously enjoyed himself today in his foreign policy speech, heckling his hecklers, swapping oral punches, and spicing solemn declarations with touches of humor. Only once did he seem angry. The butt of his retort was William Gallacher, a Communist, who had interrupted him.

"You are treated with extraordinary tolerance and great consideration in this house and you should learn to keep your mouth shut, at any rate for a few minutes," he snapped.

At one point when members of the house cried "Speak up," Churchill raised a glass of water and remarked he would have to have "a little lubricant." Sipping briefly, he turned to Nancy Astor, a foremost prohibitionist, and observed: "I know it will please the honorable lady to see me drinking water."

12 QUARTS OF WINE TAKEN.

Eugene Casey, owner of a tavern at 7213 Greenwood av., reported to police yesterday that burglars stole $5 and 12 quarts of wine.

DULLES MEETS STETTINIUS AS DEWEY'S PROXY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8 [Special].—John Foster Dulles, Wall st. lawyer, today conferred with Secretary of State Stettinius on the proposed world peace organization, about which he said he had "plenty of ideas."

In Albany, N. Y., Gov. Dewey disclosed that Dulles, his foreign affairs adviser during the recent Presidential campaign, was acting as his personal representative in the talks with Stettinius.

"Last Monday Mr. Dulles and I discussed his proposed visit to Washington today," said Gov. Dewey. "Mr. Dulles and I worked closely together during the campaign in lifting the organization for lasting peace above partisanship. Our deep interest in the building of a lasting peace and our joint efforts to that end will continue."

Takes Spokesman Position.

Altho he made a poorer showing in the recent campaign than many of his fellow G. O. P. state and congressional nominees thruout the nation, Gov. Dewey still takes the position that he is spokesman for the Republican party. His announcement today was interpreted to mean he has no intention of relinquishing his titular leadership of the party.

Dulles refused to tell newsmen what suggestions he had made to the secretary of state but said he had come to find out what he could do to help in the drive for United States participation in a constructive peace organization.

His suggestions were said to include his ideas on how to settle the big difference between Russia on one hand and Great Britain and the United States on the other as to whether a large nation should have veto power if accused of aggression.

Former Morgan Attorney.

Dulles who was at one time attorney for J. P. Morgan & Co., expressed optimism over the possibility of keeping the peace out of politics and said "if it once becomes a partisan situation, it will be rather hopeless."

While in Washington he also talked with Sen. Austin [R., Vt.] and Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.].

SHOT BY POLICEMAN.

Melvin Blanks, 35, of 3408 Michigan av., a Negro, was shot in the chest last night by Policeman Eugene Reid of the Stanton avenue station after Blanks started to fight with Reid. Miss Eibenos Richards had run from a tavern at 116 E. 35th st. and sought Reid's help.

500 BOO UNION PLEA TO HALT STRIKE AT CALUMET SHIPYARDS

More than 500 of the 800 workers whose strike has curtailed production of LSM's [landing ships, medium] at the Calumet shipyards of the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing company since Tuesday met yesterday at 305 E. 115th st. and booed CIO Steel Workers union officials who begged them to return to their jobs.

The walkout began when 175 pipe fitters refused to work with a Negro pipe fitter who had been promoted to group leader, altho company officials said the Negro worker had greater seniority than the other workers in his department. Workers in other departments joined with the pipe fitters and struck in sympathy.

In another walkout which has paralyzed the production of vital war materials, 160 workers of the Rampo Ajax division of the American Brake Shoe company, 2501 Blue Island av., continued their strike in protest against the war labor board for its refusal to pass a wage increase which had been previously agreed to between the independent union and the company. The strike enters its ninth day today.

BROWDER RAPS BRITISH POLICY AT RED MEETING

New York, Dec. 8 [Special].—Britain's intervention in Greece was attacked tonight by Earl Browder, president of the Communist Political association, as "the first serious departure from the Teheran concord," in an address before 3,000 Communists at a meeting of the association at the Manhattan center.

The British policy in Greece, Italy, and Belgium are ill considered attempts to improve Britain's position so she can demand more consideration from America in arrangements concerning post-war markets, the Communist leader asserted.

He praised the statement of Secretary of State Stettinius, "laying down the principle of nonintervention in the internal evolution of Italy and, even more emphatically, in the countries of the liberated allies."

The association adopted unanimously a resolution protesting "the British policy of interfering in the internal affairs of liberated countries and bolstering discredited regimes."

RUSSIAN TANKS GAIN 27 MILES NEAR BUDAPEST

Other Units Cross Danube South of City.

LONDON, Dec. 9 [Saturday]—(AP).—Berlin said last night that Russian tank forces had crashed thru to the Danube river north of Budapest, half encircling the Hungarian capital already imperiled by other Russian units which crossed the river 13 miles southwest of the city.

A German broadcast intimated that the railroad junction of Aszod, 15 miles northeast of Budapest's outskirts, had fallen. It said that "superior" Red army forces attacked the village and that "most of the German garrison fought its way out while the rest resisted to the last round of ammunition."

Marshal Malinovsky's 2d Ukraine army units broke thru to the Danube in a 27 mile drive from Hatvan, Berlin said. They were threatening the east bank communications center of Vac, on the Danube bend 13 miles north of Budapest.

Two Armies Linked.

Berlin also said that other 2d Ukraine army units had linked up with Marshal Tolbukhin's 3d Ukraine army at Ercsi, on the west bank of the Danube 13 miles southwest of the capital, after a crossing from the Danube island of Csepel.

Moscow's regular bulletin did not mention the northern action which Berlin admitted put the Budapest garrison in a critical situation. However, it did announce a powerful drive toward Vienna thru the Budapest-Lake Balaton defense line southwest of the capital.

In that area Tolbukhin's forces advanced 11 miles and captured a rail station and a village, nine miles south of Szekesfehervar, fortress city 32 miles southwest of Budapest and 110 miles southeast of Vienna, Austrian capital.

Move to North Side of Lake.

The fall of Szekesfehervar, a great 13 way road and rail junction controling all communications southwest of Budapest, would threaten the complete encirclement of the Hungarian capital.

Curving around to the northern side of Lake Balaton, one Russian group pushed into the foothills of the Bakony mountains, last big natural hurdle before the Austrian frontier 78 miles beyond.

This represented a six mile advance as the Russians pushed to within 115 miles of Vienna.

At the southwestern end of the western Hungary front the Russians, who are within 41 miles of the Austrian frontier and less than 110 miles from Vienna, captured 30 localities, the bulletin said, but did not name any villages beyond the lower end of Lake Balaton.

NEW ROMANIAN CABINET PLANS SEVEN REFORMS

Fulfilling of Truce Is First on List.

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Romania, Dec. 6 [Delayed].—Gen. Nicolai Radescu's newly formed Romanian cabinet, which was sworn in today, is based on a seven point plan to carry out armistice conditions without delay.

Points set out are as follows:

FIRST—Complete and rapid execution of an armistice.

SECOND—Reestablishment of normalcy in production.

THIRD—Maintenance of order thruout the country.

FOURTH—Immediate disarmament of political guards.

FIFTH—Social reforms, including land distribution, annulment of all discriminatory racial laws, and improvement of communications.

SIXTH—Recognition of state authority. This means local groups must cease removing officials appointed by Bucharest and replacing them locally.

SEVENTH—An "armistice" among political parties in the journalistic war they have been carrying on.

More Unity Possible.

This program is expected to remove the threat of general disorganization, toward which Romania has been drifting thru inability of political parties to forget their differences and work together.

The Liberals and National Peasants, referred to here as "bourgeois parties," and the leftist Democratic Front are collaborating in this cabinet as they did in the last. Differences in personnel between this cabinet and its predecessor are few but important.

New Premier Energetic.

Gen. Radescu, who has been chief of staff, is more energetic than Premier Sanatescu whom he replaced, and in addition to the premiership has taken charge of the ministry of the interior. Since it controls all police and security service, this ministry is important and has been a chief bone of contention between the leftist and buorgeois parties. Gen. Ion Stanescu, who has had experience in directing police, is undersecretary in charge of police.

Japs Claim New Fighter Can Fly with Torpedo

'FREEDOM' GROUP IN NORTH ITALY HITS MONARCHY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, Dec. 8.—The national liberation committee in northern Italy today backed the Radical party in Rome against Premier Bonomi and the Italian monarchy in a manifesto which was published in the border press.

The document deprecates the fact that "in times when a large part of the country still is suffering under German oppression and fascist tyranny a government crisis could be stirred up by the very same dark and uncontroled forces which brought about the accession of fascism, thus dividing Italians and reducing politics to a despicable defense of personal or group interests and renewing the system which led to the present catastrophe.

"The liberation committees, who decided to maintain unity in the fight for national liberation, remain the only legitimate representatives of the Italian people. Until the constitutional assembly convenes, political life must develop within the sphere defined by the committees. No other authority, even the crown's, could lawfully appeal to any group not represented by the committee.

WMC PREPARING TO PUT WORKERS IN ARMS PLANTS

War man power officials in Chicago and 21 other stringent labor areas in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin will be instructed to take "vigorous steps" to meet the labor needs of plants turning out small arms and heavy artillery ammunition, the regional WMC office in Chicago said yesterday.

Regional Director William H. Spencer telephoned from Washington, D. C., where he was called for conference, and said that on his return he would assemble labor-management and man power priorities committees to discuss lowering man power ceilings of plants not engaged in critical war work and thus provide help needed in essential factories. He said that urgent war needs, particularly for ammunition, required 300,000 men in the nation. In this region the need is for 25,000.

FRANCE, RUSSIA READY TO SIGN CLOSE ALLIANCE

PARIS, Dec. 8 (AP).—France and Russia will sign an alliance before Gen. de Gaulle returns from Moscow, well informed officials at the Quai d'Orsay predicted today.

The proposed pact now under discussion would be along lines of the British-soviet 20 year military assistance agreement, but would provide for closer relations, these sources said.

Foreign military quarters heard the pact would perhaps provide for establishing a soviet military delegation in Paris to coördinate the two armies and for reequipping some French units with Russian material.

AIR LINES FAVOR SUPER-ROAD ON OLD I.-M. CANAL

BY ROBERT HOWARD.

Air line officials yesterday pledged full support of the proposed superhighway along the abandoned Illinois and Michigan canal and pointed out that the western suburbs would be benefited as much as the city of Chicago.

Running time from Chicago airport to the loop could be reduced to 13 minutes by a super-highway, said W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines and one of the aviation leaders who commended the project. Quicker access to the airport, from the suburbs as well as from the loop, is a major goal that caused a canal super-highway on the southwest side to be ordered by Gov. Green and approved by Mayor Kelly.

40 Minute Trip in Autos.

Air line limousines now require 40 minutes to battle surface street traffic on the 11.6 mile route from the loop to the airport, with an hour often needed by motorists when such streets as Archer av. are at peak period congestion.

Conservative estimates in the past have been that 20 minutes would be standard loop-to-airport running time on a super-highway. Patterson's declaration that his engineers envision a 13 minute schedule was in line with predictions that great progress will be made in commercial air traffic after the war. Civic leaders here have insisted that Chicago's position as a future center depends upon steps to provide fast and easy transportation to the airport, in keeping with progress in the air.

Proposal Welcomed.

"Gov. Green's proposal that the Illinois and Michigan canal may be used as the site for a super-highway to Chicago airport and the southwest side is welcome indeed," Patterson said.

"Those of us who have been concerned with the difficulties of transportation between downtown Chicago and the airport long have felt that a super-highway along the course of the canal might be the solution.

"Today our air lines' limousine time from the loop to the airport is approximately 40 minutes. Our engineers estimate that this can be reduced to approximately 13 minutes. More important, between 150,000 and 200,000 people in the western suburbs who have extremely poor east-west transportation would be benefited.

Factor in Air Service.

"As regards air transportation alone, it might be pointed out that the over-all speed of flights must take into account ground transportation between airports in the communities which they serve. Chicago, which has such a great future as an air hub, scarcely can afford to have inadequate congested transportation facilities between the airport and the downtown section, while, at the same time, bidding for even faster and more efficient air service.

"I am sure that the air lines serving Chicago, the users of air transportation, and the public generally will applaud Gov. Green's action in ordering a survey of the project."

U. S. 66 Link Envisioned.

The abandoned canal right of way runs from Ashland av. and the river southwest to Joliet and Peru. How much would be converted into a super-highway is still to be determined, but most planners say it would connect with U. S. 66, the main Springfield-St. Louis route, at or beyond Summit.

Whether they were headed for the airport or for the central business district, motorists from most of the western suburbs would be able to use the I. & M. express way.

YANKS RECOVER 1ST PHILIPPINES MILITARY POST

Stars and Stripes Flies Over Camp Downs.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LEYTE, Dec. 8.—The American flag today again flies over Camp Downs, three years to the day that the Japanese attacked the Philippines. Thus this row of big red barracks is the first American military post on the island to be recovered.

Comp Downs rises in peace time regularity atop a flat topped hill just south of Ormoc. Its big silver water tower stands off to the rear. In front of the barracks is the parade grounds centered by a flagpole.

When infantrymen of the 77th division came ashore three miles south of Camp Downs today, the Japs already had struck their colors and the pole was bare.

Terrain Is Favorable.

Infantrymen covered the ground rapidly to reach the camp. And for once they had favorable country. From the Baod river which was the north boundary of the beachhead the land is open fields with a few patches of woods. It slopes gradually for more than a mile inland before hills climb steeply to two and three thousand feet.

Only scattered small arms fire met the infantrymen as they moved northward from their beachhead and past the big refinery with its many cottages, warehouses and giant smokestack.

Pull Guns up to Plateau.

Once they scrambled upon the camp plateau and their jeeps and trucks brought the guns up the good paved road, the 77th's artillery pointed straight down into the ruins of Ormoc town.

As the infantry was reflying the flag over Downs other fighters of the 77th were building strong defenses on the south flank. They are one claw in a bloody pincers being closed by 7th division men who crossed to Baybay, 30 miles south by an overland road from the east coast. At nightfall today the 7th division spearhead was only five miles from the 77th's new line. The Japs between are in a predicament from which hara-kiri is the only apparent escape.

4 YANKS BEAT 12 NAZIS TO FORTS AND WIN FIGHT

MERLEBACH, France, Dec. 8 (AP).—Four Americans beat 12 Germans to a couple of Maginot line pillboxes west of Saarbrucken and disposed of the Germans as well. Later, a German colonel who sent out the 12 was captured and learned for the first time what had happened to his men.

"We didn't get there with the mostest, but we got there fustest," Lt. George G. Rork, Morenci, Ariz., commander of cavalry reconnaissance, said today.

"We pulled up at the top of a hill and sent out a dismounted patrol of corporals Benny Klucinec, Tarentum, Pa.; Ed Kammarath, Chicago, Lohman Baily, Jamestown, N. D., and Robert Costdyk, Ravenna, Ohio.

"The boys saw a couple of pillboxes, one on each side of the road, and they rushed them, but found nobody home. Then they spied 12 Germans coming toward them and sent word back they might need some help. Cpl. Ralph Moore, Richmond, Ind., raced up with a jeep on which a machinegun was mounted and parked it in the middle of the road.

"The Germans coming to man the pillboxes tried to flank the jeep. That was their mistake. Our boys in the pillboxes opened up."

Urge Simpler Rules

District and Circuit judges of the 7th federal judicial circuit—Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin—discussed court problems at their annual conference in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals building, 1212 Lake Shore dr., yesterday. Senior Circuit Judge Evan A. Evans presided.

The judges expressed a need for court reporters to be assigned permanently to each court and for referees in bankruptcy to be put on a salary basis, instead of a fee basis, the present practice. The judges also agreed that the rules in criminal cases, especially habeas corpus proceedings, should be simplified.

An expected increase in cases to be tried in the District court after the war because of war regulations and because claims against the government may be tried in the court will require a post-war expansion in the court, the judges said. Their recommendations will be given to the next Circuit judges' meeting in Washington.

DRIVE JAPANESE FROM PROVINCE OF SOUTH CHINA

CHUNGKING, Dec. 9 [Saturday] (AP). — Counter-attacking Chinese troops have virtually thrown Japanese invaders out of the south China province of Kweichow, Gen. Chen Cheng, new Chinese war minister, announced today.

Chinese forces have chased the enemy back from the important railroad town of Tuhshan to "Liming [Dawn] Pass, northeast of the Kwangsi border town of Liuchai, he said. Liuchai lies 40 miles from Tuhshan. The Chinese high command yesterday announced recapture of Tuhshan, 75 miles southeast of Kweiyang on the old Burma road.

The war minister said the Chinese successes thus had greatly lessened the threat to Kweiyang and other important cities, but cautioned that "we must be prepared for a resumption of the enemy offensive."

Airman Who Destroyed 60 Flying Bombs Missing

LONDON, Dec. 8 (AP).—Squadron leader Joseph Berry, R. A. F. fighter pilot, whose destruction of 60 flying bombs during the robot blitz won him the title of Britain's ace buzz-bomb killer, is missing and believed killed, the air ministry announced tonight. His fighter was seen plunging to earth in flames over northern Holland during an offensive patrol early on Oct. 2. His squadron mates reported Berry's last words over the radio telephone were: "I've had it, chaps. You go on."

JAPS SLAUGHTER YANK PRISONERS SPILLED INTO SEA

Struggling Men Shot, Slashed to Death.

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—The massacre by the Japanese of hundreds of weakened American service men, struggling in the ocean after the transport on which they had been imprisoned was sunk, was described today by one of the survivors of the ordeal, Capt. Fred J. Gallagher, Tucson, Ariz.

Only 82 Americans of the 750 who were aboard the transport survived, Capt. Gallagher said at an interview, after he and two other survivors were introduced at the convention of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Gallagher said five hundred prisoners were jammed into a hold measuring 50 by 40 feet, when the trip began last Aug. 19.

"We were naked, and the first three days we exhausted all the moisture in our bodies and couldn't perspire," he said. "It was hell to be in that trap."

Stand Up to Stretch.

For 19 days the prisoners were so crowded that a man had to stand up to permit the man behind him to stretch his legs, the captain continued. "Those are the kind of times when men get religion, and lose it."

At one time 140 men who had lost consciousness were removed from the hold, he declared, adding: "They were going pretty fast."

Capt. Gallagher told this story of the torpedoing:

The transport he was aboard was one of a convoy of seven attacked by American submarines. All the transports probably were sunk.

Thrown into the water by the explosions, Americans were killed by Japanese machine gunners who patroled the area in small boats. Others were cut down by sabre wielding Japanese who resorted to knives when their wet guns did not fire.

Slaughtered by Gunners.

Many of those who managed to reach the shore of Mindanao, two miles away, were slaughtered by Japanese machine gunners the following day. Eighty-three eventually were aided by Filipino guerrillas, but one died later of his wounds. An American submarine rescued the survivors and took them to New Guinea and Australia.

The captain said American prisoners of the Japanese "who lasted the first six months" after their capture "have every chance to get back; they're a pretty tough bunch of boys—they had to be."

Born in Egypt

Robert Nicholas Shaw, the youngest passenger ever to fly with the air transport command, arrived in Chicago yesterday at the end of a journey that began in Cairo, Egypt, 45 days after his birth. Accompanying the infant were his father, Sgt. Constantine W. Shaw of the air transport command, and his mother, Mrs. Theodora Marie Shaw, whom the sergeant met and married in Cairo. The baby was born in an army general hospital near Cairo.

The father said that flying at high altitude did not disturb Robert and he wasn't a "bit sick."

Sgt. Shaw and his family will visit at the home of his brother, Joseph, of 2252 S. California av. The sergeant, who was a florist before going overseas, has been transferred to an air base at South Bend, Ind.

BLACK WIDOWS MAKE IT TOUGH FOR NAZI SPIDERS

U. S. NIGHT FIGHTER PLANE BASE IN BELGIUM, Dec. 8 (AP).—American night fighters are making it tough for Nazi planes engaged in sneak night raids and in four months these one-time "poor relations" of the American air forces have firmly established themselves.

One 9th air force Black Widow squadron, commanded by Lt. Col. Oris B. Johnson, has a score of 11 German planes destroyed, five probably destroyed, and two damaged plus five flying bombs knocked down.

The squadron, flying a new type of ship, the twin engined, twin tailed 61, had to work out its own problems, such as stealing gasoline from crippled Liberator bombers to keep its fighters in the air.

WITH THE 5TH AIR FORCE ON LEYTE, P. I., Dec. 8.—Pilots of a P-61 [Black Widow] night fighter unit here read with considerable interest an article in a national magazine telling how night fighters live the life of Riley.

"These princes among men," said the article, "eat a diet rich in carrots to aid night vision. Their food is specially cooked to keep their nervous systems in delicate tune. They wear infra-red goggles, and live in stylish quarters."

Special Diet—Bully Beef.

The pilots read this in a jungle camp isolated by a sea of mud so deep no vehicles can get thru. The flyers must wade a half mile and hitch-hike to the field. The officers built their quarters themselves. During the early days on the island, they patroled swamps neck deep looking for Jap snipers.

"And as for carrots," said Lt. Robert Buchanan of Auburn, Ind., "we haven't seen any in so long we've forgotten what they look like. Our 'special diet' is bully beef—just like anybody else."

Chicagoans in Unit.

Lt. Isadore Nachman, 5327 Cornell av., former Chicago newsman, is with the outfit. The executive officer is Capt. Charles Townsend, Hollywood, Cal., whose wife is visiting Mrs. Henry Leach at 1400 Lake Shore dr., Chicago.

Sgt. George Freeman, 1050 N. Wood st., Chicago, is a radio observer with the unit. Other Illinois officers include Lt. Elston Roady of Kane; Lt. Byron Allain, St. Anne; Lt. Calvin McGuire, Hoopeston, and Flight Officer Raymond Mazalan of Blue Island. Among the enlisted men are Sgt. F. C. Goldstein, 3852 Grenshaw st., Chicago.; Sgt. William Riffe, East St. Louis, and Corporals Clifford Grider, Decatur, and Thomas Montgomery, Murphysboro. Master Sgt. Richard Mulligan, Oak Park, Michigan, is a crew chief. Other midwesterners are Master Sgt. Hayden Hankins, Windfall, Ind., and Sgt. Donald Knapp, Sauk Center, Minn.

FOUR FORCES GAIN IN DRIVE TO PUSH JAPS OUT OF NORTH BURMA

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 8 (AP).—A four pronged offensive east of the Chindwin river moved along a 100 mile front today with the aim of driving the Japanese out of north Burma.

British Tommies, British African, and Indian troops were pushing east and south on the front north of Kalewa and were near a juncture with the British 36th division, which was pressing south of Pinewe along the main north-south Burma railway.

[Chungking announced that Chinese forces in the southwestern China province of Yunnan had reached within seven and a half miles of Wanting, Burma road border town. Brig. Gen. Robert M. Cannon, chief of staff of the northern area of the combat command in Burma, said the Chinese in Burma were within 35 miles of the old Burma road.]

B-29s AND FLEET JOIN IN ATTACK ON IWO ISLAND

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Dec. 8 (AP).—A heavy bomber force jolting five-mile-long Iwo Island in the Bonin group yesterday in a combined attack with warships probably was the greatest land based air fleet ever thrown against a single objective in the Pacific war, Adm. Nimitz said today that a "sizable" force of Super Fortresses joined with 108 Liberators under a shield of 30 fighters in a shattering strike on Iwo, 750 miles south of Tokyo. Of six Zeros which rose to intercept, five were shot down and the other was damaged. There was no ack-ack.

Nimitz disclosed the mighty aerial task force was operated under the command of Lt. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, the first announcement of Harmon's assignment as commander of strategic air forces, Pacific ocean areas. The warship task force which shelled Iwo was commanded by Rear Adm. Allan E. Smith.

The crushing bombing and shelling of Iwo hit the nearest Japanese base from which the Nipponese have been staging nuisance raids on the Tokyo-raiding B-29s at Saipan.

Donald Nelson Confers with Australian Officials

CANBERRA, Australia, Dec. 8 (AP).—Donald M. Nelson, President Roosevelt's personal adviser, who is returning to the United States from meetings in China, and United States Minister Nelson Johnson conferred with Australian government officials today on economic matters.

EXPERTS REVEAL MARVELS OF B-29 GUNNERY 'BRAIN'

Little Black Box Tells Bullets Where to Go.

BY CHARLES GOTTHART.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 8.—One of the army's most closely guarded secrets—the central electrical gunnery control system that has helped Super Fortresses pour devastation on Japan—was disclosed today as the country began its fourth year of war against the Japs.

The system was credited with much of the success achieved by fleets of B-29s against Japanese targets.

Actual operation of the electronic and mechanical devices—lacking only real bullets—showed how the central system has enabled a gunner to sit in a pressurized bomber cabin and fire streams of bullets from one or more remotely located turrets at enemy planes.

Complex Mechanics Involved.

The gunner's job is reduced to keeping his sight on the enemy plane and pressing a trigger. The electronic and mechanical brains of the firing system aim and fire the guns at the point in space where bullets and enemy will meet. The highly complex mechanics involved are figured out to split-second accuracy by an electronic-mechanical computer that adjusts the firing to overcome the effects of speed, gravity, force of wind at high elevations, parallax, and other factors. Parallax is the difference in apparent direction of an object as seen from two points a problem arising from the gunner aiming at the target from one position and the gun firing at it from another.

From their protected positions, unencumbered by the heavy clothing formerly required against the extreme cold, the B-29 gunners are able to direct their fire from any angle. The chief gunner, operating like the quarter back on a football team, has virtually unlimited vision.

In actual operation, there are a series of sighting stations and several computers. The five gun turrets can be controled from interior sighting stations individually or in combination.

Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, assistant chief of air staff for the A. A. F. material and services division, said the highly effective protecting firing system was an important factor in the Super Fortresses' ability to carry heavy bomb loads unescorted over enemy territory with such little loss in bombers and crew members.

Power from Motors.

B. R. Prentice of the General Electric aeronautical and marine division gave this step by step account of the system's operation:

The sighting unit which holds the enemy target in view is controled by two handles which operate the trigger switch and put other parts of the system into motion.

The electrical parts to move the guns, mounted far away from the gunners, include electronic equipment and a series of motors. These motors, on the sighting stations and gun mounts, call into use more electrical power, sufficient to lift a 200 pound man holding by his hands to the end of the gun.

This power is sufficient to overcome the force of high wind against the gun.

Dials operated by the plane's navigator are set to show altitude, outside temperature, and speed of the bomber. With this information relayed to it, the electronic and mechanical brain in a little black box goes to work and computes exactly where the bullets should go. Factors computed by this device include the angle and speed of the enemy plane and air density. All have an important bearing on whether or not the bullets reach the target, and the experts said they hit the right spot with an accuracy far beyond the capacity of the human brain.

Viewed by B-29 Makers.

The manufacturers who viewed the demonstration included officials of some of the hundreds of companies that share in building the Super Fortresses. They were urged to greater efforts by Maj. Gen. Kenneth D. Wolfe, chief of engineering and procurement for the air technical command, who was the first tactical commander of B-29 formations based in India.

He said "serious work stoppages" that had developed in the B-29 program in the last three days "must be corrected at once. He termed the Super Fortresses the backbone of this country's campaign against Japan, and said the B-29 program was the "greatest industrial endeavor" in history.

One of the manufacturers of Super Fortress engines is the Dodge-Chicago corporation.

JAPAN ADMITS LOSS OF 168,000 MEN IN THIRD YEAR OF WAR

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Japanese imperial headquarters yesterday issued a tally of war casualties in the last year, admitting that the Japanese army and navy had suffered a loss of 168,000 men in killed and wounded. The bulletin then claimed that the United States had lost 226,000 casualties and Great Britain 78,000, "of which 20,000 were Britishers." These figures do not purport to show losses for the preceding two years of the war.

Belgians Wear Clothes Made from Human Hair

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 8.—More than 50,000 Belgians are wearing clothes produced from cloth made from human hair mixed with a small percentage of artificial silk, the Belgian news agency announced today. The haircloth factories were set up in the country during the German occupation, the agency said.

YANKS ADVANCE TO OUTSKIRTS OF ORMOC PORT

sunk and a seventh set afire Tuesday night west of Ormoc. They were loaded with personnel and presumably heading for Ormoc in one of many futile attempts to reinforce the Japanese garrison.

Hunt Jap Paratroopers.

Enemy paratroopers dropped near San Pablo inland from the Leyte east coast were being hunted down by organized groups.

Five more Japanese planes were brought down over western Leyte Thursday, bringing the total destroyed since the Ormoc landing to 67.

Gen. MacArthur also listed the downing of 14 other Nipponese aircraft attacking American shipping in Leyte gulf on the conquered east side of the island.

Today's bulletin reported a daylight attack Thursday by Liberators on Legaspi, southern Luzon. A 9,000 ton transport was destroyed by navy and marine planes that same day.

[George Folster, NBC reporter, said the 77th's landing "enables us to bring in by sea the all important heavy artillery which we have needed to batter Ormoc. Up to now the heavy rains and typhoon have made it impossible to get these supplies over the mountain trails from our bases on the east coast. Folster said the Leyte campaign already has cost the Japanese 1,036 planes, more than 50 transports and fighting ships and around 60,000 troops.]

"Worse Than Normandy."

The 24 hours following the United States landings on Ormoc were among the wildest of the war in the Pacific thus far.

The action—which some naval commanders who participated in the invasion of France said was "worse than Normandy ever was"—flared at dawn Thursday.

A convoy of more than 80 ships landed the fresh 77th infantry division on the lightly defended beaches three miles south of Ormoc without trouble.

Then the enemy swung into the fight with a fanatical air attack that lasted nine hours.

Fly Like Buzz Bombs.

Enemy pilots "flew with all the abandon of buzz bombs," Spencer Davis, AP correspondent, reported from a convoy flagship. He said the Camotes sea was strewn with their planes and sometimes two or three were dropping in flames simultaneously.

List Yank Air Victories.

FIFTH AIR FORCE, LEYTE, Dec. 8 (AP). —Official credit for the 600th Japanese plane shot down by the 49th fighter group went today to Maj. Gerald R. Johnson, Eugene, Ore.

Johnson, 3, total 22; Maj. Bong, Poplar, Wis., 2, total 38; Maj. Thomas McGuire, Ridgewood, N. J., 2, total, 30; Col. Charles MacDonald, Arlington, Va., 3, total, 20; Col. Robert Morrissey, Tecumseh, Neb., 1, total, 3; Lt. Col. George E. Walker, Council Bluffs, Ia., commander of the group, 1, his first.

Other pilots, with kills credited, include 2d Lt. Milden E. Mathre, Cedar Falls, Ia., two.

Gary Flyer Bags Two.

AT A LEYTE AIR BASE, Dec. 7 [Delayed]—(AP).—Maj. Bill Dunham's hard hitting Black Rams, a fighter unit, ran into 18 Japanese fighters today. Eleven were shot down and the remainder sent back to their bases shot up and disorganized. Dunham, of Nez Perce, Idaho, shot down four to run his personal score to 14.

Lt. Gerald Economoff, 604 W. 45th st., Gary, Ind., got two, his first in the Philippines.

HELD AS CIGARET THEFT AID.

James G. Monaco, 31, of 510 W. 26th pl. was held to the federal grand jury yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on a charge of receiving 51 cartons of stolen cigarets.

NAZIS PROTEST 'ILLEGAL' BLOWS BY U. S., BRITAIN

LONDON, Dec. 8 (AP).—Germany has sent notes to the American and British governments protesting "recent violations of international law, including attacks on German hospital ships in Italian waters and German field hospitals in Italy," the official German news agency D. N. B. announced tonight.

D. N. B. said the protests, transmitted by the Berlin foreign office thru Switzerland as the protecting power, demanded "thoro investigations and punishment of those found guilty."

D. N. B. said the notes cited 12 alleged violations. The German high command cited the alleged sinking of a hospital ship in its recent threat to abandon international war rules.

CERTAIN COUNTY STAFFS MAY GET EXTRA WORKERS

Members of the county board remained determined yesterday that their 1945 budget should show no increase over 1944's, but there were indications that certain county departments, whose increasing work has been bottle necked, may be granted additional employes. One department mentioned specifically was that of Sheriff Mulcahy.

Several commissioners, including Finance Chairman Daniel Ryan, had said they would resist all requests to enlarge staffs or to increase salaries.

It was acknowledged, however, that certain departments have been affected abnormally by war time conditions.

ENSIGN NIELSEN, EX-WAUKEGAN STAR, MISSING

Ensign Richard W. Nielsen, 23, has been missing in action since his plane crashed Nov. 23, the navy yesterday notified his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Christian W. Nielsen, 2112 Emmaus av., Zion. The notification failed to disclose the scene of the accident. Nielsen, a graduate and star athlete at Waukegan Township High school, enlisted two years ago and received his pilot wings at Corpus Christi, Tex., last March. His father is head mechanical engineer of the public works department at Great Lakes Naval Training center. A younger brother, 3d Class Petty Officer Donald, 21, is in the Pacific area.

7 YANK FLYERS TELL OF ESCAPE FROM NAZI TRAIN

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 6 [Delayed]—(AP).—In the luxurious lobby of the Hotel Metropole seven unshaven American airmen in tattered, scarecrow garb old today of their escape from a troop jammed German train which was taking them toward Germany.

The airmen, including an Illinoisan and an Iowan, made good their escape shortly after the British captured Brussels [21 words censored].

"On the train we escaped from the morning after Brussels fell," said Lt. Theodore H. Kleinman, Eugene, Ore., "there were 43 allied airmen captured when their planes were shot down.

"We were jammed in an otherwise empty baggage compartment 20 feet long, with nothing to sit on and only three small windows open for ventilation. We were kept there from Saturday morning until Monday and got a third of a loaf of German black bread a day apiece. Once we got a bit of bologna so sour and mouldy it made us retch. We were given no water."

Some Held Nearly Year.

"We had been in St. Gilles prison in Brussels since we were captured, some of us as long as nearly a year ago," said Lt. William Grosvenor, Colfax, Ia., whose plane had hit a telegraph pole while he was strafing a German locomotive in Belgium Nov. 30, 1943.

"In prison we got the same fare as the German troops—soup three times a week, usually pea soup; stew once a day—you could taste some kind of meat in it, but never see it—and black bread. We slept on straw filled bags full of fleas and lice. There was no soap. We got shaved once a week by a German army barber who rushed us thru with the thinnest coat of lather. We got a bath once a month."

The train on which they were being sent to Germany was derailed by Belgian Partisans and their baggage car was damaged so that they were left behind in the railyard on the eastern outskirts of Brussels. One by one, as their German guards dozed from too much cognac, they managed to slip away. They gathered at the Hotel Metropole, a prearranged rendezvous, where they now are enjoying real food. They are eating beefsteak, mashed potatoes, bread and butter, and drinking wine and beer for the first time in many months.

No Cigarets for Yanks.

Lt. John W. Brown, Eugene, Ore., whose plane was shot down near Liege on April 2, 1944, said there were no cigarets for American prisoners.

"We smoked dried hollyhock leaves and straw and even tried to smoke the ersatz German coffee grains, but they were so tough your lungs just backed up and wouldn't take it," said Brown, who had avoided capture until June 20. "I am an officer in the American army and I understand there are Geneva conventions on the treatment of prisoners, but I, a first lieutenant, had to snap to attention to a German corporal or get smashed with a rifle butt."

"The Germans were brutal beyond anything I believed possible," said Staff Sgt. Charles Hillis, Oakland, Cal., whose plane ran out of fuel on a Munich raid Aug. 12. "I lost 18 pounds in prison. We had five men in one cell eight feet wide by 15 feet long, which meant one of us had to sleep huddled around a slop bucket."

Grosvenor said he was thrown into a blacked-out cell for 29 days—a cell so tiny he scarcely could stir.

Others in the group were Staff Sgt. Donald H. Swanson, Minneapolis, Minn., who was shot down with Hillis in a Liberator bomber; Tech. Sgt. Kenneth Holcomb, 639 W. Pleasant st., Freeport, Ill., who was shot down July 20 and captured Aug. 18, and Tech. Sgt. Robert J. Piarote, Lebanon, Pa., who was shot down Jan. 29 and captured Aug. 8.

Pulled from River

The automobile of Max Pemoller of 5427 Addison st., which was stolen Thursday night while he was shopping, was recovered by Shakespeare avenue police yesterday from the north branch of the river at Ashland av. The car was partly submerged and had been stripped of accessories and a set of golf clubs, lace curtains, and Christmas purchases worth $70.

PLANES COLLIDE; ONE FALLS INTO BARRACKS; 10 DIE

Sioux Falls, S. D., Dec. 8 (AP).—Ten soldiers at the Sioux Falls army air field were killed late today when one of two planes that collided in midair crashed into a barracks on the field, Col. O. L. Rogers, commanding officer at the base, announced.

Seven men in the other plane involved parachuted to safety before their ship crashed near Renner, north of here.

Every one of the seven occupants of the plane which crashed into the barracks was killed. Three more men were killed in the barracks building when it was destroyed by fire. Two men in the barracks suffered minor burns.

Among the plane occupants killed in the crash was Staff Sgt. James D. Simmons, 26, Cairo, Ill., crew chief. Killed in the barracks was Pvt. Richard J. Barber, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Barber of Church st., Glenview, Ill.

[Pvt. Barber entered the army last February after graduation from Niles Township High school. The Barbers have another son, Pvt. Robert Barber, who is serving with the army in India.]

Both of the twin engined planes were used as "flying classrooms" for furnishing radio training in flight to advanced students and the ships were on "combat training missions," Col. Rogers said.

Chicagoan Lost in B-29.

Biloxi, Miss., Dec. 8 (AP).—Keesler field officials announced today the names of seven crew members missing from the 12 man crew of a Super Fortress after they had bailed out Nov. 27 over Chandeleur sound due to engine trouble.

The B-29 later was righted by its pilot and landed at Keesler field. Its home base is Great Bend, Kas. Three other crewmen were rescued and the body of a fourth has been recovered. Col. Robert F. M. Goolrick, Keesler field commander, said the search had been abandoned. Those missing included: 2d Lt. John Kelly, 29, engineer, husband of Mrs. Rosamond Kelly, 2338 North av., Chicago, and Pvt. Richard H. Little, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Little, Pine Village, Ind.

Chicagoan Is Injured.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 8 (AP).—Lt. Richard L. Kobza, navigator, of 8500 Escanaba av., Chicago, was critically injured in a bomber crash at North Atlantic base Thursday, the fourth ferrying group announced today. Two crewmen were killed and two others injured.

WAS CHICAGO ATTORNEY.

Lt. Richard L. Kobza, 28, of 8500 Escanaba av., army transport commander ferry plane navigator who was injured critically in a bomber crash near a North Atlantic base, was a Chicago attorney before he joined the army in 1942. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Laurence J. Kobza. He has four sisters, including Beatrice Kobza, who is in the WAVES.

16 MILLION IN FUNDS FOR SURVEYS KILLED AT BEHEST OF G.O.P.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—The house, approving an appropriation bill of nearly 400 million dollars for miscellaneous items, today struck from the measure more than 16 millions requested for surveys and studies by various departments.

The survey funds were eliminated at the insistence of Republican members, who suggested that in some cases the survey workers would be appointed by the Democratic national committee and that their services would be more useful in war production.

Rep. Case [R., S. D.] read the house an article from a Mitchell, S. D., newspaper stating that workers to be used for a 1945 farm census in the state would be named by the Democratic committee. The article, Case said, was in the Daily Republic, which he termed a "New Deal newspaper."

The bill, as adopted and sent to the senate, carries total appropriations of $399,230,312, compared with 415 millions recommended by the appropriations committee.

THE DE MILLE SUIT.

Cecil B. De Mille, the motion picture and radio producer, has made a test case of the power of labor unions to tax and regiment their members for political purposes. He has been granted a temporary injunction restraining officials of the American Federation of Radio Artists, an AFL union, from interfering with the radio program which he directs or from expelling him from the union because he refused to pay a political assessment of $1 to the union.

Mr. De Mille's plea, in his own non-legal language, is that no organization has the right "to make up a voter's mind for him." In all but one respect the De Mille case parallels the circumstances under which CIO unions tax their members for the support of the political action committee and the AFL International Ladies' Garment Workers' union imposed a similar formal assessment on its membership. The exception in the De Mille case was that the AFRA assessment was not for general political activity, but was made specifically to finance opposition to a measure in which the union could make some claim of direct interest, because of its effect on union activities. This was a proposed amendment to the California state constitution which, in the opinion of unions, forbade the closed shop.

The question is one which demands adjudication and if Mr. De Mille fails to find protection under the laws as they now exist a statutory remedy will be required. There can be no quarrel over the right of union leaders and union members to engage in political activity as individuals. That, obviously, is their right as citizens. The expediency of trade unions engaging in politics as backers of a political party is questionable. Samuel Gompers maintained that it would eventually harm unions to tie them to either of the major political parties, and until the formation of the PAC the American labor movement, in and out of the AFL, almost invariably followed Gompers' maxim of rewarding its friends and punishing its enemies at the polls.

The PAC raised new problems, those involved in the De Mille suit. A labor union is formed and legally sanctioned for economic purposes. The privileges that unions have been given, and which have been greatly enhanced in the last 12 years, have all been granted on the theory, sound in principle, that strong organizations for collective bargaining are essential to the health of an industrial civilization. Among these privileges, granted to strengthen collective bargaining, are various forms of compulsory membership, the closed shop, the union shop, and maintenance of membership, under which an increasing proportion of industrial, and some professional, workers are required to join a union and keep in good standing with it in order to earn their living.

It is on this substructure of powers granted for economic uses that the PAC and kindred organizations undertake to regiment union members politically. They can and they have taxed members of unions to support candidates, parties, and political causes to which some of those members, as individuals, are opposed. So long as the secret ballot prevails they cannot actually make up a voter's mind for him, but they can and they have circumscribed the right of union members to engage in political activity.

They can and they have forced members of unions to participate in demonstrations for candidates to whom they are opposed as individuals. They can and they have punished union members for engaging in political activity on behalf of candidates to whom the unions were opposed. The sanction by which they enforce these assessments and destroy the political independence of union members is the loss of union membership, and with it the denial of the opportunity to earn a living.

There is only one name for this, and that is political slavery. That kind of regimentation and free government cannot continue long to exist in the same country. Either the abuses will be curbed judicially or legislatively, or political freedom will die in America and free government, as we have enjoyed it for a century and three-quarters, will perish with it.

WHO'S FIRST WITH THE DOUBLE-CROSS?

The international civil aviation conference got under way with a torrent of high flown rhetoric and ends with everybody suspicious of the motives and good faith of everybody else. The Russians saved themselves trouble by staying away. The British, notwithstanding the fact that 80 per cent of air traffic will originate in this country, thought us grasping because we were reluctant to divvy up the business 50-50 with them. The conference, as a precursor to the more important decisions that are tied in with the Dumbarton Oaks world security program, indicates that nationalism is still abroad in the world and that our allies aren't going to sell themselves short.

The air conference developed an attitude among the British and our own colonials that it was downright selfish for this country not to hand everything over to Britain on a silver platter. Last Saturday, when it had become apparent that our difficulties with the British had predetermined that the air conference would bring nothing but an inconclusive compromise, the government announced that it had signed a commercial air agreement with Spain granting us the use of Spanish fields for passenger, freight, and mail over three routes into Europe and Africa. The announcement was the signal for the British press to go into a tantrum about our double-dealing. Its frenzy was scarcely exceeded by the fulminations of some American newspapers on the eastern seaboard.

The London Daily Herald grumpily asserted that "the air conference in Chicago is ending as it began—with America using a big stick." The London Times said that a lesson had been taught in "supposing that complicated and contentious international issues can be settled by the simple application of some broad general principle like nondiscrimination or freedom of the air."

The New York Herald Tribune joined the British chorus. "Diplomatic sources," it reported from Washington, "said that the United States-Spanish agreement, which the state department revealed was reached 'on the basis of most favored nation treatment,' may be the first of a series of such bilateral pacts between the United States and other governments. These sources said the agreement may have the purpose of demonstrating to the British government that multi-lateral agreements will result in more orderly international aviation development than the principles now being insisted upon by the United Kingdom.

"It was learned at the state department, however, that no significance should be attached to the fact that the agreement was announced before the conclusion of the Chicago conference and after the discussions there appeared destined to achieve only partial success."

The implication left by such comments from London and New York was that our government had put a final torpedo into the Chicago meeting by signing up with Spain without our ally's knowledge. Nowhere was it thought fit to mention that the American air agreement with Spain had been preceded by almost three months by a similar agreement between Britain and Spain, signed on Sept. 14, long before the British delegation came to Chicago to insist upon Britain's rights in post-war aviation. It seems that it was perfectly permissible for the British to follow this course, but that it was ungentlemanly if not treacherous for us to try belatedly to buy ourselves a little of the same sort of insurance.

STRENGTH THRU JOY.

What purports to be Hitler made another appearance by emanation on another anniversary recently. The beer hall putsch was the first celebration to get him as a spirit, not a person. The mysterious fuehrer, when he has a message for his people, now breathes himself into Herr Goebbels or Herr Himmler. Why, in his emanations, he does not care for the roomy apartments in the wide spreading carcass of Herr Goering is not understandable. In the days when the crystal ball showed happier omens, Goering was first in the succession. Now the marshal is strangely silent. This is contrary to his habit. His friends in England and elsewhere are beginning to fear that something has happened to the dear fellow.

Very little was made of the recent emanation of the fuehrer incarnating himself in Herr Goebbels. The occasion was the anniversary of the organizing of Strength Thru Joy. Herr Hitler briefly sent his best wishes and his hopes for many happy returns. The spooky leader could do no less and certainly could do no more. In Nazi Germany everything is organized—Joy, Terror, Frenzy, Folly, and Self-Destruction. Strength Thru Joy gave boat trips to grateful Germans, candy bars to the Hitler Jugend, walking tours in the mountains and forests, everybody getting strength by being totalitarianly joyous. The Cook county Democracy and the Tammany Chowder club also knew how to do it before Hitler.

It is probably only symbolically that the celebration of the Strength Thru Joy anniversary seems to be the greatest travesty which Germany could present at the present moment. The idea that happiness, climaxing in joy, is something to be derived from the active intervention of a government in the lives of people has a grotesque background in the progressive pulverization of Germany because of the ruthlessness and brutality of that government. An emanation of the fuehrer on the subject of joy is about as much as the physical conditions of Germany could tolerate.

Gen. Eisenhower has warned the German people that Nazi policies continued as the invasion advances will destroy hope in that country for generations. The Nazis, in their desperate fear of consequences to themselves, may do what Goebbels says they will do—destroy German history for a thousand years. They may ruin its material resources and make it impossible for its people to live in the country above a starvation level. As a people impoverished beyond recovery they will be surrounded by other peoples who have suffered from them, who are without sympathy or pity, and who will demand that they shift for themselves, starve if they must, die as lepers if they choose, and as outcasts from civilization, with no hand extended to them.

What the Thirty Years' war did to Germany will be trivial compared with the disaster the German people seem to be about to bring upon themselves. Their war is hopeless. Their leaders are destroying them. Their most vindictive enemies would be gentle by comparison.

Editorial of the Day

PUBLIC BUSINESS IS PUBLIC.

[Danville (Ill.) Commercial-News.]

The federal communications commission is a public agency. Its business is public business and its acts should be open to public inspection.

For a long time there has been smoke around the FCC. Yet when a house committee undertook to find out whether there was any fire, too, it voted to hear the evidence behind closed doors.

If the hearing involved questions of public safety such action might be justified, altho, like the flag, public safety is stretched to cover many evils.

But the present case involves the use of FCC power to renew or refuse to renew radio licenses to force sale of a radio station to owners more acceptable, for unexplained reasons, to members of the FCC.

Test Your Horse Sense

By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. A whatnot would most likely be seen in the Living room Bathroom Garage Bedroom
2. Which one alone of the following would probably be admitted to a formal party? Albatross Penguin Eagle Buzzard
3. Which one of these authors was a woman? George Eliot Lord Byron Mark Twain Sir Walter Scott
4. Which one of these would not be considered pneumatic? Tennis ball Football Golf ball Basketball
5. A gondolier should make one think of which food? Sauerkraut Spaghetti Corned beef Rice
6. The farm products named in the left hand column below are harvested at different times. Try to arrange them in the order in which the normal farmer puts them into his barn. You are entitled to one point for each correct judgment.

[a] Soybeans	[v] First in barn
[b] Wheat	[w] Second in barn
[c] Alfalfa [1st crop]	[x] Third in barn
[d] Corn	[y] Fourth in barn
[e] Timothy hay	[z] Last in barn

Score yourself as follows: 0-3, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

MR. PEPYS IN THE GROOVE.

9th Dec.—Dined among the Chicago Press Veterans, assembled in astounding numbers, a week ago and felt much rejuvenated, what with fellows whom I had known 40 years back recognizing me offhand, after a quick squint at my identification badge. It was our best annual, toastmastered to a merry crisp by Warren Brown, and now many veterans are hollering for similar occasions every three months, which causes me to think they overestimate their strength.

Had a visit, at my office, from the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker, alias Friar Tuck, who came to bring word of the death of the King of the Black Isles, otherwise J. U. Nicolson, who was this column's most famous poet in the 1920s. Have been getting letters about the King of late, asking what had become of him and where his books could be bought. A few minutes before Friar Tuck arrived, was glancing at the King's book, "The Sainted Courtezan," and thinking it ought to be given to the Newberry library.

The King managed a Chicago warehouse between poems, but he took to the simple life in New Hampshire some 10 years ago. Friar Tuck told me he became a wood chopper, for exercise, and died from injuries by a falling tree trunk.

Now to face the Christmas problem, which is serious. Last year took an oath I would do my Christmas shopping before July 4, but here I am again, like every one.

ANNUAL RESOLUTION.

My Christmas card roster of nineteen-ten
I have lost and searched for, and found again;
And it brings back the memories of many a year
As I study it now 'twixt a smile and a tear.
It is yellow, and faded, and dog-eared, and patched,
New names have been added and old ones scratched,
And I ponder the reasons, and find that it makes
A record of life with its joys and mistakes,
Its loves and its yearnings, its griefs and its shame,
As I run down the list and decipher each name.
Jim voted for Wilson. I crossed him out then,
Tho I blush when I think of the friend he had been.
And Mary I quarreled with after a ball
Over something that now seems nothing at all.
Ah, well, something brighter: Suzanne was a blonde
In the South, and I thought that a magical wand
Had been waved by the fairies to bring her my way—
There was rain on the jasmine when I came away.
And here is the name I have loved best in life,
The name of the girl who was later my wife;
I have not crossed it out, its beauty I save,
Tho I cannot send Christmas cards out to her grave.
And so I sit musing and nodding my head;
It is long past the time when I should be in bed.
This will not hang together much longer, I fear,

Mastermind in the Kitchen.

The head of the catering department ran his fingers thru his hair while he waited for Felix to bring the applicant for pastry cook. Everybody was complaining. A celebrity had complained about the butter rolls. A florid banker had threatened to take his indigestion elsewhere because of the mince pie, and innumerable comments had been made about the pastry. The commissary reported they were nearly out of sugar, and the butter ration was overdrawn.

Felix entered with the new man. The maitre asked the applicant, "Can you make butter rolls without butter?"

"Yeah, sure, easy," was the reply.

"Good. Can you make French pastry without sugar?"

"Yeah, sure, easy."

"Fine. Can you make mince pie without suet?"

"Yeah, sure, easy."

"Excellent!" exclaimed the boss. "Would you mind telling me how you do this?"

"Sure," said the applicant. "The sugar, the butter, and the suet I just leave out."

SNOW ON GRASS AGAIN.

It was but yesterday, it seems,
Our hearts were filled with summer dreams,
Now snow is on the grass again
Where once we felt soft April rain.
But roses die and leaves must fall,
So surely does time deal with all.

The years creep slowly by, my dear,
So many we'll forget, I fear,
That some day we will find we're old,
With many a youthful dream untold;
When thoughts drift back to long ago,
Where loved ones lie beneath the snow.

Strange Case of Invisible Dog.

Choppy says there is a dog around our apartment. He says he can hear him barking and walking around, and he can even smell him. He has looked all over, he says, but he cannot find a dog anywhere around the place.

One day, he says, we took him to a looking glass and we said, "See the doggie," but Choppy says he looked and he could see nothing that resembled a dog, so he quit looking right away and kept on hunting for the dog.

Choppy says it is kind of spooky, this hearing and smelling a dog everywhere but not seeing one, so he says he is going to a pet shop this Christmas to buy a dog for us.

YEAST—A FACTOR IN HYPERTENSION.

No condition deserves more study than the malady which is responsible for high blood pressure. We know full well that the arteries of the body cannot withstand more than a reasonable amount of overload. Despite the fact that they are elastic, they will not remain "stretchable" for long if the "pound" within them is too forceful.

Sometimes the symptom will come on so quietly that it is not detected until a routine examination reveals a level of 200 systolic or even more. On learning of the situation, more often than not, the victim will be plunged into a veritable tailspin. His emotions will be stirred up and, in consequence, the readings may mount to new "ceilings."

Within recent years physicians have discovered that not a few of these patients will respond readily to good hygiene, with plenty of rest and better nourishment. Many have become careless in their eating habits. It is not uncommon to discover one with a dangerously elevated tension, who is excreting albumin in the urine and whose tissues are really half starved. There is too much of certain edibles, with practically complete omission of basic requirements.

Every now and then, if one of these sufferers is enjoined to use brewer's yeast, combined with a correctly balanced diet, he will capture a new lease on life. A tablespoonful of the dried preparation three or four times per day is the usual prescription advised.

I have in mind a man who demanded meat, potatoes, gravy, and white bread at all meals except breakfast. His early morning repast was largely coffee. He consumed no milk or dairy products, no fresh fruit, and his intake of green vegetables was practically zero. When all of these elements were supplied, and brewer's yeast was added, his pressure dropped from 240 systolic to 175 within a period of three months. Continuing the dietary schedule, he has maintained that level consistently.

Furthermore, his daily program was reorganized. He was relieved as much as possible from the duties which drove him to distraction. The net result was improved judgment and greater efficiency.

One trouble with most of these individuals is that they eat too much. They take 3,000 calories when only 2,000 are needed. The result is clogging of the avenues of elimination. More work is thrown upon the kidneys than they can well perform. In this connection, we can look upon yeast as a food and it is far more valuable as a source of vitamin B than in pill form. There are so many ways in which it can be employed—rendered more palatable—that no one should object to its use.

The thing to do, of course, is to find the cause of hypertension—if possible. Should an infection be present, it can be eliminated. The cultivation of equanimity is a most important factor. But let's not forget the rôle of nutrition.

NOT RELAXED.

M. S. writes: Upon going to bed nights I see different things—landscapes, people, etc. These visions may be pleasant or otherwise. What causes this?

REPLY.

You have a vivid imagination which becomes playful when you are more asleep than awake. Overfatigue may be responsible. Sedatives are usually helpful.

DON'T DO THAT.

S. P. writes: I have the habit of kicking myself when I walk. As a result, the inner ankle bones often bleed because of the constant irritation. How can this be corrected?

REPLY.

Widen your stance. If you will practice an old American [Indian] custom and walk pigeontoed, the difficulty will disappear.

SURGERY NEEDED.

J. S. writes: Can cataracts be dissolved by the use of drops in the eyes?

REPLY.

Not a chance. The lens becomes cloudy and opaque and loses its power to function. Removal is the correct procedure, followed by the adjustment of suitable spectacles.

WATER AND LIFE.

J. P. writes: How long can a person live without water?

REPLY.

Four days or less seems to be the limit. This means, of course, no liquid food or fluid of any kind.

Purely Typographical.

An inspector general in the army, a graduate of the University of Chicago, could not understand the laughter of his office staff whenever a copy of the university's alumni magazine, to which he subscribed, arrived at his office. Recently he opened his mail personally and before his staff could count to 10 had written the following stern note to the university alumni office here:

"Altho I may have been accused of it on occasion, the title is not 'Suspector General,' as you have it on your mailing list."

The Tough Season Is Here.

In conformance with tradition, a matinee performance of the opera "Hansel and Gretel" will be given in the Civic Opera house Christmas eve. It is intended primarily for children, and consequently Santa Claus always attends. Old Santa was approached recently and asked if he could get there this year as usual and he said he would be glad to—if a platform was provided for him to stand on. "Why a platform?" the bemused officials asked. Santa bridled. "Well, if you must know," he said caustically, "last year a small boy came up to me and said, 'Santa, will you please turn around?' I did, and he kicked me."

Confusion.

A gentleman we know had reached the state eight months ago where he required artificial teeth. His dentist fixed him up, and he sallied proudly forth into the world. A week later he went back to the dentist in anguish. The teeth did not fit. The dentist gave him a perfunctory examination, told him he was being very silly, and sent him on his way. A month later, having existed for 30 days on malted milk, he again called on the dentist. Again he was admonished and sent along. Last week he went again. In the interim he had lost 65 pounds. This time he accosted the dentist with the pentup violence of eight months. "You fix these things so I can chew," he hissed, "or I'll knock your teeth out." The dentist looked at the man's mouth, looked at the teeth, and sauntered over to his records. Suddenly he gave a great start. "O, there's been a little mistake here," he said quickly. "Those teeth never were intended for you."

Inadvertent Error.

Several weeks ago, in delineating the exciting impact of radio on the home of a newcomer to the Quiz Kids, Maureen Buckley, this department intimated that Maureen's cultural background was limited. This was a regrettable [and regretted] error. Maureen is a direct descendant of Sir Isaac Newton on her maternal side, a great-niece of James Canon Sherwin of Dublin, and her family, on both sides, overflows with educators, including the Mother Superiors of three large convents.

Tidbits of Information.

Australians turn up the sides of their hats [those wide-brimmed army field hats] because they carry rifles over their shoulders. It's as simple as that. . . . The term 'stool pigeon,' now associated with an informer, at one time actually was a pigeon on a stool and an important factor in the extinction of the passenger pigeon, one of the most beautiful American native birds [bulletins Edward J. Slezak]. The passenger pigeon had a peculiar characteristic of attempting to assist a wounded fellow pigeon by encircling him on the ground. Knowing this, hunters would capture a pigeon, sew its eyelids, damage its wings, place it on a stool, and force it to fly blindly in a circular manner near migrating areas until it fell to the ground exhausted. Other pigeons swooped down by the hundreds to aid it. Hunters, armed with huge nets, then moved in. . . . The axis stronghold, Eger, in Hungary, which the Russians captured a week or two ago, has the same coat-of-arms as England [according to Frank Kovatch]. It once was the capital of the Anglo-Saxons, who migrated from there to England. Eger, Egel, Engel, Engelmann, Englishman. See?

ON BEHALF OF HIS BUDDIES.

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, Nov. 14.—I am writing this letter from a hospital bed, here in France.

I was greeted by the President in a letter on Dec. 7, 1943, and inducted into the army Jan. 26, 1944. I was proud, and still am proud, of the uniform I wear and what it represents. Before that, when the blood bank in Chicago was opened, I gave my first blood Feb. 6, 1942, and gave blood six times after that in blood banks stretching all the way to California.

This all took place before I ever dreamed that some day I might need blood to save my life. Thank God, I don't need it, and will be able to give more of this precious liquid as soon as I am permitted to, right here where it may save some mother's son, some wife's husband, or some girl's sweetheart.

It is the patriotic duty of every one able to give blood, to give, give, and give. I don't think there is any one back home who hasn't been hurt or affected by the war. PVT. S.F. NESS.

MAKING THOSE ROOSEVELT JOBS.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—During the recent political campaign I wondered how President Roosevelt, if reelected, would be able to keep his repeatedly made promise to provide work for every one after the war, but now I believe that I have finally found the solution.

Of the 11 million in our armed forces he will probably want to retain about 5 million in military service to police the world; he will double or triple the number of government bureaus, and they in turn will require at least another 2 million government employes; he will establish a Gestapo of 1 million men to see that the orders of the bureaus will be enforced; in a year or thereabouts at least 2 million office workers in private industry will be so worn out with filling out government reports that they will have to be provided for in mental institutions, and this will require about 1 million extra hospital attendants. Work will be provided for every one and the problem will be solved to the satisfaction of all. O. H. E.

WHY BONDS ARE CASHED IN.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—I went to the bank today, and what do you think? There were lines of people, who would be terribly hurt and insulted if they were told they were unpatriotic or that they may be the cause of the death of many of our boys who are fighting for them, waiting to cash in their war bonds.

There are three reasons, and only three, why any one should cash in bonds now:

1. Stupidity, which would cause them to think the war is just about over and their money is no longer needed.

2. Dire need of money—which would include very few of them, considering there are very few who aren't getting more now than ever before.

3. Distrust in the government and doubt about being able to collect later.

The third reason is most popular even if none will admit it, and most stupid of all. If the government "goes broke," as they put it, "they don't want to have worthless bonds on their hands," so they swap them in for paper dollars which would be just as worthless. CARLOS.

CHIANG AND THE COMMUNISTS.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—It is just possible that the Stilwell incident and other things that are happening give us a cue to some of the promises that may have been made at Teheran. Gen. Stilwell, it appears, was instructed to deliver to Chiang Kai-shek an ultimatum that the American army must be given wide authority in China, and one of the objectives would be to coördinate the Chungking armies with the communist armies in the north. Chiang apparently smelled a mouse here—and would have none of it. Gen. Stilwell was then recalled. In this country the left wing press and its innocent affiliates have begun to put the smear on Chiang. We have been told that he and his wife have separated—and that he has concubines. This apparently has been shown up as a lie. The rumors [promoted by some of our columnists and radio commentators] also tell us that the communist ragtag armies in the north are superior to Chiang's armies. If that is true it doesn't speak very well for the support we are supposed to be giving Chungking. This whole thing begins to look like another possible Balkan deal where Tito [the Moscow trained Communist] was built up to take over Yugoslavia while Mihailovitch was smeared out of the picture.

Isn't it time for Americans to begin to be realists—and view what is happening thruout the world in its true light—and in its real meaning to our own future? GEO. W. ROBNETT.

FOXHOLE PAC.

Elmhurst, Ill., Dec. 5.—So Sidney Hillman is abroad, going to visit the boys at the front. Do you suppose he is going to extract a dollar from each on threat of losing his job if he resists? ESTHER G. VAN SCHOICK.

Midland, Tex., Dec. 4.—The local paper today reports that Sidney Hillman and two other CIO leaders, now in London, will visit Belgium and France. Why are politically interested rabble rousers allowed to travel in a so-called restricted Europe? Are they really on a tourists' tour of Europe, or is it true that they very likely were given army transportation to wander around the world to spread their own type of "isms"? D. R. A.

GREEK TO HIM.

Waukegan, Ill., Dec. 6.—This morning's Tribune headline reads, "British Battle Greek Mob." Why is it that when the British fight Greeks they are called a mob and when the Germans fight Greeks they are called patriots?

Chicago, Dec. 7.—1. Please state the advantage of stamping "No Protest" on checks before they are cashed. C. Z.

Panel Reaches a Verdict After 6½ Hours.

Cecil Smith, 38, acting chairman of the music department of the University of Chicago and associate professor of music, was found not guilty of a morals charge by a jury of 10 women and two men before Judge Oscar S. Caplan in the Municipal court last night. The jurors returned their verdict at 11:15 p. m., after six and a half hours of deliberations.

John W. Pyle, 4716 Beacon st., one of the two men jurors, said that six ballots were taken. The vote on the first, he said, was 9 to 3 for conviction. Succeeding ballots brought more not guilty votes, and the last holdout for conviction, Pyle said, was Mrs. Elizabeth Green, Negro, of 6203 South Park Way.

Thanks His Attorney.

Smith and several of his friends, including Kellogg Fairbank Jr., 2640 Lake View av., and Dr. Marthe L. Gassmann, psychiatrist at the University of Illinois, received the verdict happily. The music professor thanked his lawyer, Emmet F. Byrne.

The charge against Smith was brought by Gilbert Dunn, 18, of Anderson, Ind., a naval seaman. He testified that Smith molested him while sitting in the Clark theater, Clark and Madison sts., early the morning of Nov. 30.

Smith Denies Charges.

Smith, testifying in his own behalf, described himself as a graduate of the University of Chicago and Harvard. He said he had attended a dinner party in Fairbank's home the night of the alleged incident, that he had had a few drinks, and that he stopped at the movie en route to his home after the party.

The music teacher said also that he is near sighted, and when he entered the movie he went to the nearest seat, which happened to be next to Dunn. He said he accidently touched Dunn, but denied molesting him. The sailor threatened him, Smith said, and he left.

Fairbank, Dr. Gassmann, and several other men and women active in the arts testified as character witnesses for Smith.

"I only invited them to dinner for your sake, honey. You've been stuck here so long I thought you'd enjoy company."

SLAYS EX-WIFE, KEEPS BODY IN CAR ALL NIGHT

War Worker Drives 70 Miles, Surrenders.

Richmond, Ind., Dec. 8 [Special].—After keeping the body of his divorced wife in his automobile all night while he slept at a hotel, Orval Johnson, 40, a war plant worker, drove here today and confessed to police that he shot her to death at Decatur last night when she refused to remarry him.

Johnson was quoted as relating that he was awakened during the night by dogs barking around the car but upon investigating and finding that the body of the mother of his three children had not been disturbed, he went back to his room and resumed his sleep.

Divorced a Week Ago.

The slain woman was Mrs. Mary E. Johnson, 30, of Decatur, who obtained an uncontested divorce a week ago today on grounds of cruelty.

Johnson drove up in front of police headquarters here today, went in and told Chief Ellis Duckett what he had done. Police found the body, covered with a table cloth, on the floor of the car. Johnson said he had intended to commit suicide but lost his nerve.

Early last evening he telephoned his former wife and tried to talk with her about a reconciliation but she hung up on him. He took his revolver and went to the home where she lived with their children, 8 to 12 years old.

Spurns His Final Plea.

He arrived at the house just as Mrs. Johnson was driving away. Jumping onto the car, he made a final plea for a reunion. When she refused and screamed, he shot her thru the heart. She fell out of the car, whereupon he picked her up and laid her on the floor in the back.

Then he got into the car and drove to the near-by town of Red Key where he stayed at a hotel. About 3 a. m. he went down to the car when he heard the dogs barking, but went back to bed and slept until 5. Needing gasoline and finding no filling stations open, he went back to the hotel and had breakfast, then obtained the fuel and "started driving south."

He stopped at Richmond, which is about 70 miles south of Decatur, after allowing himself time to concoct a story he first told about shooting his ex-wife in self-defense.

Later in the day authorities from Decatur came here and took Johnson back to that city, where it was expected he would be immediately indicted on a charge of murder by the county grand jury now in session there.

COURT TOLD HOW CORPORAL SLEW ACCUSED RAPIST

Watertown, N. Y., Dec. 8 [Special].—A marine corporal and his wife sat stolidly in City court today as a Watertown restaurant owner told how the corporal fatally stabbed his "best friend," whom the wife had accused of raping her last September.

The two are Corp. and Mrs. Arthur D. Foster, who are charged with the murder of Robert E. Hodkinson, 35, father of five children. Today's hearing was held before City Judge Crandall F. Phillips to determine whether the Fosters should be bound over to the January grand jury. It will be continued Monday.

Anthony Costanzo, owner of Gallo's restaurant, said Foster, who is a Pacific battle veteran, and Hodkinson had had a "friendly" chat over drinks the night of Nov. 16 before the marine left and returned with his wife, Lillybell. Costanzo said the couple went to Hodkinson's booth where Mrs. Foster pointed to Hodkinson. A quarrel ensued, Costanzo said, during which Foster struck his friend several times with a knife. Hodkinson died in Mercy hospital 20 minutes later.

HOLDS OPA PRICE REIN IS CURB TO BUTTER SUPPLY

A continuation of the butter shortage was forecast yesterday by John Brandt, Minneapolis, Minn., president of the National Cooperative Milk Producers federation, unless the office of price administration changes federal price policies affecting butter. He made the statement after the federation, meeting in the Morrison hotel, adopted a resolution urging development of a federal price policy which will give producers of cream for butter a price comparable to the return for other dairy products.

Brandt also said loopholes in the wholesale price ceiling orders have permitted vast quantities of cream that ordinarily would go into butter production to go into storage in the hope that the ceiling regulations would be changed.

The dairymen adopted a second resolution condemning the present parity formula as applied to milk products, calling it "unsound and unfair."

KELLY SUGGESTS NEW APPROACH TO O. K. BOOKIES

Rumors that the legalized handbook idea may be revived and introduced in the forthcoming legislative session came as news to Mayor Kelly yesterday, but he said he approved. He sponsored a similar bill which was passed by the assembly, but vetoed by Gov. Horner, in 1935.

"I am in favor of permitting people to bet if they want to and I don't know why a man should not be allowed to make a bet at a place near his home just as if he went out to the track," the mayor said. "Probably the way to legalize books would be to make the operators agents of the tracks and to arrange some way to have the bets entered in the mutuel pools."

State's Atty. Tuohy, who took office last Monday, said he thought that the legislature, "because it is the lawmaking body," is where the matter should be decided.

Police Commissioner Allman said the arrangement could be a source of revenue for the city and "would relieve the police of a lot of headaches."

Gov. Green, who vetoed a handbook bill in 1941, said he had no comment.

WFA Seeks Writ to Keep Firm Within Spice Quota

Suit for a permanent injunction restraining John Sexton & Co., wholesale grocers at 500 Orleans st., from further alleged violations of a war food administration order restricting delivery of spices to retailers was filed in federal District court yesterday. The suit, filed by Assistant United States Atty. Kenneth S. Nathan, charges that the firm exceeded its delivery quotas by 265,000 pounds during the last two years.

CONGRESS VOTES TO FREEZE TAX, IGNORING F. D. R.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—Ignoring the Roosevelt administration's recommendations, the senate voted late today to save American wage earners three-quarters of a billion dollars in taxes by freezing the 1945 social security tax rate at 1 per cent for both workers and employers.

The vote was 47 to 19 on a bill which the house passed, 262 to 72. Many congressional leaders predicted President Roosevelt will veto the measure.

Under the social security law the 1 per cent rate would have automatically doubled Jan. 1 had congress not acted. Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], sponsor of the freeze, said social security tax collections would have been three billion dollars under the 2 per cent rate.

Wide Revision Threatened.

Sen. Vandenberg, who had thrice previously led successful moves to prevent automatic increases, announced he will ask a congressional study of the entire social security structure, which other senators said may bring a revision to the social security system.

Sen. Wagner [D., N. Y.], who was reëlected with the personal support of President Roosevelt by the Democratic and American labor parties, led the fight for the tax increase after Chairman George [D., Ga.] of the finance committee had urged that the rate be frozen.

Wagner said the workers would be "glad" to pay the higher rate and told of its support from the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Urges Easing of Burden.

But Vandenberg, as George had done before him, pleaded to ease the burden on white collar workers, who do not enjoy the high pay of industrial workers.

Vandenberg told the senate the freeze would not affect any future legislation.

150th Broadcast Is Celebrated

W-G-N TO GIVE OPERETTA NEVER ON AIR BEFORE

"Waltz Dream," Oscar Strauss' lyrical Viennese operetta, will have its radio premiere on the Chicago Theater of the Air before an audience of 4,500 persons in Medinah temple from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight over W-G-N, WGNB, and Mutual.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will speak.

Marion Claire, soprano, will be starred in the production. Gilbert Russell, tenor, will sing the role of Lt. Nikki. Supporting singing roles will be taken by Earle Wilkie, baritone, and Ruth Slater, contralto.

Music for the production will be provided by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and the chorus coached by Robert Trendler.

The Citizens of Tomorrow program will observe its 150th broadcast on W-G-N at 10 a. m. today by saluting Flower Technical High school. Sophia A. Theilgaard, principal, is to introduce Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies, who will add two more names to the show's honor roll: Lois Vivian Green, Flower High senior, and June Yolton, Bloomington High school senior. Hermon Dunlap Smith, grandson of Mrs. Lucy Flower, after whom the school was named, will speak. The Flower choir, directed by Lydia F. Cleaver and accompanied by John A. Wiederhirn, will offer two selections. News of school activities is to be presented by Margaret Gilmer.

GET A WAR JOB! KEEP IT!

This is an emergency. Something has happened which has vastly increased need for warworkers in a number of key industries immediately, in this area. Our armed forces in Europe have advanced with such amazing speed—and the fighting there and in the Pacific is now so intensely violent—that we have actually used up ammunition and supplies intended for use next MARCH . . . Shells are being rationed on some fronts . . . General Eisenhower states that Aachen could have been taken several days sooner, and many American lives could have been saved, if we had been able to fire more shells.

Other materials and equipment—such as tanks, jeeps, big guns, small arms ammunition, aircraft engines—are also needed desperately.

The warworkers of Chicago and Northern Illinois have already done a magnificent production job. But now, while the European fighting is at a critical stage and the Pacific struggle is expanding, more production than ever is needed. If you have a war job, keep it. If you haven't, please get one.

Unfortunately, our military successes have led many people to believe our need for war production is nearly at an end. THIS IS NOT TRUE. W. P. B. has just announced that war production will probably not be cut back much more than 15% when Germany is defeated—because we will need so much firepower and equipment to defeat Japan.

Help shorten the war—get a war job and keep it. Call your nearest United States Employment Service office for information about the "must" plants in which you can do the most good.

CHURCHES TO AID CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE TOMORROW

Religious Leaders Back Institute's Appeal.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Christmas Seal Sunday will be observed tomorrow in the city's churches under sponsorship of the Cook County Tuberculosis institute. This is the 38th year of the sale of the stamps that adorn Christmas letters and packages.

The institute calls attention to the use of funds obtained from the sale of the colorful stamps as making possible the year round educational, preventive, and clinical battle being successfully waged against the ravages of the disease which the folk of another generation called "consumption."

Posters Sent to Churches.

Christmas seal posters have been sent to pastors of all churches of the county for display in narthex bulletin boards and social and educational rooms of all churches. Many pastors will call attention to the Christmas seal sale from chancel or pulpit.

Dr. Harrison Ray Anderson, of Fourth Presbyterian church, president of the Chicago Church federation, said: "Another battle is being won. It is the battle against tuberculosis. Surely all Christian churches will want to help in every way they can on this front."

Stritch Boosts Seal Sale.

Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch, of the Catholic archdiocese, said: "I want to tell you how much I appreciate the work of the [tuberculosis] institute in our community. I recommend the annual Christmas seal sale and hope sincerely that from it will be derived the funds which will be necessary to carry on and expand the work."

Rabbi Jacob Singer, Temple Mizpah: "We gladly join all people of good will in the campaign against the white plague. I pray that the Christmas seal sale shall meet with a generous response."

MODERATOR HITS CATHOLIC AIMS IN S. AMERICA

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 8 (AP).—The Rev. Roy Ewing Vale of Indianapolis, national moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, tonight said the Protestant church "cannot for one instant yield to the demand of the Roman Catholic hierarchy that we shall withdraw from missionary work in South America."

"The Constitution of the United States," he said in an address at the annual moderators' dinner here, "guarantees religious freedom" and guarantees Protestants and Catholics alike "the right and indeed the duty to propagate their form of faith."

The Rev. Vale said he referred to recent statements made by Catholic bishops and archbishops in which, he said, missionary attempts by other groups than Catholic in Latin America were resented and criticised as a deterrant to more friendly relations between the United States and South America.

CHARGES MATE INCORPORATED HIS SPITE IDEA

Mrs. Ireta Aranson, 32, of 1260 N. Dearborn st., filed suit for separate maintenance in Superior court yesterday against Arthur A. Aranson, 61, manufacturers' representative, whom she charged with cruelty and with organizing a corporation to take over his assets and place them beyond reach of her and their adopted child.

Mrs. Aranson's suit asked also for an injunction restraining him from disposing of his property, which she said was worth $250,000, and restraining 16 companies with which he has business relations from diverting money due him. She said his income is $75,000 a year.

The suit stated they were married April 22, 1936, and separated yesterday. She charged him with striking her last July 3 and with threatening last Tuesday to leave her without support. She asks custody of their adopted daughter, Mareta, 4.

Shirley Garnett Troth Is Told at Cocktail Party

BY JUDITH CASS.

At a cocktail party for close friends yesterday in their Evanston home, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Logan Garnett announced the engagement of their daughter, Shirley, to Lt. [j. g.] William Colgan Moffat Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Moffat of Winnetka. Lt. Moffat, who is at home on leave after serving a year and a half in the South Pacific, was present to receive congratulations. He leaves tomorrow for his new post in Portsmouth, N. H.

Miss Garnett, a talented artist, attended the Roycemore school, Farmington, and Stuart College of the Arts in Boston. She also attended school in Lausanne, Switzerland, and was introduced to society four years ago. She is a member of the Evanston Junior league and serves as a Red Cross nurses' aid in the Evanston hospital.

Lt. Moffat was graduated from Leland Stanford university in 1937.

Lt. and Mrs. Linus Owen Smith of Winnetka announce the engagement of their sister, Miss Elizabeth Buckingham of Oak Park, to Lt. Comdr. Robert Haswell Clarke, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Lemist Clarke of Brookline, Mass. Miss Buckingham, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Buckingham of Oak Park, is a graduate of Coe college and is serving as a nurses' aid in the West Suburban hospital.

Comdr. Clarke, who was graduated from Harvard in 1936, served for 22 months in the Hawaiian Islands and now is stationed at Glenview. The wedding will take place next month.

Wedding News.

The announcement which Lt. William Jeffreys Hudson of the navy and Mrs. Hudson of Kenilworth are making today reveals that their sister, the former Miss Mary Oakley de Tarnowsky, has been a bride for more than three weeks. Her marriage to Herbert W. Thomas of the navy, son of Mrs. C. William Thomas of Chicago, took place Nov. 14 in the new Episcopal cathedral in San Francisco, Cal. Now that Mr. Thomas has reported for duty as a quartermaster with the Pacific fleet, his bride is back at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., where she is stationed as a lieutenant in the WAC.

The bride, a daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. George de Tarnowsky of Chicago, was graduated from the Francis W. Parker school and Bradford Junior college. She also spent a year abroad at the Florentine School for Girls, which was headed by her aunt, Miss Mary Nixon. Mr. Thomas was graduated from the Parker school and took a specialized course at the University of Chicago.

Here and There.

Somewhere in the Pacific, Lt. Elliot Wadsworth Dalton will hear of the arrival of a daughter, his first child, yesterday in Passavant hospital. The baby's mother is the former Marie Louise Hulburd, and the infant has been named Julia Howe after her maternal great-grandmother and her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Philip S. Dalton of Boston, whose maiden name was Howe. Young Mrs. Dalton is living for the duration with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. DeForest Hulburd, in Lake Forest. Mr. Hulburd just has been put on the navy's inactive list, having served for many months as a lieutenant commander. He has returned to Lake Forest.

Also put on the navy's inactive list recently was Lt. Comdr. Woodbury S. Ober. He arrived from the Pacific early in the fall, and after a short stay in Washington, D. C., returned as a civilian to Lake Forest, where he and Mrs. Ober have reopened their home. Their daughter, Nancy, will come from Chatham for the holidays.

A tea which Miss Naomi Donnelley planned tomorrow for Dr. Stefanus Gie, minister to Washington from the Union of South Africa, and Mrs. Gie, has been cancelled as Mr. Gie has to return to Washington.

Week-End Events.

The Chicago Historical society is giving a reception and tea from 5 to 7 p. m. tomorrow as a preview of the pictorial section of the annual Photographic Society of America Salon, held in Brooklyn from Oct. 27 to Nov. 19. The show was so well received that it was decided to send part of it to Chicago so that photographic enthusiasts of the midwest could see it. The exhibit will be opened to the public Monday.

Stuyvesant Peabody, who recently was chosen one of the five outstanding photographers in the United States by the Photographic society, officiated as a judge when the show opened in the east. He and James M. Hopkins, vice president of the Historical society, and Mrs. Hopkins will receive at the reception here. Mr. Peabody, a trustee of the Historical society and chairman of its photographic committee, is represented in the judges' section of the display.

Big Sisters Party

Miss Bette Mae Nash, whose mother, Mrs. Richard J. Nash Jr., is chairman of a Christmas supper party the Big Sisters will give tomorrow in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Cocktails will be served at 5 p. m. and supper at 6.

Koussevitzky Is Glad to Pay Chicago a Visit

The volcanic temperament many critics attribute to Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra, was not apparent yesterday when he received reporters, photographers, and radio network representatives in his hotel suite.

Dr. Serge Koussevitzky.

He was in rare good form and glad to be back in Chicago after an absence of five years. But reporters, who had read the colorful and dramatic antics credited to him, were a bit skeptical about his high spirits and good humor. After all, wasn't he the conductor who halted a concert and walked off the stage because he was angered at late comers? Didn't he refuse to conduct a series of concerts in Milan after he learned of a political attack on his fellow conductor, Arturo Toscanini? And didn't he ban smoking between rest periods by members of his orchestra on the ground that it was "disrespectful to art?"

This musician was a good natured little man who joked and walked around the room with his hands clasped behind his back. He expressed delight with the view of the lake, inquired about the members of the orchestra who had come to Chicago on a slower train, and permitted photographers to take shot after shot.

"This isn't the Koussevitzky critics write about," one reporter whispered to another. "This is the Koussevitzky who gained the distinction of being the 'finest virtuoso of all time on the double bass.'"

And did the Russian born musician who is ranked by authorities as one of the greatest of all conductors frown when he overheard that? He did not. He recalled that he left home with only three rubles in his pocket to study the double bass under Rambaussec and later traveled thru Europe as the acknowledged master of the instrument. He even admitted he now conducts rehearsals in baggy pants and an old sweater.

When reporters failed to get around to the subject of music, he wondered why. When he was told the reporters present were more familiar with murders, holdups, and such news, he beamed. "This is the best interview I ever had," he concluded.

Thru the Looking Glass

There's a touch of pre-war luxury about one of the opulent perfumes offered for your gift hunting this Christmas. It's done up in soft silk and cobwebby lace, and as a perfume it's entirely on the lush side. It's much the kind of package that makes women's fingers itch. One of our friends told us she found it irresistible because it looked and felt and even smelled "pink," and its ownership made her feel as tho she inhabited a pink world—all sweetness and soft clouds.

Perfume in silk and lace case.

It would be extremely difficult to describe the scent, but its base seems to us to be something heady and sweet that could easily be a good jasmine. Actually it defies identification, being one of those tricky blends that is extremely complex and has succeeded in its deliberate effort to be rather elegantly tantalizing. It's the kind of a perfume you know will enchant the woman who cherishes beautiful clothes and French furniture and all things de luxe.

Flacons of this, handsome in themselves, come set like jewels in circular cases of pink silk, with top and sides covered in the most delicate lace, also tinted the soft pink of a tea rose. It's $18.50 and up, depending on the size of the bottle.

Chicago Hears Superb Music Perfectly Done

Symphony No. 5 ..... Shostakovich

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

What an orchestra, what a conductor, and what a concert! The Boston Symphony orchestra under the direction of Serge Koussevitzky paid one of its rare visits to Chicago last night, and Orchestra hall was packed to do it honor. Packed with people, with magnificent music, with a wealth of gratitude for that music, and with the mysterious affinity created when a deeply affected audience is held in thrall by superb performance.

For the first of his two concerts [the other takes places tomorrow afternoon in the Civic Opera house], Mr. Koussevitzky chose two symphonies, the monumental "Eroica" of Beethoven, and that lode star of the modern repertory, the Shostakovich Fifth. Not since the nights of Frederick Stock had Orchestra hall heard such music. In fact, there were many who said that, closing their eyes during the "Eroica," they could conjure that beloved presence, so richly was it felt in the music.

For Mr. Koussevitzky, like all great conductors, is—where music is concerned—a simple man. He has great dignity, so native to him that it gives him no concern. He has puckish humor. Did you note how he brought in the timpani in the national anthem merely by lifting those faintly Mephistophelean brows? He has a magnificent ear for music, an uncanny gift for keeping a great orchestra in superb equilibrium, and the technical skill to communicate his own vast knowledge, both to his players and to his audience. He is a master craftsman who brings music richly, warmly, magnificently to life.

His orchestra is the carefully wrought masterpiece of a lifetime. You do not say of the Boston orchestra that its strings are superb, which they are, or that its winds and brass have a special glory, which they have. You say Boston has the finest orchestra in the country, which nowadays means the finest in the world. You say that, you observe Mr. Koussevitzky's sensitively authoritative presence, and you leave the rest to them, while you relax and listen.

In so many ways the Beethoven was like Stock's. It was all of a piece, leading in cumulative splendor to one mighty climax. It was fresh and beautiful to the ear, with a glory that was like the wind on a mountain top and a compassion that walked with you in the valleys. It was the "Eroica" in all its mighty implications, the utterance of a giant that lesser men could understand. Tonally, structurally, imaginatively, it was a heroic performance. And those tricky horns in the trio? Well, last night you would have thought Beethoven loved horn players.

In its own way the Shostakovich was no less richly realized. For all his long residence in this country which idolizes him, Mr. Koussevitzky is a Russian. He has that music in his bones and it pours from his fingertips with singular brilliance. For one thing, he does not try to make it a showpiece, tho when he gets thru with it, your spine is tingling. He gives it a kind of stark dignity, a gleaming, glittering vitality. He does not consider the scherzo amusing, or even particularly sardonic. In his hands it becomes arrestingly dramatic. The largo he turned in a molten mesmerism, spun in a filament of tone that rose challengly to its climax, then slipped again into the exquisite tension that only a great orchestra can accomplish. Then, and only then, did he turn loose the furies of Shostakovich that some conductors batter from start to finish of his symphonies. As I seem to have said before this morning, what an orchestra, what a conductor—and what a concert!

A 23 year old Chicago girl, Ruth Goodman, is the only feminine fiddler in Tommy Dorsey's orchestra. Her husband, Joseph Goodman, is a violinist with the same orchestra. She believes they are the only married couple playing together on the same dance bandstand. . . . One of the nicest gestures to cheer the girls whose hearts are overseas has been made at Gregg college, where Christmas music is played every morning, a big candle burns brightly, and a Christmas tree stands complete with packages. Best of Year's Bags Offered for Christmas

BY REA SEEGER.

The best of the bag collections are those reserved for Christmas gift buying. This year it's just as sure fire a selection, even tho the bags are of war time fabrics and materials. Leather bags are priced at stratospheric figures, with the alligator models the most practical because they'll wear literally for years and years. They, too, can be matched with footgear, in brown, green, gray, or black.

Fabric bags, the smartest available, are of broadcloth, felt, and wool, each done with the same exquisite workmanship as was accorded fine leathers before the war. The most effective frames are stunning simulated tortoise shell, used for clasps, buckles, initialed monograms, and dramatic frames to which the fabric is attached. Large, small, and medium sized collar bag models are tremendously effective with street clothes, and the tambourine shapes covered in ribbed fabrics resembling faille or bengaline, make dress parade models to go with smart afternoon and town clothes. The inner fittings are equal to those of any prewar models, too.

Very swank satin bags in dark, dark brown, and dull sheened black are princely gift items. These come in pouches, demure Victorian shapes, in reticules with tasseled fringe, in handsome quilted effects, and as still more handsome beaded and embroidered affairs. Suede and doeskin are luxuries, so are the fur bags and the bags of suede or fabric trimmed with fur. Beautiful evening bags of shimmering brocades, satins, and metallics provide the glamour of this season's holiday collections. Pastels, white, vivid shades of green and red, a few gold tones and purples, and gorgeous bags of dazzling multicolored brocades and satins and all over beadwork complete the assortments.

Hepcat Movie Mixes Music and Romance

"SWEET AND LOW DOWN."
A Twentieth Century-Fox picture, directed by Archie Mayo, starring Benny Goodman and his band, Linda Darnell, Lynn Bari, Jack Oakie and James Cardwell, and presented at the Garrick.

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Here's an item for the hepcats, but it's smooth enough that, if it's anywhere near your alley, you can take it without ear plugs. It takes you behind the scenes of a big name band—Benny Goodman's—and mixes authenticity with about equal portions of romance and music, with an Horatio Alger angle for good measure.

It starts with Benny—who is just his plain, everyday self, no mugging—taking his band back to the Halsted st. settlement house where he started, to play for the kids. One of the kids tricks him into hearing his brother, James Cardwell, play sweet trombone, and Benny takes him into the band—which is stretching probability just a little bit, experience being as necessary as talent, tho it's hard to make some people believe it.

The boy has something and gets ahead fast. Almost in no time he has the band's vocalist, Lynn Bari, sweet on him, as well as Linda Darnell, who is in the bucks, her father being a connoisseur of music and the president of an unnamed symphony association. For a while our trombonist divides the loving equally between them, and you don't blame him, for it's not every week a guy gets a chance like that. But with all his talent and good looks, this sliphorn player is a hot head, and he's always flying off the handle to no good purpose. Only a Beethoven could get by with that kind of temperament, and when he adds a big head to the hot head, you can see the writing on the wall.

He succumbs to the talk of a smooth agent—a good characterization by Allyn Joslyn—and by offering them a share of the profits, lures Benny's boys away from him and starts his own band. It flops, of course, but everything comes out right—the people in this picture being noble and easy forgivers—with the kid staging a comeback with Benny and getting the gal with the dough.

Lynn and Linda are luscious and lovely, and young Cardwell—a well set up lad, with what used to be called a collar-ad profile—seems like a find of romantic possibilities, tho he ought to get over trying to look tough all the time, even when he's making love. There's also a part for Jack Oakie, but it's not very convincing and, consequently, neither is he. And there's quite a lot of music from Benny and his boys—even about 16 measures of Benny playing the Mozart clarinet quintet, which seems a little disproportionate, tho I guess Mozart can stand it. He's got along pretty well to date.

Horse Show's Opening Gala Event Tonight

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

The opening of the nation's largest horse show, and the richest in prize money ever staged, will attract a large crowd to the Coliseum tonight for the first of 14 performances planned by the Chicago Horse Show association. The competition will continue thru Sunday night, Dec. 17.

A temperature of at least 70 degrees promised by the Coliseum will help the association with its plans to make the opening performance a formal occasion where clothes are concerned, and directors of the show and their wives, who will dine beforehand in the Balinese room of the Blackstone, are planning to attend in evening dress. Adding to the gayety at the show will be the Tack Room, in which refreshments will be dispensed to those who have admission cards.

Floria Campbell, granddaughter of the late Joseph Donnersberger, who was president of the South Park board during the Columbian exposition of 1893, will sing "The Star Spangled Banner," to open the show. The music will be under the direction of Armin Hand, namesake son of the man who was the musical czar of the gay nineties in Chicago.

Gene Autry, radio and film star, and his horse, Champion, will appear at performances to boost the sale of war bonds, which will be handled by the Chicago metropolitan unit of the American Women's Voluntary services tonight. The proceeds of the show will be given to the Community and War Fund. Paul Butler is president of the association. Mrs. Howard Linn and Mrs. John T. Pirie Jr. head the women's committee. About 500 horses have been entered in the nine day event.

Parents' Acts May Influence the Children's

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Just as time clears up much of the behavior in our children that distresses us, so the perspective of the years helps parents who try to be wise as well as loving, in understanding a great many things that have gone before. When your sons and daughters approach 21 or reach it you can look back over the years and often see why in earlier childhood they acted as they did, see what you provided that was good for them in their lives, what was troubling to them, what mistakes you made, and why over the years it has all worked out as it has. Perspective has made you grow in understanding.

A score of examples come to my mind. Why was Dulcy so annoying, sly, and overbearing when she was 8, and then at 12 so much changed for the better? Looking back her mother could see that the good change had come when she herself, due to a long convalescence, had to be at home all day and every day. With no more time or zest for bridge and luncheon and golf she had real thought and attention for Dulcinea. When later, people began to notice the favorable change in her child, it dawned on her that she had expected her daughter to "grow right" by herself. She realized then, that just doesn't happen. Children need to have a real interest taken in them as persons by their parents. They need guidance and evidences of affection. Dulcy's mother was at last getting a perspective, and learning from it.

Then there was the woman I know who had attempted a career in the advertising field and succeeded with brilliance, who as a result had only the left-overs of herself to give to her daughter when she came home at night. Unwilling to give up the stimulation and salary that went with her work she kept on with it for years, noticing only here and there that it was to her father her little girl turned on week-ends. She was angered, then shocked into getting a belated perspective when she woke up one Christmas holiday time to find that her daughter of 16 wasn't coming home at all for the two weeks' boarding school vacation. Home didn't draw her. The child had drifted away.

Of course all perspectives don't give as tragic a backward look as this. Some just help us to understand a past that has worked out all for the best, and tend to give us a wider and wiser viewpoint for the future.

INSTALMENT XXIV.

ESCAPE.

With Fraser's revolver prodding his back, Packard announced again doggedly that he was not going downstairs.

"Suit yourself," the little man drawled. "You can go or stay. If you stay, it will be with a head busted by the barrel of my gun. But don't let me influence you."

Packard shuffled down the corridor. "I'll fix you some day for this," he promised.

Ranger watched them go from the door of the room. On his face was a frown of anxiety. His daughter stood beside him, white to the lips.

Webb led the way down the stairs. He opened the back door a few inches and peered out. Several men were just emerging from the Legal Tender. One was Uhlmann. He had a revolver in his hand and was giving the others instructions where to take their posts. The two saddled horses were hitched to a rack a short distance from the hotel. A lank fellow in leather chaps and a blue shirt stood beneath a cottonwood carrying a rifle, evidently the guard posted to cover the back door.

To make the run from the back door to the horses, with half a dozen guns trained on them, would be suicidal. Webb saw that at once. A plan jumped to his mind, one made possible by the unwilling coöperation of Packard. There was a dark closet near the entrance. Given luck, it might serve the hunted men nicely.

Bob sketched in three sentences what he had in mind, explaining curtly to Packard his part in it. "If you let them suspect it's a ruse you won't live long enough to enjoy tricking me."

"You figuring on killing me?" Packard asked.

"I'll play yore game, because I can't do anything else," he said, sullen anger in his voice.

Packard was to call his men and tell them he had discovered the hiding place of Webb. He was to head them up the stairs, bringing up the rear himself. Every foot of the way he would be covered by the guns of the two men in the closet.

"Don't get crazy and start anything," Fraser advised. "All we'd have to do is crook our fingers."

"I'm not a fool," snarled Packard. "You've got the drop on me right now, but inside of 48 hours you'll both be laid out cold."

Webb spoke, in his voice the low harsh grating of steel: "You murdered my father, Packard, I'm not forgetting that. You robbed my mother and lied me into prison. Pay day is coming for you soon. I'm telling you this now so that you'll know if you lift a hand or let out a word to betray us I'd lief shoot you in the back as I would a wolf."

Bob's revolver pressed against Packard's ribs as the man put his head thru the door opening and called to Uhlmann.

"Hi, Rhino, I've found Webb He's upstairs. Bring the boys and keep 'em quiet."

"Right away, Jug." Uhlmann spoke to those with him, turned, and lumbered across from where he stood to the back door of the hotel. Three men trailed at his heels. Hawkins remained where he was, at the door of the Legal Tender. The man in chaps under the cottonwood held his ground.

"Did Ranger tell you where he was?" Uhlmann asked.

"Heard him talking with Fraser—in a room upstairs," Packard answered. "Walk soft, boys. We want to surprise them."

The old treads creaked beneath the weight of their heavy bodies. Jug flung a look of bitter hate toward the closet and moved along the passage to the stairs. He knew that the revolver of his enemy covered him every foot of the way and did not feel sure that a bullet would not crash into his back. There was a bend in the staircase half way up. If he could get past that he could shout out an alarm and send his men charging down on those below. The steps of the flight seemed interminable. Four more—three—two. He took the last at a leap and from the landing screamed at the others to come back.

"Holy Mike, what's eatin' you?" Uhlmann demanded.

Already the men hidden in the closet were bolting for the door. The cowboy beneath the cottonwood woke up and yelled, "What's going on here?" Neither Webb nor Fraser paid any heed to him. He started to run to the hitch rack, stopped, and raised his rifle.

A bullet from the door of the hotel whistled past the running men, and before the crash of the explosion had died away a second and a third shot sounded. One of them came from the gun of Hawkins. Webb swung to the saddle of his mount. Fraser was already in motion a few yards ahead of him. The black had given a scream of pain and collapsed, sending its rider flying to the ground.

Bob swung round and rode back. His one idea was to pick Stan up and get away from the heavy fire cehtering on them. But in the second during which he faced the blazing guns his eyes took in a dozen details of the panorama in the plaza. Three or four men were strung along the wall of the hotel firing at him. A dozen yards from the hitch rack the cowboy in chaps lay face down.

Fraser scrambled to his feet and ran limping to his friend. He flung himself on the horse back of Bob, who whirled the cow pony in its tracks and touched it with a spur. The animal shot across the plaza.

"You didn't get hit?" Bob asked.

"No, I kinda sprained my ankle when I lit after my horse went down. We're lucky to have got away whole."

"One man didn't—the man in chaps with the rifle. He was drawing a bead on me just before I reached the hitch rack. I didn't see him again till I stopped to pick you up. He was lying on the ground spraddled out, face down. Some one must have shot him by mistake for us."

Fraser could not understand that. The cowboy had not been in the line of fire. "Looks like one of Jug's warriors must of got buck fever," he hazarded. "But I'll bet my boots they lay the blame on us."

Packard tore a stained and shapeless hat from his head, "They got away. You lunkheads had 20 cracks at them—and missed. That devil Webb rode back again, and still you couldn't hit him."

"Must be one among us who can hit the side of a barn," Hawkins jeered. "Some one killed a horse."

"Yeah, and then let Fraser climb onto Webb's horse and ride away. I never saw such crazy shooting in my life."

"We'd have got them all right if you hadn't dragged us upstairs," Uhlmann grumbled. "You fixed it nice for them to reach their horses. You're the one most to blame."

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 8.—Ann Sheridan's next picture will be "When Old New York Was Young," in color, with Jerry Wald producing and Raoul Walsh directing. Dennis Morgan plays opposite her, and S. Z. Sakall of the Three Chins is in for comedy. Which means that Bette Davis will linger in Georgia. Dennis has been waiting weeks to work for La Davis. So what? So Sheridan gets him. She also gets Steve Hannagan for Christmas. He comes back with his own Christmas tree for Annie. . . . Ingrid Bergman has only two more pictures under David Selznick's contract. After that she can make her own deals. She may, just as Alfred Hitchcock did, sign for one year with Selznick, but she's in a position to pick and choose her own stories and companies. Every studio in town is saying "Hurray!" . . . Yep, Betty Grable is again blessed eventing. She'll deny it long and loud, as she did before her last one. Babies have become a habit with Betty, "and," says Harry, "it's a nice habit, too." Their first isn't quite a year old. This won't be good news to Twentieth Century. . . . Looks as tho Franchot Tone is definitely thru here. He's moved his goods and chattels back east. His house, for which he paid $65,000, is for sale at $100,000.

Shouldn't Happen to a Dog.

The lowdown on the Al Jolson-Harry Cohn scrap is this: Sid Skolsky took Al's story to Cohn. He'd worked like a beaver on it. Jolson approved the script, after which Al rowed with Cohn and threatened to take his story over to Warner's. But the amusing part of it is—he couldn't get a script to show Jack Warner. So now the quarrel is ended, and Columbia goes right ahead with the life of Al Jolson as per agreement. I dare anybody to leave Skolsky out in the cold. There's a swell, honest little guy. . . . Florence Bates has her own cure-all for juvenile delinquency. Says if mothers would bundle up their young and sew them into long red flannel underwear for the winter, as she was sewed in as a girl, there'd be much less talk of delinquency. Yes, but if winter comes can spring be far behind? What then?

'Twas All Wasted.

Doug McPhail's suicide was tragic. He was trying so hard for health, even doing manual labor, helping a friend of mine work in a garden, digging, raking leaves. But I guess the old urge was too strong. That boy had one of the finest voices and the brightest futures in this town. His mother is one of our great ladies. . . . Would you pick Preston Foster as a hepcat in "Twice Blessed," with Gail Patrick? I suppose she's called a cat-ess. . . . Tomorrow night at Fresno I expect to have no end of fun, because with Garry Moore, Jack Carson, Dennis Morgan, Arthur Treacher, Roy Benson [magician], Bob Graham, Dave Willock, Billy De Wolfe, Martha Tilton, Olga San Juan, Miriam Lavelle, Mitzi Mayfair, Elizabeth Talbot Martin, and others piling up there for a giant bond rally, how can I miss? Show is directed by Renzo Cessana for the treasury department.

As "Cupid," Bogart Runs Into Trouble.

The Bogarts' final separation came about partly because of a kid Bogie picked up off the street. His name is Bob Raab. He's fun loving, made Bogie laugh, took him out to parties, gave him a taste of high life. Bogie liked it. Raab met Yvonne Vantrot, a diamond horseshoe girl, proposed to her on the spot. Bogie said, "I'll give the wedding at my house. I'll be best man." But because Raab had taken him away from home Mayo [Mrs. Bogart] said, "Nothing doing!" I'm told wedding will take place tomorrow, with Bogie giving it, and he'll still be best man. And I wonder how well Yvonne knows her coming bridegroom? . . . Peg o' My Heart, meaning Laurette Taylor, returns to the stage in "Glass Menagerie," by Tennessee Williams. With her will be Julie Hayden and Eddie Dowling. Laurette wanted Dana Andrews and Bill Gargan also, but their Hollywood bosses said no. Play opens in Chicago the day after Christmas.

A Gleesome Threesome.

Well, Alan Ladd's going to be loaned to make a trio of stars for "Those Endearing Young Charms" at R. K. O. He'll team up with Laraine Day and Bob Young. Laraine finished the light comedy there, "Bride by Mistake," and word of it even got over to her home lot, Metro. And now they're thinking of giving her a part, too. . . . Bill Prince lost his tonsils. . . . I'm told army's trying to buy Marion Davies' beautiful beach house to convert into a rest home for convalescent soldiers. What a place for them! They'd sure walk in beauty. It has everything—marble swimming pool, tennis courts, projection room, art gallery, and a taproom with paneling brought over from England. But we knew it when there was something on tap.

Other Chicagoans whose works are included in the exhibit are Louise K. Broman, Paul R. Cunliffe, Anne Pilger Dewey, Harry A. Langer, Vernon G. Leach, and J. Phil Wahlman.

Members of the Arts club and their guests who drop in at the club between 5 and 7 p. m. tomorrow will have an opportunity to meet Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, director of the Boston Symphony orchestra. In the receiving line with Dr. Koussevitzky, who will conduct the orchestra in one of the History and Enjoyment of Music concerts tomorrow afternoon in the Civic Opera house, will be Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw, president of the club; Mrs. Charles H. Swift and John Palmer, chairman and vice chairman of the music committee, and Mrs. Arthur G. Cable, chairman of the reception committee.

An exhibition of paintings, drawing, and sculpture by professional members of the Cliff Dwellers will be opened today in the club.

Other Wedding News.

Three young women who will become brides on the north shore today are Miss Suzanne Boynton, whose marriage to Lt. Robert Jackson Meyers of the army air forces will take place at 8 p. m. in the Highland Park home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Boynton; Miss Peggy Sargent, who will be married at 5 p. m. to Lt. Chapin Litten of the naval reserve; and Miss Virginia Baker, who will become Karl F. Syren's bride at 4:30 p. m. in the Evanston home of her mother, Mrs. Ethel Kirkman Baker.

Only relatives will witness the marriage of Miss Boynton and Lt. Meyers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin A. Meyers of Winnetka, but a larger reception will follow. Lt. Meyers and his bride will live in Manchester, N. H.

Miss Sargent and Lt. Litten, son of the Frederic Littens of Lake Bluff, will be married in the Winnetka home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester F. Sargent, with a reception following in the Indian Hill club. Miss Sargent will wear the wedding gown of her sister, Mrs. William H. Wieboldt, and some rosepoint lace that belonged to her grandmother, the late Mrs. Frederick Sargent. Lt. Litten and his bride will go to the west coast.

Miss Baker's grandmother, Mrs. Ella G. Kirkman, and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Beckwith of Stamford, Conn., are here for her marriage to Mr. Syren of Highland Park, formerly of Filipstad, Sweden. The bride will carry a lace handkerchief sent by her godmother, Lena Abarbanell of New York, and a prayer book carried by her mother and sister, Mrs. Hunter Nicol. Mr. Syren and his bride will live in Evanston.

Tomorrow afternoon in the chapel of the Winnetka Congregational church Miss Barbara Shannon, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ford of Winnetka, will be married to Ensign James Brorsen of the navy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard A. Brorsen of Oakland, Cal. Ensign Brorsen will take his bride to the west coast, where he will report for orders at the end of his 30 day leave.

Memo from FRANK HARMON

An appetite is the most treacherous thing in the world. People will attend a mediocre play or sit through a "B" movie, but even Brillat-Savarin (the George Rector of his day) couldn't induce people to sit down the second time to a poorly served dinner . . . well, we'll consider ourselves a Chicago institution not when you've come in the second time or even the third, but the twentieth time. It will be the test of whether or not we are a fad or a nice habit. Many world-famous people come in whenever business brings them to our city . . . one great dramatic actor dined with us every evening during his week's engagement at a local theatre. Yes, our friends are drawn from all walks of life, accomplished people who still pursue the art of leisurely dining. But we want to satisfy more than your hunger; that's why we've taken such pains to build a fine restaurant without noise and gaudy distractions. Some folks call this "civilized" dining. Well, that's as good a phrase as any we can think of. It's what we've aimed for right along.

Luck Finally Runs Out for Copycat Girl

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Take the typical case of Miss N. S. S. [not so smart]. She was a junior in high school the year she should have been a sophomore and got to be a senior when she was just about eligible to be a first semester junior. And she worked it this way:

on the SOLID side

The young gal had a confessed aversion for hitting the books of an evening. It wasn't that she didn't like history class, for instance; she just didn't like finding out about history for herself. And it wasn't that she had anything against English class, either— as long as she didn't have to write the themes or do any personal worrying about nouns and participles. So she bluffed her way thru every class period, stalling on answering questions aloud till some one prompted her from the back of the room, and copying all her themes, paragraph by paragraph, from old magazines and dusty books in the library reference room. She was a smooth character and went about the business of cheating in small ways with all the aplomb of a gal who had sat up till midnight the evening before, studying her eyes out.

And for a long time her teachers, and even the guys and gals who knew her well, were fooled. They all agreed that if she wasn't Miss Einstein in person, she was at least a second degree Quiz Kid. When it came to weekly tests and semester exams, the girl had another special technique for getting by. She always managed to seat herself between a couple of brain trusters and by giving both papers the sly eye from time to time she was able to pick up enough right answers to rate a higher grade than either of the others! Maybe she didn't mean to be out-and-out dishonest, but she just didn't realize the importance of learning for herself and thought she was too bright to have to study hard like all the other guys and gals.

Then one day it happened. It was an important semester math test, a pass or flunk crisis, and the girl came to class with her pencils sharpened and glasses polished, ready to do some first class copying. But the teacher, who was hep to that technique, suggested that the students take alternate seats, leaving a blank desk on each side. Our smart miss cast a glance to the right and a glance to the left and even tried to squint back over her own shoulder. . . . But the distance was too great; she could latch her lashes on nothing at all. So like all copying characters the gal learned the sad lesson that she didn't know all the answers after all.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"Directions for bread making specify letting the dough rise at a temperature of from 80 to 84 degrees. Where in the kitchen should the dough be placed to be sure it rises at about that temperature? Can it be placed on top of the radiator?"

To let dough rise at this optimum temperature for the working of yeast cells, place it near a hot stove, on top of a radiator, or near a hot air register. Be sure to protect the dough from direct heat by placing towels or a wooden board between the pan and the source of heat. During rising it is important that the dough be lightly greased and covered.

"In broiling lobster tails, is it necessary to pre-cook the lobster before broiling?"

There are two different methods for broiling lobster tails, and both give fine results. To insure doneness, many cooks like to pre-cook the tails in boiling seasoned water for five minutes, then broil for another five to 10 minutes at moderate temperature. Other lobster fanciers say there is loss of flavor if the lobster is pre-cooked. To broil without pre-cooking, trim the tails, loosen the meat at the sides of the shell, and gash down the center; then broil shell side up at 350 degrees until shells turn bright coral, about 10 minutes. Then turn the tails right side up, brush with butter or margarine, and continue to broil about 10 minutes longer. You may safely take your choice of the two methods.

"How are fruit cakes steamed? May they be steamed in the oven by putting a pan of water alongside the cakes?"

Fruit cakes are baked in the oven but steamed on top the stove in a regulation or improvised steamer. A homemade steamer consists of a rack, a deep pan, and a pan cover. Set fruit cake mold or pan on the rack, add boiling water to come two-thirds of the way up the mold, cover vessel, and steam required length of time. Top of cake container should be covered by several thicknesses of waxed paper tied on with string. Most steamed fruit cakes are dried out in a slow oven for about an hour.

SOLDIERS SEIZE CUDAHY PLANT AT MILWAUKEE

Roosevelt Acts When Firm Disobeys WLB.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 8 [Special].—The Cudahy Brothers meat packing plant at Cudahy, Wis., was taken over by the war department today on orders of President Roosevelt.

Lt. Col. T. N. Gearreald, Washington, D. C., and 10 aides served the papers on George A. Billings, vice president of the company at 3 p. m. Michael Cudahy, president of the company, arrived at the plant shortly afterwards and went into conference with plant officials and the officers.

Col. Gearreald said the action was taken to avert a threatened interruption of production which followed the company's noncompliance with an order of the national war labor board.

Workers Vote Strike Nov. 22.

The board instructed the company to institute maintenance of union membership and dues checkoff. Cudahy workers voted to strike Nov. 22, but have delayed action on the vote in the hope that the government would enforce its decision and avert a work stoppage. One thousand and forty-five workers are affected.

The company has maintained that the directive conflicted with a provision of the Wisconsin employment peace act on maintenance of union membership and checkoff and "as a matter of principle," and appealed the directive to federal court.

Col. Gearreald said the plant supplies large quantities of meat to the fighting forces. He said that "any interruption of production at this time would shut off an important source of food for our fighting men."

Army Gets Big Share.

The government requires the company to set aside for the fighting forces 38 per cent of its total pork production, 80 per cent of its cutter and canner production, and 60 per cent of its army style [boneless] beef, according to Chairman William H. Davis of the NWLB in a letter to President Roosevelt.

He added:

"The plant will operate under the terms and conditions of employment in effect at time of the seizure, and in addition we will comply with the provisions of the directive order of the war labor board dated Sept. 30, 1944 as required by the executive order."

In authorizing seizure of the property, the President specified that government control shall be terminated within 60 days after Secretary of War Stimson has determined that the productive efficiency of the plant has been restored.

Answer This Morning.

Col. Gearreald later issued another statement saying: "Members of my staff and I met with representatives of the company tonight and submitted to them a proposed contract under the terms of which the company would coöperate with the army in operating the plant. They are now considering the contract. An answer will be given tomorrow morning."

There was also a meeting at Hotel Pfister between the colonel, Lt. Col. Daniel L. Boland, his labor relations officer, members of his staff, and the officers of local 40, CIO United Packinghouse Workers, to which the Cudahy workers belong.

Cudahy said Billings probably would be appointed manager of the plant during the period of army possession. He added that the company would cooperate 100 per cent with the army in operating the plant.

THREE ST. LOUIS PAPERS PUBLISH AS STRIKE ENDS

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 8 [Special].—St. Louis' three newspapers resumed publication this evening when 50 pressroom workers returned to the jobs from which they had been absent two days in a walkout over demands for increased wages.

The afternoon Post-Dispatch and Star-Times missed all editions yesterday and two today, but each published its final edition this evening. The morning Globe-Democrat missed one edition Wednesday night and all editions last night. The afternoon publications read their entire papers over their radio stations and interrupted programs at half hour intervals to read news.

Participants in the walkout, who termed it a "recess," are members of the AFL Paper Handlers, Flymen, Sheet Straighteners, and Stockroom Employes union. They had been dissatisfied with the lack of progress in their contract negotiations. They returned to work with the understanding that negotiations would be resumed immediately.

MICHIGAN STATE SENATOR ADMITS GRAFT CHARGE

Howell Makes a Plea for 'Family's Sake.'

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 8 [Special].—State Sen. Chester M. Howell, Saginaw county Republican who has served 20 years in both branches of the legislature, today pleaded guilty to a grand jury charge of graft conspiracy.

Howell told Judge Leland W. Carr, who, in his role of one man grand jury indicted him with 12 co-defendants Wednesday, that he felt the "finest contribution I can make for good government, after all my long experience, is to frankly admit my mistakes and help clean up graft in our state government."

Carr accepted the plea and released the senator under $2,500 bond, pending sentence.

Headed Press Body.

The lawmaker, who has published the weekly Chesaning Argus for many years and at one time headed the Michigan Press association, was accused of accepting bribes to assist in passing legislation at the 1939 session favorable to the American Society of Naturopathy of Michigan, eight of whose members were named as bribe givers in the mass warrant.

"I realize I have made mistakes as have others in the legislature, past and present," Howell told the court in a brief statement. "I know I owe this to my family—three of our four children are in the nation's service—and as a lifelong newspaper man and a legislator over a span of 20 years, I hope my position may contribute in some small way to keeping this a great state and country."

Died in Committee.

The measure introduced by Henry F. Shea, former Laurium Democratic senator, who is now under a three to five year sentence after conviction of graft conspiracy in an earlier grand jury case based on finance company legislation, would have set up an examining board to license various practitioners of so-called healing arts, including chiropractic, electrical massage, and bath treatments, permitting the licensees to use the initials "N. D." [Naturopathic Doctors] after their names. The bill eventually died in the house public health committee.

Issues Third Warrant.

Three of the alleged bribe givers named in the warrant demanded examinations when arraigned earlier today before Judge Carr. They were Martin W. Hildebrand, Battle Creek; Mikhal Sherman and Max Rosenfeld, Detroit, all chiropractors. They were freed on $2,500 bonds. Examinations were tentatively set for Dec. 16.

Hildebrand is a former chairman of the state naturopath organizations finance committee, Sherman formerly served as its president, and Rosenfeld headed its educational committee.

RABBI DRAFTED; WIFE DEMANDS HE BE RELEASED

U.S. Court Told Board Acted Illegally.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 8 (AP).—A New York attorney contended before Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut today that the action of a New York selective service board in drafting Rabbi Abraham Feder into military service was "arbitrary, capricious, and illegal" and asked his release.

Atty. Solomon Badesch told the court that Feder, whose wife, Estelle, instituted habeas corpus proceedings to obtain his discharge, was "snatched from his pulpit" into military service in violation of the selective service law which, he said, clearly provided deferment for ministers of religion.

Attacks Board Action.

Badesch also attacked the action of a "theological board," which he informed Judge Chesnut was unique to New York, in recommending the induction of Feder, who is now stationed at Fort Meade.

The hearing was continued after only one minor witness had taken the stand. No specific date for continuance was set pending agreement between United States District Atty. Bernard J. Flynn, Judge Chesnut and Badesch on a mutually suitable time.

Flynn told the court the government's case rested on the contention that "everything was done in this case," including appeals, hearings, and careful study of Feder's claims for deferment.

Born in Romania.

He said two rabbis and two judges were on the theological board. They had heard Feder's case and had recommended induction. Flynn said the draft board acted favorably on that recommendation.

The original habeas corpus petition said that Feder was born in Romania 25 years ago, and came to this country as a boy. On Aug. 21, 1943, it continued, he accepted the pulpit of Cheva Necumas Zion Anshe Shas in Brooklyn.

He was a rabbi and spiritual leader of the congregation when he was inducted April 17, it was asserted in the petition.

Judge Will Observe 65th Birthday; or Is It 66th?

Judge William J. Lindsay of Superior court will celebrate his birthday today, but there is a question of which birthday. The judge, who is starting his 22d year on the bench, insists he will be 65. His wife, Mrs. Mary Lindsay, says the judge will be 66. The judge and his wife will have open house in their home at 6816 Cregier av.

DEMOCRAT FOES OF NEW DEALERS SHUN 3D PARTY

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Drastic changes must be made in the Republican party to forestall formation of a third party which might result in keeping the New Deal in power indefinitely, Dr. Robert E. O'Brian, secretary of the American Democratic National committee, said yesterday.

The rebel Democrats are keeping their office at 105 S. La Salle st. and it has been the scene of many conferences since the Nov. 7 election. Republicans, including several United States senators, as well as conservative Democrats, have been recent visitors, Dr. O'Brian said.

Opposes Third Party.

Determination to preserve the American way of life continues unabated, Dr. O'Brian said, but there is disagreement as to whether a third party would be the means. He does not think so, nor, he reported, does John J. O'Connor of New York, former congressman prominent in the anti-New Deal group.

"I am afraid that a third party would have the effect of dividing the opposition to the New Deal coalition," Dr. O'Brian said. "At present there are several third party movements afoot, and there is danger of our having several splinter parties."

Sen. O'Daniel [D., Tex.] is reported to be leading one movement and Sen. Reynolds [D., N. C.] another movement. Dr. O'Brian said several G. O. P. senators are ready to join a third party.

Framework Now Exists.

A natural framework for a third party exists in the fact that the American Democratic National committee succeeded in getting its Presidential electors on the ballot in six southern states, he said.

There would have to be a change in the name of the Republican party and it would have to disown "disreputable elements in the south now carrying the party banner," he asserted.

A proposal to form a joint committee of leaders of the Republican party and the American Democratic committee is being considered by several influential men and is one hope for avoiding a third party.

At O'Brian's headquarters it was rumored that the CIO political action committee intends to set up duplicates of the American Labor party of New York in key cities, including Chicago. Raymond S. McKeough, regional CIO-PAC director, denied this.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna Simms Improved; Resting Well

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, newspaper publisher and Republican leader from New Mexico, was reported improved and resting well yesterday at Albert Merritt Billings hospital, where on Monday she underwent an operation for acute pancreatitis. Tho her condition was said to be still serious, Mrs. Simms is "holding her gains," hospital authorities said.

DE PAUL WINS; ILLINI TOP GREAT LAKES, 44-40

NORTHWESTERN AND OHIO WILL PLAY TONIGHT

Badgers, Irish, and Maroons in Action.

The Northwestern and Ohio State basketball teams will open their 1944-'45 campaign tonight in home games, while Wisconsin, Notre Dame, Marquette, Michigan State, Western Michigan, Chicago, Illinois Tech, Elmhurst, and Concordia of River Forest will play more advanced contests on their schedules.

The Wildcats are to meet De Pauw's undefeated five in the Evanston High school gymnasium with thoughts of duplicating their football inaugural victory over the Tigers. Coach Dutch Lonborg, however, has only one returning regular and one other letter man, Ben Schadley and Duane Sickels respectively, on the squad which will face a five which already holds victories over Central Normal and Indiana.

Great Lakes, which beat Illinois last night in the Chicago Stadium, will be host to the Illini quintet in the second contest of this year's three game series between the two squads.

Marquette at Wisconsin.

Wisconsin and Marquette will engage in the first game of their annual two game series in Madison. It will be the 36th contest of the series, with the Badgers holding decisions in 22 of the previous clashes. Marquette won last year's game in Madison but lost the contest in Milwaukee. Each quintet holds a victory in season inaugurals.

Michigan State, with a 44 to 36 victory over Drake on its record sheet, invades Ohio State to open the Buckeyes' season. Notre Dame's high scoring quintet, which broke a 36 year old high scoring record in defeating Kellogg Field, 89 to 28, will be host to Miami university of Ohio in its first collegiate game of the year.

Maroons at Home.

Chicago's Maroons, out of Western conference competition this season, enter their seventh game with a record of only two triumphs, with Illinois Tech furnishing the opposition. This encounter will start at 8 p. m. in the University of Chicago fieldhouse.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

TWICE in less than two weeks death has robbed American sport of one of its outstanding figures—Kenesaw Mountain Landis and John L. Griffith. . . . Their service was in different fields. . . . Commissioner Landis operated in professional baseball and Commissioner Griffith in amateur athletics. . . . Nevertheless, they had much in common. . . . They stood for honesty, decency, and enterprise in the conduct of activities which unquestionably have helped to make the nation great. . . . The importance of competitive sport in the United States had no greater champion than Maj. Griffith. . . . He lacked the showmanship and possibly the personal popularity of Knute Rockne, but his influence on American youth was just as pronounced. . . . He brought culture, dignity, and sound philosophies to the playgrounds of America. . . . To Maj. Griffith competitive sport was something more than exercise for the participants and recreation for the spectators. . . . To him it was a way of life and he fought energetically, sometimes against great odds, to preserve it. . . . That is why on occasion he took a vigorous stand on matters which to some may have seemed outside the province of a man engaged in athletic administration. . . . Many of his actions and utterances were highly controversial, but always he was standing up for principles which, in his opinion, were the foundations of the Republic. . . .

Maj. Griffith's leadership was responsible more than any other factor for the Big Ten's continuation of athletics thru the war. . . . Some collegiate groups curtailed or abandoned sport for the duration, but the Western conference carried on. . . . Grouch columnists and others derided the Big Ten stand, but almost without exception, they now commend the action as courageous and patriotic. . . . One by one the conferences which dropped athletics a year or two ago have resumed operation. . . . Maj. Griffith's death removes one of the indubitably great builders of Western conference prestige. . . .

While the Big Ten commissioner was the aggressive force in leading conference athletics to a higher level he, fortunately, didn't walk alone. . . . Some of the greatest figures in amateur sport hold administrative offices in that organization. . . . Two or three probably are too old to take on the burdens of the commissioner's position. . . . Tug Wilson of Northwestern, Frank McCormick of Minnesota, and Fritz Crisler of Michigan, however, do not fall in that category. . . . Two or three of the Big Ten faculty representatives would make desirable commissioners. . . . It will be no surprise if the conference turns to some one outside the fold, possibly to a man like Lt. Comdr. Russ Cook, who did a magnificent job of organization and administration at Great Lakes. . . . Whoever the choice, he will have a task ahead of him to measure up to the standards of Maj. Griffith, a wise counselor, a staunch friend, a great gentleman.

As the Twig Is Bent.

On this crisp clear Sabbath morning,
At the corner of Third and Burch,
A young soldier stopped me and asked me

But he rose in the bright cold morn
To seek out a place of worship
Of the faith to which he was born.

So trim and straight in his uniform,
So steady and clear of eye,
With a boyish smile all free of guile
As he thanked me and then passed by.

And I thought of the home he had come from,
And the mother who patiently taught him
His daily prayers to say.

How happy and proud she'd be, I thought,
Could she stand there at Third and Burch,
—Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

Study in Contrast.

Two men were talking at a bar,
"I lost my boy," said one,
"He fell at Biak recently,
Now dreams and hopes are done."

"I guess I know, pal, how you feel,"
The other man replied,
"It's but a few short weeks ago,
In France, that my son died."

They sat there silent, lost in thought,
And finished each his drink,
Then one man rose to leave the place
"I've had enough, I think."

"You see, when I get lonely,
I take myself across the street,
Into the U. S. O.

"Or to the service center go
To find a boy who's blue,
And treat him to a dinner, fine,
What he would like to do.

'No doubt you do the same, my friend,
Shamefacedly the other squirmed,
"I go get drunk," he said.
—Virginia Pennock.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Joe Sinke, one of Chicago's sturdiest mail carriers, last night continued to deliver in the fourth annual All-Star tournament currently being conducted by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America in the Auditorium service men's center. Joe still continued to be the most difficult man to dislodge from the lead in the world series of tenpins by posting a 152.20 point aggregate as the field of 16 finalists goes into this afternoon's penultimate session of match play finals.

Pressing him with a dual tie of 148.47 were Pvt. Joe Wilman, Chicagoan who now is registered from Fort Lewis, Wash., and is now proving why he was the captain of the old Chicago Budweisers, last prewar winners of the A. B. C. team championship, and Adam Plunge of Chicago.

Wilman Rolls 279 Game.

Wilman yesterday matched the high game of the tournament while winning four games of the match he waged against his old pal and Budweiser teammate, Johnny Small, leader of Thursday's first man-to-man duel. John had fired a 279 total in the total pin firing. So yesterday, he sa wanother 279 shot, by the 39 year old army man who is here on furlough.

As obdurate as Sinke is, going into today's third round of match play, opening at noon, and continuing thru four blocks, he still is going to be bothered by Wilman and Adam Plunge, the south side pattern maker who refused to yield third place in yesterday's spirited fighting. Adam came out of the first 32 games with a point aggregate of 148.47, matching Wilman's total. The whole pitch going into today's rassle found still another resident Chicagoan, Buddy Bomar, taking over fourth place with 147.43, giving him 21 pins over Therman Gibson, the E. and B. sharpshooter from Detroit, who on Wednesday led the field of 36-game total pin qualifiers.

Day and Krumske Trail.

One of the tightest fields ever to go into the head-and-head battling in the world's most strenuous tenpin battles will go to work at noon today on their matinee job, and then again at 6:40 p. m. Tomorrow they will set forth at 11:30 a. m. on the afternoon party, and at 5:50 on the evening bloc.

The windup of the second day of match play bowling not only amazed a godly crowd by the arrival of the three Chicagoans—Sinke, Wilman, and Plunge—in the top three roles, but also found last year's winner, Ned Day of West Allis, Wis., turning up in sixth place, and Paul Krumske, the co-captain of Chicago's Meister Braus who recently wrested Day's title from him in a special challenge match, in 11th position.

Point System of Scoring.

The Peterson point system determines the scoring. Thru this method a bowler is given one point for each 50 pins he knocks down and one point for each game he wins with a four game match. In the event that both bowlers tie on total pins within one game, each receives a half a point, or the equivalent of 25 pins. If a bowler wins the lesser number of games, but still outscores his opponent in total pins, he receives an additional point.

The schedule for today:

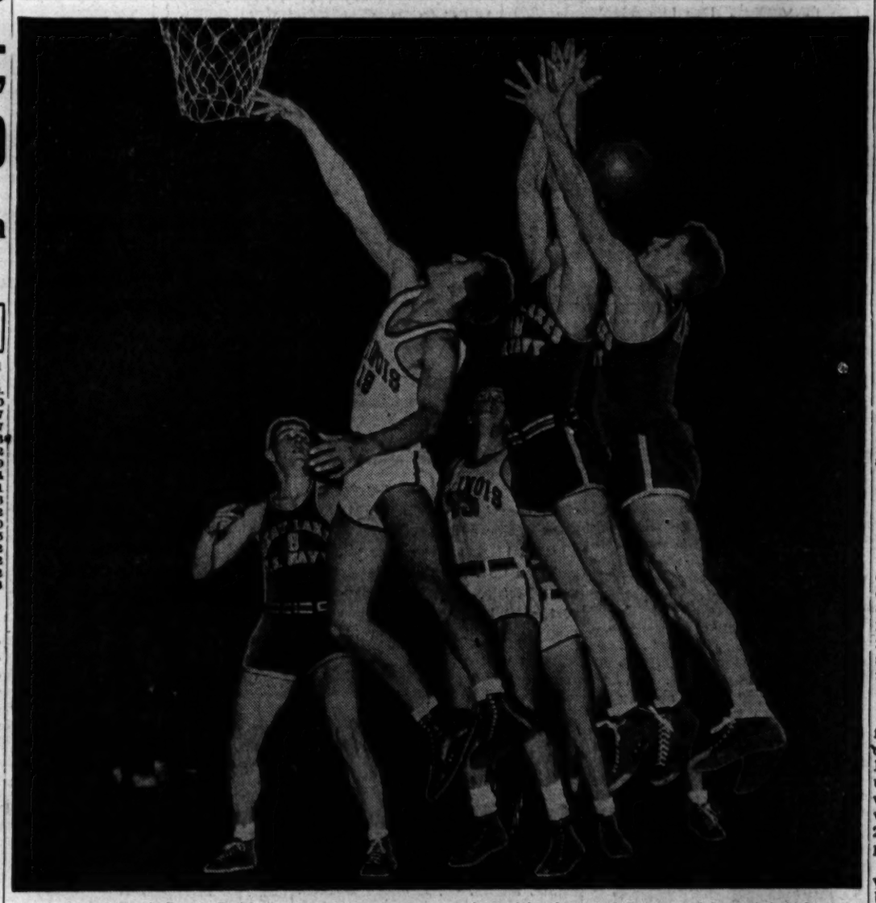
A LOT OF ACTION WITH NO RESULTS



Illinois and Great Lakes players gang up on a rebound in the second game of last night's basketball double header in Chicago Stadium. The ball escaped them all. Sailors identifiable by numbers are Jack Dean (8), Jim Ove (18), and Tony Kaufmann (16). No. 19 of the Illini is Walt Kersulis. Half obscured by other players is Illinois' Junior Kirk. Illinois won, 44 to 40, after trailing by 19 to 16 at half time. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

HORSE SHOW TO START TONIGHT; 9 EVENTS LISTED

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

The Chicago Horse show opens tonight in the Coliseum with the nation's greatest performers in competition for the richest prizes in show ring history, $80,000 in sixth war loan bonds. In addition, all officers, directors, and guarantors will purchase a total of $1,000,000 in bonds personally during tonight's session which starts at 8 o'clock.

Nine events and two special attractions make up the opening performance of the nine day show which runs thru Dec. 17. Matinees are scheduled for tomorrow, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and next Sunday, the closing day. Net proceeds of the show will go to the Community and War fund.

Bruce Seeks 123d Title.

A total of 152 horses, which includes a record field in both the jumping and three gaited saddle horse divisions, will engage in the battle for awards tonight, but before competition starts there will be a concert by a military service band and singing of the national anthem by Miss Floria Campbell. During the evening and at each succeeding performance, Flight Officer Gene Autry, the singing cowboy, and his horse, Champion, will entertain the crowds. Also on hand will be Bruce Robinson of La Grange, and his trick equine, Sultan McDonald.

Among the 37 timber toppers on tonight's program will be Bruce, the big brown gelding from Mrs. A. C. Thompson's Happy Way farm at Maywood, out to add another title to its 122 championships as a jumper. Against this amazing animal will be pitted such other frequent winners as C. G. Speidel's Springfield from Brookfield; Hugh Rex McRose's Credition from Chicago; Donald Sutherland's Little High Tide and Going Up, and Grand Time stable's Headlines, from New York.

$1,000 Stake Is Feature.

Wensleydale Pilot, pride of John S. Cuneo's string of 24 harness horses and ponies entered in the show from Libertyville, will be the horse to beat in the $1,000 harness horse stake, a highlight of tonight's program. Imported from England five years ago, Wensleydale Pilot, the current national champion, will compete against seven other notables, Perfection and Selection from Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Campbell's Argyll stables at Mount Carroll; Happy Way farm's Royal Mistress, Royal American, and Polly Ensign, and Glenhavon Charming and Seaton Gem from Jonsuela stables at Libertyville.

Services for Griffith Today in Winnetka

Funeral services for Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Western conference since 1922, who died Thursday night in his office in the Sherman hotel, will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Congregational church in Winnetka, Ill. Burial will be in Mount Carroll, Ill., birthplace of the commissioner 67 years ago.

Name Three Man Board.

Directors of athletics of the Western conference were named as honorary pallbearers. The directors, coaches, and faculty representatives of the conference concluded their meetings yesterday and will attend the services.

The directors yesterday appointed three of their group to carry on the duties of the commissioner's office until a successor is named by them and approved by the faculty committee. They are: L. W. St. John, Ohio State; Kenneth L. Wilson, Northwestern, and H. O. Crisler, Michigan.

Adopt Resolution.

"Whereas, the untimely death of Maj. John L. Griffith has left his associates, the athletic directors of the Western conference, and his legion of friends the world over, deeply stunned:

"Whereas, for these many years, the leadership of Maj. Griffith has played an important part in giving to this country soundness and solidarity to intercollegiate athletics:

"Whereas, his loss to the athletic world is tremendous:

"Be it resolved that all of us share this loss with Mrs. John L. Griffith and Lt. John L. Griffith Jr., and to them extend our heartfelt sympathy:

"Be it further resolved, that the flaming spirit of Maj. Griffith will be an inspiration to all of us and it will serve to carry on the high principles for which he stood."

WOLVERINE FIVE TOPS ROMULUS AIR BASE, 35-32

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 8 [Special].—Michigan's basketball team maintained its undefeated streak tonight by beating an aggressively stubborn Romulus air base quintet, 35 to 32. The victory was Michigan's fourth this season and the second over Romulus.

Michigan won after trailing, 14 to 13, at the half and surviving a bruising second period, during which the Wolverines were behind twice.

BIG TEN FACULTY GROUP CHANGES ELIGIBILITY RULE

Dr. W. F. Lorenz, representing the University of Wisconsin, was chosen yesterday as chairman of the faculty committee of the Western conference for the ensuing year at the meeting of the committee in the University club. Prof. Frank E. Richart of Illinois will continue as secretary.

The eligibility committee of the faculty group, governing body for conference athletics, will be Ralph W. Aigler, Michigan; Henry Rottschaffer, Minnesota, and Prof. Richart. Prof. Aigler was named delegate to the National Collegiate Athletic association meeting in Columbus, O.

Change Eligibility Rule.

The faculty committee reëstablished an eligibility rule for conference athletics at yesterday's session which will prevent any conference athlete from playing with an outside organization after Jan. 2, 1945. The date named will permit conference athletes to play in the East-West game in San Francisco New Year's day and the North-South game a week earlier.

Western conference football coaches yesterday adopted five resolutions in regard to rule changes. They are: That use of the forearm in offensive blocking be eliminated; that forward passes be permitted from any point behind the line of scrimmage; that football rules again be standardized for the nation; that a two inch tee be permitted for the kick-off, and that the game should consist of four periods of 40 plays each instead of the current 15 minute quarters.

Central Conference Meets.

The Big Ten golf and tenis meets will be held at Northwestern on May 26, it was decided yesterday.

The Central Collegiate conference met yesterday in the Sherman hotel and voted to permit service teams membership in the league until the conclusion of the war. The conference also chose the following officers for the coming year: Carl Schlademan, Michigan State, president; Dr. E. L. Handy, Notre Dame, M. E. Easton, Drake, Ray Wietz, Western Michigan, vice presidents; and Stanley Lowe, Marquette, secretary and treasurer.

The Central Collegiate indoor track meet will be held March 10 at Michigan State and the outdoor meet will be held June 2 at Marquette or Great Lakes, site of last year's games.

SAILOR RALLY JUST MISSES BEFORE 9,845

Demons Turn Back Wyoming, 68-29.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Great Lakes' stirring rally for nine points in the closing minutes of their battle with Illinois last night in the Stadium failed by a point to tie the score and the Illini, in counter-attack, then marked up a 44 to 40 victory over the Bluejackets. Until Great Lakes found the range, Illinois had controled the second half after trailing, 19 to 16, at the intermission.

The battle was a fitting climax to the Stadium's first double header of the season and had the crowd of 9,845 cheering wildly. De Paul opened the program with a 68 to 29 conquest of an undermanned and inadequate University of Wyoming squad for its fifth consecutive victory of the season.

Kirk Paces Illinois.

Junior Kirk, who scored seven field goals and a free throw in his only attempt, was the scoring key to Illinois' victory. Kirk was particularly effective in the second half with five goals from the floor and, while Illinois was building up a 23 to 19 advantage after the rest period, he did not miss.

Kirk and Howie Judson, another veteran, also paced the floor play, but the Illini youngsters played spiritedly and occasionally with brilliance. After a slow start, big Don Delaney was especially valuable under the backboards, and he also totaled 10 points.

Luke Majorki, clever forward, and Jim Ove, center, led the sailors, but all the Bluejackets were off early shooting form until near the end of the game.

Delayed Attack Almost Fails.

Illinois set up a 41 to 31 lead with six minutes to play, and then used a delayed attack. Majorki hit a long shot to set off the Great Lakes' rally, and he was followed by Mickey McGuire and Tony Kaufmann. McGuire added a penalty point and then Majorki's fifth field goal cut Illinois' lead to 41 to 40. With a minute to go, Kirk decided to contest with a short goal and Delaney's free throw ended the scoring.

While Kirk opened for the Illini with a free throw, neither Great Lakes nor Illinois hit from the floor for four minutes. Then Ove counted on a follow-up. Luke Majorki gave Great Lakes a 4 to 3 lead before Kirk dribbled under for a field goal.

Paul Cloyd flipped in a short goal for the Sailors and Kirk matched it. Ove got two successive free throws on Delaney's fouls and Majorki and Paul Dean, former De Paul star, counted from the court to establish Great Lakes' 12 to 5 advantage.

Mikan Paces Demons.

Judson and Jim Seyler led Illinois' counter-attack and the score was tied at 13-all with seven minutes of the half remaining. Ove, Dean, and Majorki got field goals but Delaney's pivot shot and Johnny Orr's free throw cut the Bluejackets' lead to 19 to 16 at the end of the half.

As usual George Mikan was pivot for De Paul's crushing attack. The 6 foot 9 inch veteran center, who received the Chicago Basketball Writers' most valuable trophy between halves, scored 10 field goals and four free throws in less than 30 minutes. He and the other regulars were then excused.

George Nostrand, whose height matches that of Mikan, was held to three goals and Wyoming, trailing, 43 to 18, at the intermission, tallied only 11 points in the second period against Blue Demon reserves.

MORTON BEATS PROVISO 52-37 IN LEAGUE OPENER

Waukegan and Evanston Turn in Victories.

Basketball play in the Suburban league opened last night, with Morton's 52 to 37 victory over Proviso highlighting the evening's play. The game was played in Cicero.

Paced by Ferd Nadherny, who had just won fame as one of the Suburban league's outstanding football players, Morton overcame Proviso's 25 to 23 half time lead, and was an easy victor. Nadherny scored 17 points.

Waukegan opened its bid for the title by defeating New Trier, 40 to 30, in Winnetka, as Steve Allen led the attack with five field goals and six free throws. Waukegan led, 21 to 13, at the half.

In Evanston, Fritz Smith, Evanston guard, scored a basket in the final seconds of play to give Evanston a 37 to 36 victory over Oak Park. The score was tied, 23 to 23, at half time. Lineups:

DUTTON TRIES IN VAIN TO RESIGN AS HOCKEY HEAD

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—Mervyn [Red] Dutton made another attempt to resign as president of the National Hockey league today, but was persuaded to remain on the job until the annual meeting next June.

Dutton became president last summer after serving as managing director since the death of Frank Calder in 1943. Lester Patrick of the New York Rangers likewise agreed to continue as managing director. This arrangement, which has been in effect all this season, will continue only until next summer's meeting. Dutton, who has a contracting business in western Canada, said he was unable to devote the time to hockey which the presidency required.

GAGE PARK TOPS SOUTH SHORE IN OVERTIME, 44-42

Gage Park defeated South Shore, last season's City league basketball champions, 44 to 42, in an overtime game, to highlight yesterday's City and Catholic league senior practice games.

In another closely contested game, Crane beat Tilden, 40 to 37. Foreman defeated Steinmetz, 33 to 27, and Farragut beat Tuley, 31 to 22. In three contests that approached routs, Sullivan beat Washburne, 30 to 16; Von Steuben beat Du Sable, 55 to 23, and Lindblom beat Hirsch, 48 to 18.

In other games, St. Patrick defeated St. Michael's, 46 to 39, while Leo defeated St. Ignatius, 38 to 20. The Weber-Lane game was postponed.

Lane Retains Two League Swim Crowns

Lane Tech retained both its junior and senior 20 yard pool swimming championships in the finals of 30th annual city league meet last night in the University of Chicago.

It was the 12th consecutive title for the juniors who scored 43 points. Senn tied for second place with Schurz, each having 14 points.

In the senior division Lane made 38 points and Austin, Fenger, and Schurz tied for second with 10 points.

In the junior division one record was made in the 180 yard medley relay by the Lane Tech team of Henry Griesbach, John Nickolich, and Herman Lehman. They covered the distance in 1:53.4 to better the old mark of 1:54.2 made by Lane in 1940.

The junior division point totals:

Lane, 43; Senn and Schurz, 14 each; Morgan Park, 6; Austin and Taft, 5 each; Amundsen and Crane, 3 each.

One hundred yachtsmen from Michigan, Indiana, and Wisconsin ports will meet with Chicago skippers tonight at the Jackson Park Yacht club house, 64th st. and the lake, for the club's annual winners' dinner. Among the prizes to be awarded by William J. Moore, dean of Chicago race committee officials, will be the Ponjola and George Spies trophies for the club's annual Saugatuck race and the Commodore F. A. Noble trophy for the Michigan City-Chicago course of the tri-state race sailed last Labor day week-end.

Milward Leads Service Men's Golf Tournament

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 8 (AP).—Private Jim Milward, of Lockbourne field, O., today led a field of 80 service men today in the first round of the A. A. F. eastern flying training command's 54 hole medal play golf tournament. Wisconsin Open winner in 1940, Milward shot a 71, one under par. The second round will be played tomorrow, with the finals scheduled Sunday.

M'Spaden Ties Byron Nelson for Golf Lead

Oakland, Cal., Dec. 8 (AP).—Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., the tournament choice and first round leader, bungled his incoming nine today to end in a tie with Harold McSpaden, Philadelphia, at the halfway mark of the 72 hole Oakland Open golf tournament. They posted 36 hole totals of 138.

McSpaden shot a pair of 35s for a par 70, to add to his previous 68, while Nelson ran into trouble and came in with a 72 after carding a 66 yesterday.

Tied at 138 were Mark Fry of Oakland and Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y. Fred J. Wood, Vancouver, S. C.; Harry Bassler of Culver City, Cal.; Sam Byrd of Detroit, and Bill Wonsa of Yonkers, N. Y., were bunched at 140, and four were tied at 141. They were Denny Shute, Akron, O.; Leonard Dodson, Kansas City, Mo.; Ky Laffoon, Chicago, and Sgt. Jim Ferrier, Camp Roberts, who finished second to Nelson in the San Francisco Open last week.

PETE COOPER LEADS.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 8 (AP).—A Florida professional, Pete Cooper of Gainesville, stepped out in front at the halfway mark of the $10,000 Miami Open today, while the field was bunching up for the wildest finish in the history of the 21 year old golf tournament.

Shading par by two strokes with a second round 34—34—68, Cooper had a 36 hole total of 138 to take a one stroke lead over Staff Sgt. Dutch Harrison of Wright field, O.; Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., and Maurie O'Connor of Belleville, N. J.

The first day leader, Tony Penna of Dayton, O., faltered on the greens and went into a tie at 140 with Herman Barron of White Plains, N. Y., who carded 35—35—70, and Bill Heinlein of Nobleville, Ind., who turned in a 33—34—67. Penna needed a 35—37—72.

BOZEMAN AND COCHRAN TIED FOR CUE LEAD

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—Jay Bozeman of Vallejo, Cal., took over first place in the world three cushion billiard tournament today, winning his fifth straight match, 50 to 49, over Andrew Ponzi of Philadelphia, in 52 innings. It was Ponzi's fifth loss in a row.

Welker Cochran, San Francisco, gained a first place tie with Bozeman by beating Andrew Ponzi, Philadelphia, 50 to 38, in 41 innings in the last match of the night.

In another afternoon match Ralph Greenleaf of Detroit was toppled from the unbeaten class by Joe Chamaco of Mexico City, 50 to 40, in 47 innings. Greenleaf previously had won four matches.

The third afternoon match saw Joe Procita of Gloversville, N. Y., hand Miguel Marquez of Mexico City his sixth straight loss, 50 to 41, in 50 innings. The win was Procita's second in six starts.

Defending Champion Willie Hoppe, New York, won his fourth of five matches by beating John Fitzpatrick, Los Angeles, 50 to 30, in 29 innings.

FREE BUSINESS GETS PRIORITY RATING OF NAM

Warns World Tends to Collectivism.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 8.—The preservation of free enterprise in the United States received a priority rating for 1945 just below that of waging a successful war in a statement to the press today by Ira Mosher, New England industrialist. Earlier today he had been elected president of the National Association of Manufacturers, which closed a three day annual conference.

Ira Mosher.

"Altho peace on all fronts may not come in 1945," he told reporters, "the foundations of the post-war world will be laid next year. If, as seems likely, post-war America is to be the largest island of free economy in a sea of collectivism, then certainly our economy must be so strong as to survive and inspire world peoples to recover their freedoms.

Essential to All Groups.

"We must recognize that the basic interests of management and labor are identical in such circumstances. The prosperity of management, labor, agriculture—indeed, of all Americans—depends upon high productivity. All groups of our economy must take common cause to that end."

In response to a question, Mosher cited a trend in Britain's post-war planning as an example of a world-wide trend.

"Our biggest ally in the military war," he said, "is headed toward a completely planned economy. Cartels for foreign trade must be backed by cartels for domestic trade—job freezing and wage freezing."

"And how will we compete in a world of collectivism?" asked a reporter.

"History proves that collectivist movements do not last," he replied.

A War and Peace Problem.

Mosher decried the army and navy hush-hush on post-war planning. He said planning for reconversion can help relieve the over-all man power shortage in arms production by convincing labor that management is considering the peace time future of both the employer and the employe.

The convention, resolved for freedom of enterprise, also heard Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, plead for world-wide freedom of the press as an instrument for world peace.

Bradley Dewey, former rubber director, in another address urged the industrialists to active and vigorous support of free speech and free enterprise.

"In many parts of the world in the last decade," he said, "free speech has been suppressed. In our own country there has been a confused fear which has kept many of us from speaking out our beliefs. We all have been too prone to say: 'Unscrupulous theorists are in power; I will keep out of sight; I will not stick out my neck; let George do it.'

Duty to Present Facts.

"It is this philosophy which caters to the social theorists. It gives them a chance to sell their doctrines unopposed, to misinterpret our restraint as proof of guilt. The public can be trusted to give the right answer—but only when all of the facts are fearlessly presented.

"It is our duty to oppose these men and their doctrines and, by speaking out against them, to let the American people see the facts as they are."

A message was read to the manufacturers from President Roosevelt, thanking American industry for the war job it is doing, urging that it continue with diligence to make munitions, and promising that "the government is prepared to release you for reconversion at the earliest possible moment."

People and Events

Arthur Nutt, who guided the development of the engine which powers the B-29 Super Fortress, has become associated with Packard Motor Car company as director of its aircraft engineering division under Col. J. G. Vincent, vice president, George T. Christopher, president, announced yesterday.

Blatz Brewing company, Milwaukee, yesterday ran off its one millionth barrel of beer this year, a new production record for the company, Robert E. Schlau, Chicago branch manager, said. The barrel will be decorated and shipped to Grupe & Burke, Blatz distributor, Chicago.

Albert L. Gale has become associated with the Agency Service corporation as vice president, Earl E. Sproul, president, announced. Gale formerly was with J. R. Hamilton Advertising agency.

Richard F. Linsert of Needham, Louis & Brorby, advertising agency, has resigned to become advertising manager of the Golden Peacock company, Paris, Tenn., manufacturer and distributor of cosmetics.

Report Heavy U. S. Loss on Ship Purchase

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8 (AP).—The house merchant marine committee said today the government came out a heavy loser in a 10 ship transaction between the maritime commission and the Southern Pacific company.

The 10 coastwise vessels were purchased by the commission for $4,733,952 in June, 1941, after which the commission spent $2,653,611 for repairs and alterations to make them suitable for off shore voyages. They had been operated by the Southern Pacific in Atlantic coast service as the Morgan Line.

In a report to the house, the committee said the commission had purchased the vessels virtually sight unseen. It described the Southern Pacific company's presentation of evidence to the committee as "deliberately intended to mislead" and as being "most reprehensible."

Contends Price Was Fair.

In San Francisco, A. T. Mercier, Southern Pacific president, made this statement:

"The government took over the entire fleet of Southern Pacific company's Morgan Line ships in 1941 at a valuation agreed upon openly and fairly. The price paid was not excessive and, in fact, was less than what the company regarded as the then fair market value."

The commission's appraisal method, the committee said, "apparently consisted, on the one hand, in relying upon assumptions and upon the seller's reputation, and, on the other, in attempting to set up the appraisal in such a way as to provide a cushion for contingencies."

Assumption Held Unwarranted.

Evidence given it, the committee said, showed that the ships averaged 24 years of age and were purchased "on the unwarranted assumption that they were in good condition and could readily be made suitable for off shore service." The committee said the price paid "considerably exceeded their fair market values."

As much as 40 per cent of the usable time of one of the ships over a period of eight months was spent in repair yards, the report continued.

Following the sale, the committee declared, the Southern Pacific company applied to the interstate commerce commission for authorization to resume its steamship operations at a future date, the company having "sought to show that the sale of its vessels to the commission was involuntary in nature."

It has evidence, the committee commented, that the testimony given the ICC was "incorrect" and that the company had made many efforts to sell the ships since October, 1939.

WIEBOLDT PLAN FOR RETIREMENT FUND EFFECTIVE

An employe retirement income plan will be put in effect at once for employes of Wieboldt Stores, Inc., S. L. Hypes, president, said yesterday. Altho adopted by directors of the company two years ago, the plan only recently was approved by the United States treasury department.

The retirement fund will be provided and maintained at no cost to the employes. Membership will be automatic after five years' employment. The amount accrued for the individual worker thru the years will be determined principally by the size of the contributions made by the company. These, in turn, will depend on the size of annual profits. The fund has been accumulating during the two years since directors approved it. About 900 employes will benefit.

"The establishment of the plan does much to strengthen the circle of protection for Wieboldt employes," said Hypes. "Wage dividends, group insurance, hospitalization—and now the retirement plan—testify to the desire of management and directors to make the best possible working conditions."

GRAIN FUTURES SWING LOWER; SELLING HEAVY

Heavy selling of grain futures, reportedly based on traders' views on the peace outlook, turned grain markets downward yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade after an early advance had carried July and September wheat to new seasonal high prices and corn to a new high in more than a month. Rye broke more than 2 cents a bushel from the early top and closed 1¼ to 1⅝ cents lower. Wheat reacted about 1 cent from the early high and finished unchanged to ⅛ cent lower. Other declines were: Corn, ⅜ to ¾ cent; oats, ¼ to ½; barley, ⅛ to ½.

Buying attributed to mills and cash interests lifted wheat prices ½ to 1 cent in the early trading with December selling at $1.67⅞, equal to the highest price in more than six months. Removal of hedges against sales of flour to the army and reports that the ceiling price on cash wheat would be advanced 4 cents a bushel in the next few days provided the background for the early strength.

Continental Bank to Vote on Plan of Consolidation

Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company has called a shareholders' meeting on Jan. 12 to vote on a proposal to consolidate the bank with the old Continental National Bank and Trust company. When the Continental Illinois was formed in 1929, the Continental National was continued in existence for legal reasons in connection with administration of its trusts. Since these reasons no longer exist, the directors of the two banks proposed consolidation to enable the Continental Illinois to administer trusts remaining. No change in capitalization or distribution of stock will be involved.

BUTLER CHARTS BIG POST-WAR SALE PROGRAM

Improving of Stores to Cost Millions.

T. B. Freeman.

Butler Brothers, Chicago wholesale distributing and store operating company, has prepared plans for post-war expansion that will involve the expenditure of millions of dollars, T. B. Freeman, president, said yesterday after a special stockholders meeting at which measures to help make the program effective were approved.

Freeman said a large part of the post-war expenditures will be for the rehabilitation of the more than 2,000 stores in the Ben Franklin [variety] and Federated [dry goods] chains and in a retail subsidiary chain, the Scott-Burr stores. Most of the units in the Ben Franklin and Federated systems are privately owned, but are supplied and serviced by Butler Brothers.

Will Aid Smaller Businesses.

The company's post-war development will be directed toward the small business operator, Freeman said. Butler's business has been built largely on the needs of the smaller independent store and the company proposes to assure its own future by helping to strengthen the small businesses with which it is associated.

All the stores in the various systems are being studied with the purpose of making improvements after the war which will enable them to meet the competition of the large chain store and mail order companies. In many cases this will require new store fronts, lighting systems, and fixtures.

In its own operations before the war Butler Brothers employed about 7,000 persons and now has about 8,000 on its pay roll. The stores in its systems employed about 25,000 in both permanent and part time positions. On the success of Butler's post-war operations will depend its and their ability to give jobs to more persons.

Few Vets Will Open Stores.

Freeman said some veterans are expected to open new stores, but that the number will not be large because of the amount of capital required. However, employment possibilities will develop in established stores and veterans may open smaller stores which may be expanded later.

"The philosophy of our company has been that the country can best be served thru stores operated by owners living in the communities in which they are located," Freeman said. "We believe that the chain stores have done a remarkable job of demonstrating that store keeping is a science. The chains have helped to price line and price ticket American store operations, a factor which has meant much to consumers. But the chains do not have a monopoly on good store keeping. And if the small store owners will be cooperative and alert, they have as good a chance to make profits as the chains. America was built on the small private business."

Will Continue as Wholesaler.

Freeman said his company proposed to continue its wholesale business after the war, an activity that has been shrinking in recent years.

The stockholders approved changes in the articles of incorporation to authorize 150,000 shares of cumulative preferred stock, $100 par, issuable in series and the increase of the par value of common stock from $10 to $15 a share.

It is proposed to make public offering about Jan. 1 of 100,000 shares of the new stock, 4½ per cent series, thru a group of underwriters headed by Harriman Ripley & Co. Proceeds would be used to retire $8,127,660 par value of outstanding 5 per cent convertible stock and to increase working capital for post-war expansion.

DIVIDEND IN STOCK.

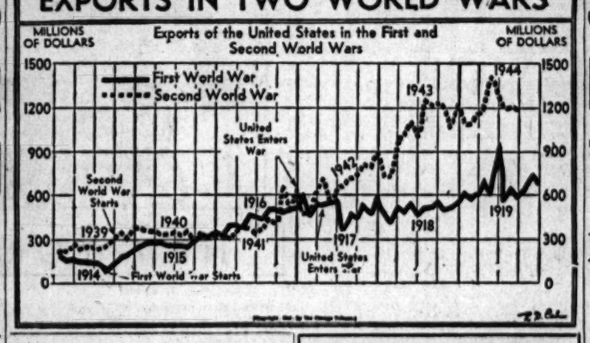
I hold some stock on which a dividend in stock of three shares for each share held was paid this year. Par value is $50. Do I have to include in my income tax return for 1944 the par value of the new shares? —J. G.

If the stock which you held was common and the dividend was paid in the corporation's own stock of the same class, it did not represent taxable income. Such a dividend is exempt from income tax under a Supreme court decision. The distribution does not alter the proportionate interest of each common stockholder. The same interest as before is represented by a larger number of shares.

If, however, the corporation gave you the option of taking the dividend in either cash or stock and you chose stock, then the dividend would be considered taxable. The amount in such a case would not be the par value of the additional shares but the market value at the time of receipt. Dividends in stock if paid on preferred stock are held taxable, but such distributions are unusual.

When a nontaxable stock dividend is paid, the cost basis of the stock on which it is distributed must be adjusted correspondingly to determine capital gain or loss in event of sale. This is done by dividing the cost of the original holding among the increased number of shares held as a result of the distribution.

EXPORTS IN TWO WORLD WARS



Query on Pipe Line Defense Stumps Ickes

Secretary of Interior Ickes again advocated a 165 million dollar pipeline and a billion barrel oil reserve in Saudi Arabia, in a speech to the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations yesterday, but made no specific answer when asked how the United States could prevent their seizure in case of war.

"We'd have to do the best we can, just as we do with other possessions removed from our shores," Ickes who also is petroleum administrator, said of the project whose protection, oil men contend, would require maintenance of a large standing army in the eastern Mediterranean area. The issue was raised during a question period after the speech.

Earlier he told of the greed and struggle for oil among nations. He had warned that "the field of foreign oil is strewn with booby traps, both economic and political." He had told his listeners that he could "devote this entire paper to the struggles that have been waged and the intrigue that has been woven about the oil resources of the world."

Hopes Lesson Is Learned.

"I hope that we have learned our lesson," said the secretary. "I hope we now understand that the best safeguard against another war would be the joint undertaking by the peace-loving nations to keep down the supplies of oil to Germany and Japan to such a point that they could never go to war again."

Ickes' written speech contained this additional statement which he omitted: "This would be a much cheaper and more efficient device for policing the world in the interest of peace than armies and navies."

"The proposal calls for building of a pipeline from the Persian gulf to the Mediterranean sea, the line to be financed and owned by the government. It provides for operation by the Standard Oil Company of California, the Texas company, and the Gulf Oil corporation, which have large concessions in Saudi Arabia, Bahrein Island, and Kuwait.

"The agreement provides that the companies set aside a crude-oil reserve of one billion barrels in Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, to be available for our armed forces at any time within 50 years at a price 25 per cent below the market."

Line Proposed by Admiral.

Ickes added: "It happens I am not the one who proposed this pipeline; the man who did is Adm. A. F. Carter of the navy. But I am not going to deny that I supported it."

In discussing the Anglo-American oil pact, which Chairman Connally [D., Tex.], of the senate foreign relations committee, a few days ago predicted would "never be reported out by the committee," the secretary said:

"Mindful of the mistakes of the past, of cannibalistic competition and a not too altruistic regard for the interests of weaker nations, the negotiators undertook to build on a better foundation for the future.

"They agreed that adequate supplies of petroleum should be available in international trade to nationals of all peaceable countries."

He said changes suggested by the petroleum industry war council would be considered.

COURT AFFIRMS FINES FOR 3 BIG TOBACCO FIRMS

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 8 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today affirmed conviction of three of the nation's largest tobacco companies on charges of violating the anti-trust laws.

Fines aggregating $255,000 were assessed in District court in Lexington, Ky., in October, 1941, after a five and a half month trial. With various officers, principal defendants were American Tobacco company, Ligget and Myers Tobacco company, and R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company.

The anti-trust charges arose from actions of the large companies in lowering prices of the then 15 cent popular brands of cigarets to compete with 10 cent brands during the depression. The government contended this action "practically destroyed the 10 cent market by deliberately lowering prices" until makers of those brands could not make a profit. The defense held sulted from competition."

SLATE FREEMAN AS PRESIDENT OF BUSINESS GROUP

Thomas B. Freeman, president of Butler Brothers, yesterday was nominated to be president of the Chicago Association of Commerce in 1945, Holman D. Pettibone, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, has been the association's president for two years.

Arthur T. Leonard, vice president of the City National Bank and Trust company, was selected by the nominating committee to be vice president for revenue, and W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, was slated for general secretary.

INVESTORS OVERLOOK E BOND OPPORTUNITY, SAYS WAR LOAN AID

Francis M. Knight, Cook county director for the sixth war loan drive, yesterday said that many large investors who are buying other types of government securities had overlooked the investment opportunity of the E bonds.

The E bond, designed to attract funds of wage earners and small investors, carries the highest rate of interest of any government security. The rate is nearly 3 per cent if held to maturity. Altho the amount an individual can buy in one year is limited to $5,000, Knight pointed out that an individual accustomed to the coupon type bonds also can purchase up to $5,000 of the E bonds for each member of his family to take advantage of the higher interest rate.

For individuals in the high tax brackets the bonds have a further attraction in that interest is not taxable until received when the bonds are turned in to the treasury. Interest received on coupon bonds is taxable currently at the existing high tax rates.

Rail Workers Sue to Regain Lost Seniority

Thirty-one North Western railroad locomotive engineers yesterday began action in Superior court to recover lost seniority rights in which, their attorney said, 5,000 other men on roads thruout the country have a similar interest.

The engineers, all employed in the terminal division, were "obliged to desert their employment" April 3, 1920, their lawyer, Julius H. Selinger, said in a bill asking a mandatory injunction. He related that on April 20, the North Western management issued an ultimatum that the engineers must sign "the book" by 7 a. m. April 22 or lose their seniority rights.

The strike ended Sept. 26. The engineers went back to work but, the bill said, they were assigned to jobs other than on the basis of their former rights. They have been working since on rights starting at the end of the strike altho some of them, their lawyer said, had been in service since 1909.

The bill said the North Western violated rule 604 of the working agreement, which permits an engineer to lay off six months without loss of seniority and that the men were deprived of rights without a hearing, as provided by rule 41.

The 11 story Sherry hotel, 1725 E. 53d st., was acquired yesterday by Victor Luftig, representing a syndicate, thru purchase of the entire capital stock of the Sherry Hotel corporation for approximately $500,000, said David Zisook, broker for the buyer. The hotel, containing 280 rooms, occupies land fronting 222 feet on 53d st.

STOCKS EXTEND DRIVE TO NEW 7 YEAR PEAKS

Post-War Prospect Boosts Rails.

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—Stocks reached another seven year peak today on gains of fractions to several points. Trading was heaviest in six months. Many market leaders had weakened under profit cashing in the forenoon.

Rails led the comeback. Nearly all departments participated in the resumption of the upswing and prices at the close were at or near the top.

Small morning offerings inspired later investment bidding on the theory the pentration of the July high showed stocks were in strong hands and that new advances might result. Optimistic peace time predictions for the carriers, hopes for earnings and dividends, combined with increased long war psychology, apparently provided the main purchasing props.

Biggest Rise Since Sept. 15.

The Associated Press 60 stock average at 57 was up 0.5, widest move since Sept. 15, and reached a top since late 1937. High for that year, tho, was 75.3 reached on March 10. Of 960 issues traded, 537 were up, 202 down and 221 unchanged. Transfers of 1,682,940 shares, compared with 1,344,954 yesterday were largest since July 10.

A new high was reached by Westinghouse Electric with a gain of 5¾ points at 117 on further reports of a possible stock split.

On the curb United States and International Securities preferred ran up 7 points after a delayed opening ordered by exchange authorities when a $20 dividend was declared on arrears.

RAIL BONDS CLIMB.

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—After a morning of indecision and caution, the bond market turned active and higher today with rails in wide demand at advances of fractions to a point or more.

Sales totaled $13,770,700, compared with $11,500,000 on Thursday. The Associated Press average of 20 rails advanced 0.2 to a new high since 1937 at 95.1.

Great Northern series G 4s made an extreme gain of 4½ points, closing at the peak of 111

CHICAGO LIST AGAIN HIGHER.

Prices were higher again yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Trading continued large and matched Thursday's volume of 47,000 shares, largest since Aug. 4 with the exception of Nov. 21 when a special offering of 29,598 shares of Chicago corporation common boosted turnover to 63,000 shares. Among active issues were New York Central, up ⅞; Chicago corporation, Standard Dredging, and Radio Corporation of America, each up ⅛, and Commonwealth Edison, unchanged. Issues closing at 1944 peaks included Central and South West Utilities preferred, up 1¾, and Illinois Central, up 1¼.

INCREASED HOG RECEIPTS PUSH MARKET LOWER

The largest Friday hog receipts in seven months yesterday forced the general level of the hog market at the Chicago stock yards to a five month low. Prices declined 10 to 25 cents a hundred pounds. The top dropped 20 cents to $13.90 and the average 15 cents to $13.75.

The small supply of cattle cleared quickly at steady to strong prices. The best sold at $16.40. Lambs were in better demand at steady to strong prices.

Folger Urges SEC Controls Be Simplified

New York, Dec. 8 [Special].—J. Clifford Folger, president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, tonight asked changes in the securities and exchange commission act which would simplify registration "complexities," streamline prospectuses, encourage small business ventures, and clarify solicitation requirements.

J. Clifford Folger.

Speaking at a meeting of the New School for Social Research, Folger also urged the selection of a liaison advisory committee to maintain harmonious relations between bankers and the SEC because "government and business should not be working in airtight compartments."

Asks Relief from Details.

"Companies issuing securities should be relieved of some of the complexities of registration and detailed reports now required," he said. "Emphasis should be placed on simplicity and procedure the ordinary business man can understand. Present practices may be all right for a program of riskless investments, but venture capital has slowed down to a trickle. Financing must be made easier. Whether it is good or bad, the fact remains that we have the most complicated rules for financing on the face of the globe."

Folger said prospectuses should be shortened because "precious few investors will even start to wade thru 100 pages of printed material," and because "not enough copies are available to be used in selling."

Small Firm Problem Posed.

Regarding the SEC attitude on small business financing, Folger said:

"The mortality rate of small business always has been high and always will be high. Does the country want a lot of little businesses, many of which will fail, or does it want to make financing so rigid as to scare everyone off, business men, investors, and bankers alike? Investment bankers have a real responsibility, but they need some help from the SEC about registration requirements for little business."

Appealing for a better understanding between the bankers and the agency, Folger said a "good sense of humor would be helpful on both sides," because the SEC is popular with the public and "here to stay."

RENEW PLEDGE FOR DEFENSE OF FREE MARKET

The National Association of Commodity Exchanges and Allied Trades, thru its president, Maurice Mandeville, yesterday renewed its pledge to oppose "trends pointing to a further departure from the traditional free marketing system."

"These dangers the association is determined to combat," Mandeville said at the association's annual meeting at which he was reëlected. "The objectives of the association are designed to benefit equally all groups in the commodity trades, producer, distributor, and consumer. We believe that this end can be attained best thru the medium of free markets in the traditional free enterprise system which has been the basis of our great American progress."

J. O. McClintock of the Continental Grain company, who was reelected a director, said "Means can be devised to meet present and future agricultural problems wherein the time proved benefits of free markets can be restored and preserved without sacrificing a fair price to the farmer."

WORLD MONEY AND BANK PLAN MAY BE DIVIDED

Suggest Fund Could Be Eliminated.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Separation of the world bank for reconstruction and development from its more controversial twin, the international monetary fund, is considered a possibility in financial quarters.

Plans for the creation of the two global financial agencies were agreed upon last July by delegates of 44 nations meeting at Bretton Woods, N. H. The two agencies as formulated at the conference were linked. Membership in the monetary fund was to be a requisite of participation in the bank's affairs.

British Cool to Plans.

Altho proponents of the plans believe that the chances of their approval by congress were enhanced by the results of last month's election, it is conceded that there will be strong opposition. Furthermore, the British have cooled toward the agreements since the conference ended. John Maynard Keynes, chief of the British delegation at the conference, has been in Washington for several weeks discussing post-war economic problems. The British have made plain that the Bretton Woods agreements do not begin to solve the economic difficulties which Britain will face.

The British have indicated that they will await action by the United States congress on the Bretton Woods proposals before committing themselves. Meanwhile, developments have made clear that operation of the fund will not of itself create international monetary stability.

Doubt Need for Fund.

Britain's economic position is emerging as the most important international economic problem to be met after the war. Her large external debt, now frozen, will remain. The Bretton Woods conference turned down proposals that the resources of the fund be used to help Britain's creditors.

With this problem sidestepped and the need for exchange controls remaining, it is suggested that there is no reason for putting the monetary fund into operation. Under conditions that will exist in the immediate future there is no chance that it can bring about the "multilateral convertibility" of currencies for which it was designed, it is asserted.

Some of the most severe critics of the fund, however, believe that the proposed world bank can be put into operation immediately after the war and help realize the aims for which the fund was proposed.

Economist Urges Separation.

John H. Williams, economist of the Federal Reserve bank of New York, is one of those suggesting separation of the fund from the bank. Williams proposed that the bank plan be altered to permit it to make loans for stabilization of currencies. This could be done without extending credit indiscriminately to all countries as the fund would do, Williams said. The loans guaranteed by the bank would be underwritten by all participating countries, regardless of the source of the funds as provided for by the Bretton Woods plan.

"As the authors of the plans recognize, it will be on the bank that [and the other parts of a general international plan, including commercial policy and commodity price stabilization] the main task of international adjustment must fall," said Williams, writing in the quarterly, Foreign Affairs. "If that work is well done, monetary regulation will be less difficult and less costly."

WMC ADMITS IT LACKS POWER TO CONTROL LABOR

Discloses It Never Asked for Such Authority.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8 [Special].—Plants behind schedule in critical war production need 300,000 additional workers, but the war man power commission today admitted to a senate committee that it has no means to compel men and women to take or stay on vital defense jobs and never asked congress for such authority.

Charles M. Hay, deputy WMC chairman, was taken to task for opposing months ago legislation designed to force men classified by selective service as 4-F to take war jobs or enter the army. He appeared before the senate war investigating committee.

Under questioning by Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] and Sen. Brewster [R., Me.], Hay admitted that WMC Chairman McNutt never had asked congress for legislation to put teeth in the man power program and had opposed enactment of a national service act.

More Power "Helpful."

Hay said he believed man power to turn out the production necessary to wage a two front war could be obtained without congressional action. He added, however, that if congress did pass a law supporting employment ceilings and controling transfer of workers, it would be "enormously helpful."

"I'm glad you agree to that, but your agency should have asked for that authority six months ago," Brewster said. "The war man power commission was the only agency opposing universal service legislation, while the secretaries of war and navy and all other agencies wanted it. There is no reason why boys should be drafted for the trenches of Europe while there is no such provision to keep men in the foundries which are just as essential."

Hay answered that one reason congress has not been asked by the WMC to enact additional legislation is that a "long drawn out debate of the question would be detrimental to the labor recruitment program."

"If such a law could be passed quickly it would be helpful," he added.

"Do you mean without debate?" Ferguson inquired. "If so, why not set up penalties for leaving jobs simply by executive order as so many other things have been managed?"

When Hay answered that penalties could not be imposed by executive order, Ferguson remarked that WMC regulations stating that persons leaving war jobs without a certificate of availability could not be employed within 60 days "sounds like an executive penalty to me."

Brewster observed that the shortage of 300,000 vital workers "is evidence of failure" of the WMC program and said that V-E day—victory over Germany—would bring another slump in war plant employment.

"If war workers are allowed to find soft spots for themselves, the men in the trenches will wonder if they are patriots or suckers," he added.

Hay said that only 141,000 of the 300,000 needed workers are in demand now—the balance would be required within six months. He gave stepped-up schedules as the main factor in the man power shortage.

5 AND 10 HEIRESS MAY MAKE DEAL IN CUSTODY SUIT

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 8 (AP).—Indications that an out-of-court settlement is being negotiated in Barbara Hutton Grant's suit against her former husband, Court Haugwitz-Reventlow, for custody of their son, Lance, 8, were given by their lawyers today.

Jerry Giesler, attorney for the 5 and 10 heiress, and Joseph L. Lewinson, Haugwitz-Reventlow's lawyer, issued a joint statement which said:

"We are engaged in conversations in the hope of suggesting a formula which will be in the best interests of the boy and not injurious to either parent."

Haugwitz-Reventlow, a former Danish count who has been awarded the boy's custody for six months each year under a British court decree, has filed a motion to quash the heiress' suit for entire custody. They were divorced in England in 1941.

FINED FOR POLICY GAME.

Edward Williams, 45, Negro, of 3217 Ellis av., was fined $50 yesterday by Judge Jay A. Schiller in South State Street court on a charge of operating a policy gambling game.

Accountant Seeks Writ to Silence 3 Tax Officials

Paysoff Tinkoff, 6353 Clark st., filed suit yesterday in federal District court for an injunction restraining Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, and two of his assistants from destroying his business as an "expert tax accountant." The suit charged that the three revenue officials caused some of Tinkoff's clients to take their business elsewhere by telling them that tax returns prepared by him were not looked upon favorably by the government.

Yule Party Plans Made for Service Hospitals

The American Camp and Hospital service, which brings cheer to wounded and sick Yanks in local military and naval hospitals, is in the midst of preparations for Christmas parties, taking in the various service hospitals. Several thousand Christmas packages, each containing 15 items, will be distributed. Mrs. Louis Green is president of the group.

MRS. K. J. WARD WINS DIVORCE, SUPPORT PACT

Judge Ralph J. Dady in Circuit court at Waukegan yesterday granted a divorce on grounds of cruelty to Mrs. Dorothy Frame Ward, 116 Ravinia ct., Highland Park, from Kenneth J. Ward, copy chief of the J. Walter Thompson advertising agency.

Mrs. Ward was granted custody of two children, Kenneth Jr., 11, and Valorie, 4, for whose support Ward agreed to pay $4,000 a year.

An out of court settlement included in the decree provides that their $30,000 home be sold and the proceeds be divided equally; that Ward deed his wife their summer home on Lake Oconomowoc, Wis.; that personal property in both homes go to her, and that Ward pay up life insurance policies totalling $25,000 and naming Mrs. Ward as beneficiary.

John R. Booth, 66, of 563 Park av., River Forest, died of a heart attack yesterday in the Douglas Aircraft plant, Park Ridge, where he was employed.

Real Office Wife Fights Mate's Desertion Charge

Mrs. Margaret K. Mulks, 37, not only worked part time for 19 years helping her husband, Harold Omar Mulks, 58, in his law office, at 10 N. Clark st., but continued there two weeks after he filed a divorce suit charging her with desertion, her attorney, Sol R. Friedman, told Superior Judge John A. Sbarbaro yesterday. Mulks filed suit Oct. 17 and she started a cross suit, also charging desertion, last Monday. Judge Sbarbaro granted her $20 a week temporary alimony.

Sheds 48 Lbs. in Canada to Qualify for U. S. Army

Charles Gatewood of Pulaski, Va., a government worker in Washington, was rejected by the army in 1942 because he weighed 235 pounds. After 16 months in the Canadian army, he has been streamlined to a good fighting weight of 187 pounds, has transferred to the United States forces as a private and is at Fort Sheridan's recruit center awaiting assignment for basic training.

TREAT SEAWAY AS AGREEMENT, STETTINIUS ASKS

BY PHILIP DODD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—Secretary of State Stettinius today sent a memorandum to the senate commerce committee reiterating the state department's contention that the St. Lawrence river seaway and power project can be authorized by congress thru approval of an executive agreement between the United States and Canada, rather than by treaty.

Stettinius' communication arrived at the capitol as Sen. Aiken [R., Vt.] continued his efforts to force senate consideration of the St. Lawrence proposal, in face of senatorial predictions the plan would be defeated on the grounds it should have been submitted to the senate as a treaty.

In a letter to Sen. Overton [D., La.], chairman of a senate commerce subcommittee which recently held hearings on the matter, Stettinius admitted he was not familiar with the St. Lawrence proposal, but he said the memorandum accompanying his letter had been prepared by persons "in whom I have confidence."

"Another Hackworth Statement."

The memorandum, which was unsigned, contained the same arguments on the constitutionality of the St. Lawrence project that had been given Overton's committee last month by Green H. Hackworth, state department legal adviser. Overton told reporters he had not read the memorandum, but commented, "It's probably another Hackworth statement."

Main points made in the memorandum were:

1. The President has the authority in his conduct of foreign relations to negotiate an agreement such as the St. Lawrence compact and congress has the power to approve it.

2. Such an agreement would be constitutionally valid as soon as the President and the king of England, acting for Canada, have proclaimed it.

3. Altho the agreement would not be a treaty in the constitutional sense, it would be the supreme law of the land, as are treaties.

Aiken has been conducting for three days what Overton today termed a filibuster by preventing a vote on the omnibus rivers and harbors bill in the hope of forcing the senate to consider the St. Lawrence project as an amendment to that measure.

Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.] said in an interview that Aiken's proposal, if it comes to a vote, probably will be defeated on the grounds it should have come to the senate as a treaty.

"If this measure were passed as an agreement," Brooks said, "the administration might look upon it as a test case, setting a precedent under which the President could submit all international compacts as agreements instead of treaties."

Tells of Change

LILLIAN APRIL.

Something in the nature of "a psychological change" took place in Anthony Manno, 32, almost the instant he married Lillian April, 34, after a seven year courtship, it was agreed in Superior Judge Joseph Sabath's court yesterday, where she obtained an annulment of their marriage.

Miss April, who resumed her maiden name by court permission, said they were married in the city hall Oct. 3, 1944, and then went to dinner in a restaurant. At once, she testified, he told her he "was frightened at what he had done." After five hours' talking, he went to his home, at 3301 N. Halsted st., and she went to hers, at 830 Roscoe st.

Manno's cousin, Atty. A. R. Manno, who appeared as his lawyer, said Miss April's story was true, and Judge Sabath asked if he could account for the bridegroom's behavior.

"He must have undergone some psychological change," the lawyer said. "Perhaps some sudden fear."

British Planes Set German Ship Afire—Electronic 'Brain' Makes Remote Gun Control Possible

Army air forces sergeant demonstrates workings of central gunnery control unit used on B-29 Super Forts. The gunner merely gets the enemy plane in his sights and pulls the trigger, the electronic "brain" doing all the necessary mathematics to send the bullets to the target.
